passed its third reading. Bill to change the time of holding the Superior Courts of Durham county, passed third reading. Bill for the relief of S E Petty, a school teacher of Robeson county, passed third

Bill to amend the charter of the City of Wilmington was taken up, and Senator Rice said that while there was some politics in it, it was mainly designed to put the Republican party in charge of the offices of the city, but to leave the Democrats in charge of the financial administration of the ci v. He went on to state that the city was now in debt and that the financial interests of the city were about to collapse. He wanted the Democrats to continue to control he finances and to bear the

Mr Adams declared that this bill was nothing but a gerrymander, and said that Mr Rice had practically admitted the inability of the Republican party to take charge of the financial managemert of the city of Wilmington.

Before the bill was disposed of the hour for the special order arrived and the Senate took up the Confederate Monument bill. By this time the galleries were crowded to their utmost capacity with the ladies, and they even filled the lobbies on the floor of the Sen ate. Mr Moody of Ha wood, first took the floor, and made a strong speech in lavor of the bill He declared that this tax und was to a large extent the money of the men who fell in the late war, to whom it was proposed to erect this monument. He said these ladies asked this money not as a gift, but as a loan And if demand was ever made he fell confident they would pay it back. Mr Moody was warmly applauded. Moody went on to show that if the money was wanted for a public school fund this could be better provided for by the succession tax bill which he recently introduced. Mr Mco 1y said he was a Repub i:an, but he pointed out the fact that the Republican party had e-ected monuments to Grant and to other great men, and although he was Republican, he was in favor of this bill to enable the ladies to erect a monument to the Confederate dead of North Carolina. He declared that monuments and painting and art and statuary were the greatest educators in the world, and

A LOCAL REMINISCENCE.

A friend of many years recently called my attention to an old document in his possession which was nearly fif:y years old, and very gravely asked me if I recognized it. A single glance was sufficient, for it brought up recollections of the most p'easing character in connection with scenes and incidents of the past, but which were also saddened by the thought that so few of those whose signatures were attached to that instrument of writing, and wi h whom my

There are now but ten survivors of those whose signatures are attached to that bond, who yet linger on the stage of life, a beggarly half-score, and they are among the greybeards of the city whom the youth of the present day are apt to stigmatize as old fossils, and to whom they think the remark "superfluous lag the veterans on the stage" is justly applicable. But they are still here, at least for the present, though bruised and battered by the storms of life. Still here, but tottering out towards the end with the lengthening shadows of the darkening twilight gathering closely around them, and it cannot be long before the places which have known
