Gentlemen—With due respect and humble submission I beg leave to state that I have taken the contract on the—instant, the piece chosen to be given is FISHANAI HOSH-RUBA. The last plot of this play is taken from Shakespeare's famous play of Othello, and I stand guarantee that the play is a nice one and will be shown with the best scenes and scenery, made specially for this play, never think to be disappointed.

The following scenes in this play are worth attentions and show the experience and skill of the painter, of the painter,

1. The scene of Durbar fully decorated with chandeliers and other furniture.

2. The scene of Jungle and a long bearded pious man's coming out of the moon, and animal's grazing in the Jungle and Othello's hunting one of them down. All these sights would be to attractive to make mention of

They depend on seeing.

8. The scene of garden with a bridge, therein, and a river flowing from below. A very beau-tiful sight indeed. Sweet and mellodious singing of the birds in the garden. The nauch party is held in the garden, several dancing girls charming the audience with their sweet songs and showing their best practice in the art of dancing.

4. Washerman's scene—a river flowing by— two asses with a big bundle of clothes on their back—Washerman's joke with asses. A very comic and laughable scene. 5. Tragic scenes toward the close of the drama will be so effective and touching the spectators shed tears-Othello's going with a sword drawn and burying with anger near the bed of Desdemons, her appology and last words are very heart rending—her sighing and

To be followed by a very interesting and laughable farce of chunyan and munyan. I promise to show more than I have written SHAIKH ABDUL GANI

DINING IN OTHER DAYS.

The Hours of Meals and the Use Made of the Fingers. Mr. D'Aroy Power, lecturing at the London institution on "The Meals of Our Ancestors," said the old English had three meals a day, of which the chief meal was taken when the work of the day was finished. The first meal was at 9, dinner was about 3 o'clock, and supper was taken just before bedtime. The Normans dined at the old English breakfast time or a little later and supped at 7 p. m. In Tudor times the higher classes dined at 11 and supped at 5, but the merchants seldem took their meals before 12 and 6 o'clock. The chief meals, dinner and supper, were taken in the hall both by the old English and the Normans, for the parlor did not come into use until the reign of Elizabeth. Breakfast did not become a regular meal until quite lately, and Dr. Murray, in The Oxford Dictionary, gave 1463 as the date of the earliest quotation in which the word occurred. The meal did not become recognized until late in the seventeenth century, for Pepys habitually took his draft of half a pint of Rhenish wine or a dram of strong waters in place of a morning meal. Dinner was always the great meal of the day, and from the accession of Henry IV to the death of Queen Elizabeth the dinners were as sumptuous and extravagant as any of those now Carving was then a fine art. Each guest rought his'own knife and spoon, for the small fork was not introduced into Eng. land until Thomas Corvate of Odcomb published his "Crudities" in 1611. Pepys took his spoon and fork with him to the lord mayor's feast in 1663. The absence of forks led to much stress being laid upon the act of washing the hands both before and after meals and to the rule that the left hand alone should be dipped into the common dish, the right hand being occupied with the knife.

The perfect dinner at the best time of English cookery consisted of three courses, each complete in itself, and terminated by subtlety or device, the whole being rounded off with Ypocras, after which the guests retired into another room, where pastry, sweetmeats and fruit were served with the choicer wines. The English were essentially meat eaters, and it was not until the time of the commonwealth that pudding attained its extraordinary popularity. Indeed the first mention of pudding in the menus of the "Buckfeast"at St. Bartholomew's hospital did not occur until 1710, and in 1719 is an item of 5 shillings for ice.-London Times.

Discovery of the Culture Method. While studying the disease known as fowl cholera, Pasteur having shortly before discovered the particular organism associated with this malady, he was one day unable to obtain a recent or vigorous cultivation of this microbe, and, wishing to communicate the disease to another fowl, he took "faute de mieux," a culture which was old and exhausted. But the fowl inoculated with this enfeebled growth of the microbe, instead of dying, survived the injection, and, moreover, appeared from this time onward to be possessed of some strange and inexplicable charm which rendered it proof against all infection from this disease, for it was able to resist subsequent inoculations with the most virulent and active fowl cholera microbes. Pasteur, convinced that this was no accident, but that he was here face to face with a great and important problem, which, if he could only unravel, might become of immense utility, repeated this chance experiment under numerous different conditions, with the result, now so well known to all, that in his hands the microbe which hitherto had only proved a malignant foe was constrained to become the beneficent protector of the animal

The study of attenuated viruses and vaccines was now vigorously pursued, but so unprepared was the scientific world for this great step that even Robert Koch, at the international medical congress in London, is stated to have exclaimed when, in 1881, Pasteur brought forward his brilliant discovery, "Es ist zu gut um wahr zu sein!"—Longman's Magazine.

Making It Easy.

An American tourist recently tramping through Cornwall met some members of a village church choir returning from rehearsal. He asked one of them what music they had been singing.
The answer was "Handel." "Well," said he, "but don't you find Handel rather difficult?" "Why, no, sir," replied the Cornishman, "not very. You see, we alters him."-New York TribDYSPEPSIA CURED WITH MUSH.

One Man's Experience With This Homely Dish Which May Interest Others. "Do you like that?" inquired one man of his companion at the noonday lunch. The second man had before him a bowl in which there was an island, yellow and mountainous, wholly surrounded by a mimic sea of milk.

"Well, I can't say I do," he replied after a moment's thoughtful rumination, at the same time making a deep sea sounding with his spoon. "But it agrees with me. You notice how much better I look?" His companion nodded. "I weigh 20 pounds more than I did six months ago, and I believe it is all on account of eating mush and milk. I had a terrible time with myself for awhile-gas on the stomach, dull, heavy feeling over the eyes, a taste on the back part of my tongue in the morning. as if I had had a copper cent in my mouth and had been inhaling coal smoke all night and all the rest of it. I was almost unfitted for business half the time, and the worst of it was I didn't seem to care. If there is anything that will take the Chicago right out of a man and make him utterly indifferent as to wheth er school keeps or not, it is this feeling of general cussedness which the doctors call dyspepsia. "I went to the physician who has always looked after my family and told him how I felt. I told him what I ate, when I ate it and how I ate it. He looked at my tongue and said I was in a pretty bad shape. I supposed he would give me a prescription with a lot of marks on it like the bill of a Chinese laundry man, but he didn't. He simply said: Eat mush. If you will eat mush right along for six months, not too much of it, because the dyspeptic has his spells when he wants to take on a load just as a drinker does, but in moderation, you will not have any more trouble. "The doctor weighs 230 pounds and he told me he had two brothers each of whom tipped the beam at about the same figure. They came of Pennsylvania Dutch stock, and he told me were principally raised on smearcase, or what is served here under the more elegant name of 'cottage cheese.' I told my wife what the doctor said, and I have had mush and milk nearly every evening for supper and every morning for breakfast since. As I say, I don't like it, but my dislike for dyspepsia, on the other hand, is positive."-

Stoves are still leading all others. We can state without fear of contradiction there is nothing on the tive, healthy, energetic, bustling people live for a whole day upon the price of a plate of oysters in a fashhave three meals a day-coffee, cakes and either ham or beans or corned beef and beans at each meal, at a cost of not more than 20 cents a meal. They give you bread and butter with the meat, and a fellow has plenty to eat in three such meals. If a fellow is hard pushed, he can get along on 32 cents a day with two meals, with meat, beans, bread and coffee at each. I have known chaps, who have been idle for a long time, to live upon 20 cents a day-corned beef, beans, bread and butter, and water for one meal, and pie and coffee at the other in the evening. A fellow could live all winter on those two meals if he didn't have to juggle cases and barrels and bales of cotton or do heavy work. Thus it may be seen that a man needn't starve who has $1.40 a week to spend on food."-New York Record-

June 21 is the longest day of the year, the day when the sun reaches its northern limit, the tropic of Cancer. At points on the line of the arctic circle there is the wonder of the midnight sun, and many tourists go long distances to witness the sight. It is singular how accurately the semibarbarous nations were able to observe and reckon. On Salisbury plain in England may be seen a cromlech erected by the Druids. It is a circle of huge stones which once formed a temple, but the most interesting part of the structure is the sacrificial stone, which is a broad, flat slab so placed that the rays of Whatever His Nationality He Is Master of One of the most striking features of the genuine Romany is his preservation of the ancient tongue, which has been handed down from parent to child through the long centuries that have elapsed since it was the common language of their people. Wherever true gypsies are found, whether in Spain or Hungary, Greece or England, they still retain some knowledge of the Romany tongue. Their possession of this old time language was the subject of several interesting conversations between myself and my roving friends. They seldom or never used it among themselves, they told me, though they had picked it up from their parents in their youthful days. Sometimes they made use of it when engaged in horse dealing, finding it convenient for making certain matters understood to each other which it would not be to their interest for the purchaser to understand. But apart from such occasions words of the Romany tongue hardly ever cross their lips. I made a point of testing their memory and instruction by means of George Borrow's "Romano Lavoone incident occurred to some of ed in a meadow a short distance from Leeds. A number of Greek gypsies, who had left their native land for the new world, but were not permitted to land and were sent back to Europe, had a short time before landed at Liverpool and were
