INVADING THE EAST.

The Washington Star says that one of the things decided upon by the conference of the leaders of the new silver party recently held in Washington was to open an aggressive campaign in the East and work for the labor vote. Whatever of strength this movement may have up to this time is in the West and the South, in those States where the Populist party was strong enough to have an organization and put candidates in the field. The Populist party had no strength in the East, and seemed to take it

THE CHILDREN GET THE GRAVY.

But the Father of the Family Gets the Fan of Giving It to Them.

"You know," said the father of a family, "it makes me laugh whenever I think of the children's absolute nerve about the gravy. What I mean is that when we have a steak, or roast beef, or anything that has gravy with it, the children take it all, down to the last drop, without leaving a speck for their father and mother. And they're perfectly sound hearted, wholesome childre too, who would do anything they could for their parents. But about some things they haved a selfishness that appears be perfectly natural to children, an that I suppose is bred in indulgence. They have all their lives been accustomed to having everything that their parents could give them, and so they nome to expect it.

"But I smile again as I recall the fact that when I was a boy I got all the gravy. Time and again I have seen my father tip the dish so that he might get for me the last drop, while he had none for himself. He was very fond of gravy, too, but he never said so. With grave courtesy he gave it all to me, as though I were entitled to it. When I grew a little older, I reproached myself iometimes for having taken it all. When I grew older still and came to know how gentle and affectionate and forbearing and generous he was, I came to know that he wouldn't for the world have marred my pleasure by so much as a word-that the simple fact was that it was a far greater pleasure to him to give me the gravy than it would have been to eat it himself.

"And now when the children pass their plates I gravely dish out the gravy down to the last drop, and I say nothing for fear that they will rob me of the selfish pleasure of giving it all to them. But I smile to myself once more as I think of what will happen when they come to have children of their own. I know what they'll do then. They'll give it all to the children, down to the last, last drop. "-New York Sun.

Mr. Hawthorne Was Satisfied.

Nathaniel Hawthorne was a kind hearted man as well as a great novelist. While he was consul at Liverpool a young Yankee walked into his office. The boy had left home to seek his fortune, but evidently had not found it yet, although he had crossed the sea in search. Homesick, friendless, nearly penniless, he wanted a passage home. The clerk said that Mr. Hawthorne could not be seen and intimated that the boy was not an American, but was trying to steal a passage. The boy stuck to his point, and the clerk at last went to the little room and said to Mr. Hawthorne:

"Here's a boy who insists upon seeing you. He says he's an American, but I know he isn't." Hawthorne came out of the room and

WHERE PARIS IS AHEAD. Her Wonderful System of Pneu Tube In Paris the meumatic tribes used in the dispatch of card telegrams and let-ter telegrams from one portion of the sity to the other are placed in the sewers. The excellent sewer system has helped the development of this handy means of communication in a way which would not have been possible otherwise. It is quicker than the telegraph for meaages within the city and would be perfect if the slow Parisian facteur were replaced by the smart London boy messenger. As we stand below the tube we an hear the whiz of the "chase" distinctly. There it goes at lightning speed. bearing, most probably, some tender message from lovesick Jean at his office at the bourse to pretty Jeanette, who is toiling somewhere near the Bon Marche. and fixing a rendezvous for the evening

Wonder fully convenient these telegrams for correspondence-more secret than the telegram proper, making no awkward mistakes in times and places-and, best of all, preserving the caligraphy of the More serious things are doubtless passing across the coils which cover the remainder of the roof of the tunnel. These are the telegraph and telephone wires, thousands of miles of them, connecting the 210 postoffices and placing hundred of subscribers in the city within earshot. Overhead wires are prohibited in Paris, so are sky signs, and how much the city gains in beauty those only know who have seen London, with its unsightly webs strung across the housetops, spoiling whatever of the picturesque there may be about the streets and constituting a serious danger to persons and property. There is no comparison either in the efficiency of the telephone in the two cities. A whisper may be heard in Paris, while in London telephoning is generally a most exasperating operation. A striking piece of evidence on this point is afforded by the fact that it is well nigh impossible to telephone from Paris to any given subscriber in London, and that before the instrument could be of any practical use for long messages the States. That was bad politics, and say evidence he had done such injusavoiding that blunder.

In discussing the prospective situation politically a short while ago Mr. that Chauncey M. Depew said that the silver question was not giving the Eastern people any trouble and that slander, but also gave the press of they were concerning themselves very little about it, for which reason the Republican leaders were giving themselves very little trouble about the East, which they counted upon as all right on the financial question. This was an assumption based upon the absence of any agitation in the utter absence of any foundation that section, and the non-existence of any agitating organization, the two old parties in the East and also in the Middle States being in practical accord on the financial question. But if this agitation were begun by men who are aggressive and in earnest, possessing the money necessary to publish and distribute their literature, and put speakers in the field to carry on the campaign of education, they might very seriously disturb the equanimity of the other party leaders, and make them hustle around.

Their plan of operations is understood to be the systematic distribution of catchy literature to workingmen's organizations, and to laborers ot all classes in city, town and country where such distribution is practicable, and doubtless many of the labor leaders will cheerfully co-operate with them in this work. They calculate that this will be more effective than any campaigning that might be done in the open field, especially in the heat of a political campaign after the party lines had been drawn, for the work will be done quietly, with nothing to distract, and no blare of trumpets nor flutter of flags to divert attention from the issue at stake. The argument and the appeal is made on paper, with nothing or no one to gainsay either. There is danger in that kind of a campaign, because there is no way of ascertaining its direct effect or to offset its influence.

There is no use in denying the fact that they can make a pretty strong case with the toilers who labor for wages, with the array of figures that they will present showing the depreciation of wages which they will contend has been the result of contraction of the currency, and adherence to the gold standard, just as to collectors. ### The Miserable Moors.

The lives lived by the Moors are, without perhaps any exception, the most precarious and miserable that can be imagined. The poor man is thrown into prison for sums he never possesse and can never pay, the rich to be squeezed of all he possesses, while those only can hope to escape who are members of families sufficiently powerful to arouse the fears of the local governor should he attempt extortion and not sufficiently powerful to stir up the jealousy and avarige of the sultan. Even the governors of the provinces affer themselves as they make others suffer, for just as they squeeze the agriculturist and the peasant so are they in turn squeezed by the sultan and his viziers, and should they fail by constant presents to maintain a good opinion at the court they can expect only imprismment and often death. -Blackwood's Magazine.

In For It. The captain turned pale. "Is there no hope?" he asked in a rembling voice. "None," answered the executive offiper solemnly. The commander raised his trumpet to his lips. "Man the lifeboat!" he shouted through the tempest. A moment later he left the ship. No, she was not sinking. She was our hours late, and the captain preferred to take his chances with the storm to remaining on board and getting his picture in the newspapers.-
