Police Officer's Encounter With a Thief at Front Street Market.

Police officer Whitehead (colored) had an encounter with a negro thief early yesterday morning.

Whitehead was passing Front street market house about half-past 8 o'clock and saw a negro man coming out of one of the side doors of the building carrying a dressed hog on his shoulders. The policeman stopped, when the thief dropped the hog and drawing a a pistol told the officer to stand back. At the same time he fired at Whitehead and ran. The latter returned the fire and sent five pistol shots after the thief but did not hit him.

Upon investigation it was found that the thief had entered the market building through a transom on the north side, and had visited both the stalls of Messrs. I. F. Garrell & Co., breaking open a refrigerator and smashing a cash register. A cold-chisel, which was probably a part of the thief's complement of tools, was left in one of the stalls.

Exhibits Good and a Large Attendance Expected-Meeting Executive Committee Farmers' Alliance-Election in Wake on the Road Law-Cases in the Superior Court-Illicit Distillery Destroyed-Horse Sale, [Star Correspondence] RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 5.

The Executive Committee of the Alliance, consisting of Messrs. Mewborne, Hileman and English, are expected in the city this afternoon. They will likely decide on the location for the new shoe factory to be established by the Alliance. Cary and Thomasville seem to be receiving the most consideration at the hands of the committee. Cary is said to have a "pull."

The State Fair for the colored race was opened to-day by Secretary of State Chas. M. Cooke. The Governor was asked to perform the ceremony but is absent in Atlanta. The exhibits are good and it is likely that a large crowd will be here as a one-cent rate prevails on all the railways. Races are sched-uled to-morrow. Rev. W. W. Brown, the colored banker of Richmond, will deliver an address to-morrow.

The people of Wake county are vot ing to-day on the proposition of estab-lishing a new road law. Comparatively very little interest is being manifested in the election. Registration was not required in the county. In Raleigh townhip, where registration was required probably not over one-third of the yoters registered. It would seem that the pro-osed law will be defeated. Loge Harriss for the first time in the history of his sojourn in Raleigh failed to register. He says that he would have roted against the proposed law. It is said near Morrisville, this county, few days ago, a white woman who was the mother of a negro infant was

SPANISH PEANUT CULTURE. Mr. James Barrett Gives Some Inter esting Facts from His Experience-

The following article from the Charleston News & Courier is interesting, and the STAR suggests that some of our farmers try the Spanish peanut. The experiment will not cost much. I read Mr. Williams' communication

Chufes, Artichokes and Highland in your valuable paper on the Spanish peanut. Last Spring this valuable plant was discussed in connection with hog raising, and the demand for seed was greater than the supply. It seems to me that results should now be discussed, as food crops are as important to the people as Constitutional conventions. I planted about ten acres early in the Spring in Spanish peanuts. With careless hoeing and owing to the depredations of the crows got a poor stand, but hem up and had the nuts picked from to test the productive powers of the plant I selected two plants and pulled the same. The yield was three pints. Now, if we plant in three-foot rows and two feet distance in the drill we would have a yield of 171 bushels per acre.

The peanuts were planted in tolerable stiff clay land. When planted in sandy land air-slacked lime should be used to prevent the production of pops. In fact, lime is the best fertilizer for the peanut. However, I used no fertilizer whatever. If the land is heavily fertilized or is naturally rich, the peanut can be planted in the drill the distance of one foot. Therefore, with a good stand and kept clean of grass, two hundred and fifty bushels per acre is not an unreasonable vield. To test the effect of late planting planted two acres in Spanish peanuts the last of July, and with this unusual dry fall will set a good yield of matured

I have been impressed by the demand for the peanuts as seed, and have sold my entire crop to go to Wisconsin. What they will do with them in the far Northwest is more than I can say. I have been planting the chusa and the root artichoke as a cheap hog food, but am convinced that the peanut is far superior in meat making. The chufa produces no forage, and the artichoke, like the turnip, is rich in water.

For the first time I planted upland rice, having been induced to do so by observation made while travelling in my buggy in Southeast Georgia a little over a year ago. When I saw the poor pine ridges producing rice that would yield (as I was told) about twenty to twentyfive bushels per acre, I planted about my yield was about one hundred bushels. The culture was careless and rather poor, as I could not get my manager to give it a fair trial, for I have always found it hard to induce (the general class of hired) managers to adopt a new plant or a new system of culture and generally had to force them to it. I would like to hear from some of your numerous readers if rice is a good cereal to feed to hogs, as we can in my section raise it cheaper than corn. If you will refer to an article writter by Edmund Atkinson in the Southern Magazine, wherein he discusses the pea or bean and peanut you will find that he ranks the peanuts highest as food for

The October Bulletin of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture has the following caution to farmers; "For the protection of farmers who nurchase fertilizers for fall crops they are advised not to buy any fertilizer unless it has both the manufacturer's guaranteed analysis stamped upon the bag and the Department of Agriculture tag attached to it. When bags or other packages of fertilizers are properly branded and tagged it is evidence that the law has been complied with. Farmers are
