AYCOCK, of Wayne. FOR STATE AUDITOR : R. M. FURMAN. of Buncombe. FOR SUPT. PUBLIC INSTRUCTION JOHN C. SCARBOROUGH, of Johnston. FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL : F. I. OSBORNE, of Mecklenburg. ASSOCIATE JUSTICES SUPREME COURT A. C. AVERY, of Burke, GEO. H. BROWN,, Jr., of Beaufort.

"You tell us the great cities are in favor of the gold standard. Burn down your great cities and leave your tarms, and your cities will grow up again. But destroy our farms and the grass will grow in every city of the Union."-From Wm. J. Bryan's speech before Democratic National Convention.

"I am for McKinley, Russell and Gold," says Oscar J. Spears, one of the Republican candidates for Elector-at-Large.

"I desire to meet Mr. Russell on the hustings of North Carolina. I want the people to hear us and decide between me and what I represent, and what I think he represents. With their decision I shall be content. If elected Governor of your State, I shall see that every man, no matter what his station in life or what his politics, is given every privilege granted him by the Constitution of North Carolina." - Cyrus B. Watson, Democratic candidate for Governor.

TO HELP McKINLEY.

It has not been announced what position President Cleveland and his official advisers will pursue in referrenc: to supporting or opposing the ticket nominated at Chicago, but it may be pretty safely assumed that whether it meet with open opposition or not it will not meet with any countenance or encouragement from Washington. There are rumors to the effect that Mr. Cleveland will shortly write a letter expressive of his views and that in that letter he will favor the calling of a convention and the nomination of an opposition ticket. There is probably some foundation for this, but whether he write such a letter as this may depend upon the responses that come in to the third ticket call. If they be such as to give reason to believe that the convention would not prove a fizzle as to numbers and the prominence of those who would attend it, he may write the letter. But no letter is necessary to indicate the feeling of Mr. Cleveland as to the Chicago platform and ticket for that has been pretty well foreshadowed by the utterances of those know his sentiments. Secretary Herbert did not hesitate to declare when asked what he would do that he would not support the ticket, and went so far as to characterize the platform as a Populistic one. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Hamlin, who went as one of the "sound money" missionaries to Chicago, said on his return to Washington that there would be "no politics" in the next campaign, that "all patriots should unite," &c., which meant that no Democrat is in fealty bound by the action of the Chicago Convention. The significance in this is that it was said by a high official after he had met and conversed with Secretary Carlisle, and the President. Comptroller Eckels, who also stands in pretty high feather at Washington and was one of the most mouthy of the so called "sound money" missionaries at Chicago, is one of the most zealous and loquacious promoters of the movement for another convention and for a third ticket. He emphasizes the importance of defeating the ticket nominated at Chicago by predicting "ruin and disaster" if it be elected. All these men are so devoted to the President, so tied to him that they would never have expressed themselves as they have if they voiced his sentiments, so that from the developments so far we think it pretty safe to assume that Mr. Cleveland, his official ad. advocate. visers and the dependents who take their cue from him and them will not support the ticket nominated at Chicago, but in preference will give their indirect aid to McKinley.

Of course they haven't the shadow of a hope of electing a gold Democrat to the Presidency if one should be nominated, for they would have to depend altogether on the votes of of the East and their representatives men who call themselves Democrats, from other sections dictate the platas they do. They couldn't draw form of the party and name its canfrom the Republican party, for the didates. In the following extract Republican gold men are pretty well from a letter to the chairman of the satisfied with the St. Louis platform, since they were permitted to have a hand in the making of it. They consider it a gold platform, have got Mr. Hanna and his protege, Mc-Kinley, where they wanted them, and have no occasion to go outside of the Republican party to fight for gold. This being so the only effect of another so-called Democratic ticket would be to give the gold Democrats who would vote it a chance to throw their votes away, to divide the Democrats and to that extent help elect McKinley, whom the favorers of this movement would much rather see in the Presidential chair than Bryan.

We are not disposed to overlook the fact that Mr. Cleveland and those who stand close to him and are more or less under his influence feel very much chagrined at the outcome of the convention not only for adopting a free silver platform, but in nominating a ticket without asking the consent of the gold men who went there to tell it what to do, but also for refusing to endorse the Administration; but neither of these is a sufficient cause for sulking and fighting the party after they had gone into the convention and used all the resources within their command to carry it their way. If they had succeeded and silver Democrats did as they are now doing and propose to do, they would pronounce the silver sulkers very disloyal to the party. For months they knew that the silver men would have a majority in that convention, and that a free silver platform would be adopted, but they planned to obstruct further progress, prevent the nomination of a candidate, and thus render abortive the efforts of the free silver men, tire the convention out and force it to adopt some compromise acceptable to them. They voted on the platform and when their plans failed and they saw they could not prevent the nomination of a ticket, most of them refused to

If they could, when they failed to dictate the platform, they would have forced the silver men to secede, and then they would have claimed to be the regular convention and would have adopted a gold platform ahd nominated a ticket. But the silver men caught on to their game and blocked it. When they talk about a third ticket now they are simply saving what they had in view then in the event the convention went against them. If they nominate a ticket they may show their spite against the Chicago ticket, but that's all, for the ticket they put out will not receive votes enough to make them worth counting. There are thousands of Democrats who whether they approve of all that is in the Chicago platform or not, will not endorse that kind of party disloyalty and knifing and will not lend themselves to the election of McKinley and the restoration of the Republican party to power, with all that implies.

dential candidates. Knowing all this as they did, they should either not have gone into that, convention, or they should have acquiesced in the result, loyally if not cheerfully.

MINOR MENTION.

Senator Butler has been playing a very foxy game and he thinks he has been playing a shrewd one, but the trouble with Mr. Butler is that he overestimates his cunning when he imagines that he can fool everybody. He started out early playing for cooperation with the Democrats of this State and when he found he couldn't who come close enough to him to play the game he wanted with them he sidled over to the Republican side and has been feeling the chances of making an advantageous dicker with them. In the meantime his paper shoots darts at Senator Pritchard for going back on free silver and jumping on the gold band wagon behind Hanna and McKinley, and Mr. Butler writes editorials laudatory of Candidate Bryan but denunciatory of the party and convention which nominated him. His pecking at his colleague Pritchard is to make the Populists believe that he is really sincere in his professions for free silver, and his laudation of Bryan is to make his support easier in the Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Does event the convention which meets in St. Louis to-morrow decide to endorse him. In that case, while Mr. Butler is fighting hard to prevent the endorsement, he cannot consistently oppose him. But if Mr. Butler should make a deal with the Republican managers in this State. can he comply with the compact and deliver the goods? We don't believe he can. We don't believe he is "a bigger man than his party," or that he can lead the Populists of this State into the Russell camp. He may carry with him some of the aspirants who have their eve on the ple counter, but the honest masses of the people will see they had any doubt that in doing so through the transparent trickery and hypocrisy that give the lie to the professions of loyalty to them and sincerety in the cause he pretends to

> Senator Smith, of New Jersey, is what they call a "sound money" Democrat, but Senator Smith is a Democrat all the same, who doesn't believe in turning the Government over to the Republicans because the Democratic National Committee declined to let the gold standard men

Democratic Committee of Essex county he talks sense and talks like a loyal Democrat:

While there may be some difference of opinion in our ranks on the financial question, I do not believe we are more unfortuna e in this respect than our opponents. In my judgment neither the ousiness men, the wage-workers of the country, nor the Republican party itself has much confidence in Mckinley. His position as a financier is shifting and incertain His tariff views are destructive. if enforced, to national prosperity, and have twice been overwhelmingly repudiated. He was nominated by a inancial syndicate, and not in response to any popular demand. His election would be a calamity.

New Jersey is one of the States which the Republicans were counting upon carrying on the tariff issue and with that view, to get a better hold on the State, they nominated Mr. Hobart for Vice President, and since the Chicago platform declared for free silver they have been counting upon the co-operation of gold standard Democrats. Senator Smith sees through their game, says so, and at the same time administers a deserved rebuke to those so called Democrats in high places for the aid and comfort they are giving the supporters of McKinley.

Minnesota is one of the States which the Republican managers had down on their slate, but the latest dispatches from St. Paul inform us that that the gold men are going to make "a hot fight." When they announce their determination to make a hot fight in a State in which they didn't regard it as necessary to make much of a fight, the inference is that they have made some unpleasant discoveries. They find themselves now confronted by a prospective solid array of free silver men, who for the time being will lay aside other issues to make a united fight for a change in the monetary system, the demand for which is made not only by Democrats and Populists, but by thousands of Republicans who have heretofore loyally supported the Republican party. We have little doubt that the alliance referred to in the St. Paul dispatch published in our press columns Sunday morning will be effected and this will mean a clear cut issue and a stand up fight between the friends of the double standard and the supporters of the single gold standard. as it should be everywhere.

The Baltimore Sun prides itself on the fact that it has always been a paper for the "plain people" Well, he Sun is a rattling good paper, but it is getting so badly tangled up in this gold business that the plain people may get to doubting whether it is really the paper for them.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- The gold Democrats might take advantage of Col. Watterson's absence and make him their nominee. Then there would be a march through the slaughterhouse to an open grave. - Washington Post, Ind.

- Mr. William Bryan appears to have Mr. Benjamin Harrison's happy faculty of being able to make a good speech at every station he passes on his journeys. He has the advantage of Mr. Harrison, however, in having made at least one speech that was not forgotten as soon as it was made. - Charleston News & Courier.

-- It is Mr. Hanna's plan to have the manufacturers of the country give their employes "object lessons" on the financial question by reducing wages until the defeat of the Chicago ticket is assured. That is the old high tariff way of convincing workingmen, and the manutacturers took quite kindly to it while the McKinley law was in operation.

- New York Journal, Dem. -- It is unjust for the bolting Democratic papers and their Republican contemporaries to refer to the Democratic Convention as having been a gathering of Socialists because Tillman and Altgeld were prominent in the gathering. It should be remembered that Altgeld's alleged dominating influence was mostly on paper, and never materialized while Tillman was hissed by many delegates and the audience every time there was an opening to do so. Altgeld and Tillman and their Socialistic and Anarchistic ideas were unmistakably condemned. -Savannah News, Dem.

- Raleigh News and Observer: Friday morning's train from Washington, south-bound over the Southern Railway, carried the first installment of a colony of people destined to Guilford county, North Carolina where they have purchased a tract of land near Greensboro, and will make their future homes. These people are progressive and will do much towards advancing the agri cultural interests of the South, They are excellent farmers, and will at once bring their land up to a high state of cultivation. The large tract of land purchased will be subdivided into small farms, and these forerunners will make improvements necessary to accommodate the other members of the colony, who will follow in a tew weeks.

- Rockingham Index: The usually quiet and serene village of Midway was thrown into great exsitement last Saturday (11th inst.) by the rumor that one of its fairest and most lovely daughters had made an effort to end her own life. The people soon discovered the rumor to be based on good foundation. Miss Hattie Hanley, aged nineteen, bright and sprightly, had taken a large dose of arsenic, had swallowed ground glass mixed with dough, and nineteen match heads. It was found out shortly after she had taken them and physician was immediately summoned, but before he came Miss Haily was already partially relieved of the terrible dose she had taken, She was almost crazed for several days as a result, but she is all right now and regrets exceedingly her hasty act for which no cause is assigned.

A Fair Inference. It is undeniable that actions often speak londer than words. A usurious money lender, who had for some time collected an extertionate interest from debtor, sent his collector to the man, as usual, one day. The collector returned and reported to his employer that he could not collect the money.
"Do you mean to say that the man declared to you that he wouldn't pay the interest?" the usurer demanded furi-"He didn't declare so in so many

A FIRST DAY'S WORK.

"Well, really, you know that Glen Fairfax's family never seemed like our own, and Rosita was always full of some whim Mrs. Fairfax thought to herself how fortunate it was that Rosita was out of her son's way. "Allan would have been just absurd enough to renew the old engagement if he had had the ghost of an opportunity and now that Helen Farquarson, with all that property of hers, fancies him such a piece of chivalrous romance would have been simply absurd.'

he was left alone. "Married!" he muttered. "Oh, Rosita, how could you have so soon forgotten?"

Mrs. Fairfax sailed out of the room and

"I know I could do it, mamma!" "But, Rosita, only think of it," cried the poor little widow, wringing her belpless hands. "You, Glen Fairfax's daughter, stooping to such a menial occupation as that of a hairdresser, Rosita!' "No, mamma," interrupted Rosita, laughing. "Give it the French grace of signification. Say coiffeuse." And Rosita went out with a smile that seemed to turn her whole bright face to sunshine. "She is fit to be a princess," thought the mother, with a longing, lin gering thrill of tenderness. Mme. Lucile de Prenneror received her new workwoman very graciously.

"You are just in time, my dear," she said. "Ms foi, the orders that I have received today! If I had had 100 hands, they would all have been busy. Let me see. What are we to call you?"
"My name is Ro"— "Oh, true, true, but it was not of that I was thinking. I like my girls to adopt French names. Miss Meenie Dow is called here Nannette Dupont, and you-you are Marie Pelotte. You do not object? It gives us style, Parisian ton.' "I do not object," said Rosita, smiling at the oddity of the whim. "Well, Marie Pelotte, you shall go out

It was her aunt, Mrs. John Fairfax.

Evidently, however, she was herself unrecognized, and, gathering new courage from this, she glided round to the back of the chair and commenced her operations, secretly thanking the planets for Mrs. Fairfax's nearsightedne Mrs. Fairfax languidly opened a book and began to read, while Rosita, with trembling hands, proceeded to brush and

By the way, some uniformity should be introduced in the pronunciation of Iowa. It is variously spoken in conwith the accent on the first syllable 'I-o-wy" and "I-o-way," with the accent on the second syllable, and "I-o-way," with the accent on the third syllable None of these is correct. Senators Allison and Gear and the members of the Iowa delegation agree that "I-o-wah," with a little accent on the first and emphasis on the final syllable, is the only right thing .-
