SATURDAY MORNING, FED. 2, 18'5

PLEADING FOR UNITY.

In a speech recently delivered before some Democratic club in New York Senator Hill pleaded that Democrats | and may pay more. get together, and declared that it was the duty of all good Democrats to yield to the majority and to cooperate with the majority for the success of the party and for the common good. In thus counselling Senator Hill spoke like a true and loyal Democrat, but he forgot that in the course he pursued in the Senate on the tariff question he set an example of insubordination, and showed a contempt for party discipline in striking contrast to the declarations made in that speech. It is no excuse to say that in one case he acted as a Senator, while in the other he spoke simply as a member of the party to which he belongs, for if discipline be not binding upon a Senator when in accordance with the usages of the party the party speaks then it is binding upon no one. If this discipline may be ignored in one case and by one Demo crat it may be ignored in all cases and by any Democrat who wants to ig-

It is the misfortune of the Democratic party, perhaps, that certain men within its ranks claim the right because they hail from a certain section or from a certain State which has been one of the pivotal States to dictate the policy of the party and insist that the sentiments of the majority shall conform to the real or alleged sentiment of that section or those States. This is the fact which has been growing more and more prominent year after year until now it looms up in such colossal proportions that no one can fail to see it.

Mr. Hill aligned himself with the Republicans in the Senate in fighting the income tax and after its adop tion aligned himself with the obstructive contingent of the Republican Senators in the effort to prevent its enforcement. He did this because he professed to believe that the passage and enforcement of the income tax provision would make New York a Republican State. For the same reasons Democratic Senators and Representatives from Eastern States have been antagonizing the majority of the party on the financial question because they feared that the policy advocated by the majority would prove detrimental to the Democratic party in those States. This course has been so determinedly and so persistently pursued that the opinion has become prevalent outside of those States that on the essential questions which now divide the parties the Eastern Democracy stands a good deal closer to the Republican party than it does to the Democratic party, and this feeling augurs no good to the Democratic party in the future.

While the tariff question was before the country that was an issue that absorbed attention, and for the time being subordinated other ques tions, but that being now practically out of the way the financial question looms up and with that the silver question as the most exciting factor in it. There was a time when that | that job, and forcing the jobbers to | tracked and made a matter of minor importance, but that time has gone by, and silver will now be the issue between the parties, the factor of more dissension in the Democratic party, and dissension in the Demo cratic party means the opportunity of the Republican party, which has no dissensions in it, and no factions on public questions, but stands solid and united under cool headed, crafty, able and alert leadership.

ment of State banks in those States which needed more money than they had in circulation, and this would have at once relegated the silver question to a subordinate position and prevented it from ever more being an exciting factor in our national

That was the course the STAR advocated then, and if it had been followed there would either have been no repeal of the Sherman purchase banks, little or no financial agitation, and there would have been no such Waterloo as overwhelmed the Democratic party in the last election, and no need now of counselling harmony in the ranks, for the ranks would be united and solid. In the next National Democratic Convention we will find two factions more pronounced than they have ever been, and more aggressive than they have ever been, one insisting nct simply upon bi-metallism and a parity between the different kinds of money of the Government, but upon the free coinage of silver, and the other opposed to it. Neither of these factions will yield to the other; both will struggle to have its way; one or one or the other will come out of that Convention dissatisfied and re-

As matters are running now, this is the way the outcome looks to us, and we confess it isn't a very cheerful one; but it is better to look things squarely in the face and not deceive ourselves. There were glorious opportunities before the Democratic leaders, but they could not or would not grasp them. We have paid part of the penalty of blundering folly,

MINOR MENTION.

One thing has been demonstrated by the financial discussion which has engaged the attention of the U.S. Senate more or less for several days and that is how much the Senators do not know about the actual condition of the country or of the Treasury. One Senator asserts that there is no deficiency, and no danger of a deficiency, but a comfortable surplus over and above the actual needs of the Government for current expenses. He makes this statement, he says, after a conversation with the Secretary of the Treasury, who so assured him. Another asserts as positively that the Government is on the brink of bankruptcy and the only thing which can save it and its honor is prompt action for relief by Congress, while others, who seem to be bewildered by these contradictory statements, offer resolutions asking the Secretary of the Treasury to tell the Senate just how the Treasury is situated, whether it is long or short; whether it is in need of help, and if so, how much; if he wants Congress to do anything, and if so, just what he would like to have. All the Senators may not understand the mode of keeping books in the Treasury, nor be able to understand the monthly statements it sends out, but it seems to us that as close as they are to the Treasury and with the opportunities they have for gaining desired information they could keep well enough posted to intelligently discuss a question as to whether the Government needs more

It is a matter of some congratula tion to the people of this State, and also a matter of some dollars and cents, that the Fusion combine in the Legislature was floored in the matter of the public printing. Under the previous Democratic administration the printing was put up and given to the lowest responsible bidder, but when the combiners got down to work they concluded that they would dispense with the bidding process, and let the Legislature deal it out to political hench men as a reward for services ren dered. That was the programme, but the Democrats made it so hot that the Populists, who had been proclaiming for economy with open mouth, couldn't stand it when brought to the rack and forced to admit their insincerity and inconsistency or retreat. The result was they backed down, and when they backed down some of the Republicans who knew they could't carry the thing through without Populist assistance backed down too, and the outcome is that the public printing will go to the lowest responsible bidder unless some swindling is done in the manipulating of the bids. But be this as it may the people of the State are indebted to the Democrats in the Legislature for breaking up money than it has or not.

The army worm comes in occastonally and helps to keep down the cotton output, but it doesn't come often enough, nor stay long enough when it comes. But the United States Department of Agriculture reports the presence in Texas of an importation from Mexico which may prove more effective as a crop reducer than the army worm, one that may do its work too well, and that If when the extraordinary session will not move on and disappear as of Congress was convened to repeal the army worm does. This is a the Sherman act the Democratic weevil which bores into the cotton Representatives and Senators from | boll and destroys it, and which seems the South and the West had de- to be spreading with rapidity in that manded the repeal of the State bank portion of Texas where it has aptax as a preliminary to supporting peared, with some danger that if prothe repeal of the Sherman law they per steps be not taken to get rid of might have been successful, have it, it may eventually spread through-

HOW A MAN GOES TO SLEEP.

'Order is heaven's first law," and the old truth is manifested even in the process of going to sleep. When a man drops off to sleep, his body does not do so all at once, so to speak. Some senses become dormant before others and always in the same order. As he becomes drowsy the eyes close, and the sense of seeing is at rest. It is quickly followed by the disappearance of the sense of taste. He next loses the sense of smell and then after a short interval the tympanum becomes insensible to sound, or rather the nerves which run to the brain from it fail to arouse any sense of hear-
