CAPE FEAR ACADEMY.

Pwenty-Second Annual Commencement-Interesting Exercises by the Literary Society - Valedictory - Prizes Presented -Certificates Awarded,

The 22nd annual commencement of Cape Fear Academy, Prof. Washington Catlett principal, took place last night. The academy was crowded with ladies and gentlemen to hear the debate by members of the Literary Society.

The first part of the programme was debate on the resolution 'That the manufacture and sale of intoxicating iquors should be prohibited." Affirmative, C. T. Green and T. E. Brown; negative, E. C. McEachern and G. Kirby Collier. Mr. McEachern did remarkably well and the committee which was to decide had difficulty in coming to a decision, but finally awarded the prize to Mr. Collier. The next was declamations by Messrs.

W. P. Platt, "Sparticus to the Gladiators"; J. Owen Reilly, "Duty of a Southerner After the War," by Zebulon B. Vance; E. C. McMillan, "The Ride of Jennie McNeill"; Geo. Honnet. "An Old Man's Story"; Fred. Nash DeRosset, "Sparticus to the Roman Envoy"; Robt. Nash, "Regulus to the Carthagenians"; Thos. R. Orrell, "Emmett's Delence of Ireland." The medal was awarded to Mr. Thomas R. Orrell by the judges.

The judges were Rev. Robert Strange, Rev. A. D. McClure and Mr. John D. Bellamy, Jr. Mr. C. F. Green did exceptionally well. The prizes were presented by Mr. John D. Bellamy, Jr., who spoke in high term of each declaimer, also complimenting Professor Catlett and Mr. Hancock, his assistant, on the high standing and efficiency of the academy. While the judges were deciding who were entitled to the medals, the president of the society, Mr. W. P. Platt, spoke as follows:

"As the president of the C. F. A. Literary Society, and before we part tonight, I think it becomes me to add a few words of thanks to those who have aided us during the present season.

"I speak of Mr, Catlett and his able Hubbard Bros' Report-Crop Prospectsand accomplished assistant, Mr. Hancock. Mr. Catlett has given us the use of the school room for our meetings, also the access to his library, which has aided us in no small degree. Many which I will not mention to-night, but for which we are very thankful. But P would refer more particularly to Mr. Hancock. He was the first to propose the organization of the Society, and was present at the date of its organization. He was unanimously elected to the responsible position of censor, which place he has ably and honorably filled. He has given invaluable aid by training us in our declamations during the past months. So great was his interest for the success of the Society that his room was ever open for our admittance and he was ever willing to give us the benefit of his accomplished acquirements. Words cannot express the thanks which the Society feels for him, but its wishes are: May success ever attend him in whatever field of labor he may be called.

"In appreciation of the kindness bestowed on us by Mr. Hancock and Mr. Catlett, I take great pleasure in presenting for the Society to Mr. Hancock this cup; and to Mr. Catlett, this clock.

"These presents are not given as a reward for their labor, but as a remembrancer when they may look back to the time when the scholars of the C. F. A. looked up to them for any advice which they may give."

The valedictory was delivered by Mr W. P. Croom in a most admirable man-

The boys then presented Prof. Catlett with a handsome clock and Prof. W. S. Hancock with a silver shaving cup.

Prof. Catlett spoke in warm terms of his scholars and the manner in which they had behaved and studied this session, after which certificates were awarded to the following scholars:

500,000 bales would be sufficient for the requirements of the spinners. It is this view of the situation which spinners take. and which naturally causes them to fall back upon their reserve supplies. Without the assistance a legitimate consumption, it is difficult for speculation to maintain the price of cotton after such a sharp advance, and therefore we see some tendency toward any material decline from the present basis of values in the situation of the growing crop. Therefore the market remains without a short interest, and the fluctuations which occur and which have tended to slightly reduce the value of cotton have been entirely due to the disosal of their holdings by those who preferred to await the receipt of further bad crop accounts rather than to hold their cotton during a period when it seems likely to them that they might have to withstand the pressure of the actual cotton, in case the spinners were not atvices from the South. month, but only of such a character to look for a slight reaction from current prices and from which there will be a further advance later on in the season.

NEW YORK, June 14.-It was expected that at the end of the Whitsunother favors he has bestowed on us, | tide holidays the English spinners would appear in the Liverpool market as buyers of large quantities of cotton to meet their daily consumption, but in this the trade have been disappointed, as their takings have shown a disposition to encroach upon the reserve supplies with which they provided themelves with at lower prices. It is a well known fact in the market that since cotton crossed 6% cents on the first advarce, that the disposition of spinners at home and abroad has been to withdraw from the market and fall back upon their reserve supplies. Whether they will persist in this course is, of course, a question which will be decided entirely on advices received from the growing crop. At the present time they are led to believe that the decrease in the acreage will be between twelve and fifteen per cent.; that the condition of the crop is materially worse than last year, and points to a yield of between seven and a half and eight million bales. This is undoubtedly the true position of affairs as the crop now appears; but it must be borne in mind that the amount of cotton which has been darried over from last season's crop is between 1,000,-000 and 1,200,000 bales in excess of the consumption and therefore if that quantity be added to the estimated yield of 1895-96, the production on a basis of 7,

The situation at the moment is therefore a waiting one on both sides. The spinner is waiting for better crop advices, while the speculator is waiting for poorer crop reports which he believes will certainly be received during the month of July, as that is a period when the cotton crop is entering a derelopment which requires good weather. In short it may be said that there is a light diminution in the bullish feeling which has been current for the past
