"You tell us the great cities are in favor of the gold standard. Burn down your great cities and leave your tarms, and your cities will grow up again. But destroy our farms and the grass will grow in | when the money question is considevery city of the Union."-From Wm. J. Bryan's speech before Democratic National Convention.

"I am for McKinley, Russell and Gold," says Oscar J. Spears, one Elector-at-Large.

COCKRAN ON SLAVEHOLDERS. - Will you submit to this conspiracy between the professional farmers, the farmers who cultivate the quarrels of their neighbhrs, farmers who labor with their jaws, Populist agitators of the West, and the unreconciled slave-holders of the South? This is a conspiracy between professional farmers, who want to pay low wages, and the unreconciled slave-holders, who would like to pay no wages at all. - (Extract from the speech of Bourke Cockran, delivered in New York August 18th.)

THE BUSINESS INTERESTS.

Ninety-nine per cent. of the contentions of the opponents of free silver is based on assumption, pure and simple. They assume that free silver would be disastrous to the "business interests" of the country and therefore the gold standard must be adhered to. They have a somewhat peculiar idea as to what constitutes our business interests. They seem to think that it is the men who run the banks, the stock jobbing establishments, the middlemen and the manufacturers who constitute the "business elements" of the country, utterly oblivious of the men who produce the stuff that makes the bulk of our commerce, the crude material out of which our manufactured products are formed and the skilled labor which transforms this material into finished form and gives it the additional value which it acquires in that

The farmer who raises wheat, corn, pork, beet, &c., is as much a "business" man as the grain or beef buyer who buys the grain or beef to sell again. When it comes to the employment of capital, the business men of the farm have thousands of dollars invested in their business to the one invested by the buyers of their products. Has the many millions of capital lavested in the farming industry or "business" no right to put in its claims when the capital in other and less productive kinds of business claims that it only is entitled to consideration?

Isn't the man who digs and smelts the ore that comes out of the mine as much of a business man as he whose business it is to melt these metals and cast them into shapes for the uses for which they are designed? Mr. Mark Hanna is an iron manufacturer but he is no more a business man than the men who dig out of the mine the iron which he uses. He profit, that's all.

man who runs the spindles and looms, and when it comes to the aggregate value of the lint produced it is a queer idea of business that $300,000,000 worth of it annually, and expend nearly as much annually in producing it, among the business men of the country. They are quite as much business men as the men who speculate in this staple, or buy it to convert into fabrics, and profit more by it. About the only difference between these two branches of papers which used them? That duces the cotton which the others is was subsidizing all the same. As handle either for sale in its crude for buying United States Senatorform or in the finished form. When ships that has been pretty much the it comes to the matter of the capital invested and employed, there is more money invested in the production of cotton than there is in the manufacture and handling of it by others than the produces.

When we consider our foreign commerce which gives employment to many thousands of men, that makes "business" for the ships and gives employment to the capital invested in ships, eighty per cent. of it consists of products of the business of the farm, which, according to these gentlemen, does not figure in their business catalogue at all, and the rest consists of products of the soil or in articles manufactured from these products. As we see it, these gentlemen, if they would classify correctly, will have to revise their catalogue of the "business interests," considerably enlarge the scope and change the relative positions very considerably from the present arrangement. How does it happen that the man engaged in the lending of money is more of a "business" man than the thousands to whom he lends money? Are not these thousands as much interested in the laws which regulate the issuing of that money and in defining its qualities and powers and uses as he is? Each one may possibly not have precisely the same amount of interest in it that he has, but in the aggregate they have quite as much, are quite as much interested and if anything more so, for while with him it is simply a matter of profit, with them it is a matter of vital importance. His interest is to have money scarce so that it may command a high price, that his profits may be larger, while their interest is to have money abundant that it may be the more easily procured, give labor and production more employment and more encouragement and better compensation.

In common with millions of our fellow citizens we contend that ered from a "business" standpoint (and that is the standpoint from which it should be considered) every business should have fair play and an impartial hearing and that no of the Republican candidates for few special callings should arrogate o themselves the right to be considered the only "business" worth figuring in the premises and the only ones which have within them intelligence enough to say how our monetary systems shall be formed or of what our money shall consist. The gold handler and those who agree with him, may demand gold exclusively, but other men engaged in different pursuits, whose business is crippled by adhering to the gold standard have just as much right and better reason for demanding a broader and less monopolistic system, one which will give them a better showing and in their opinion the country more prosperity.

MINOR MENTION.

As the anti-Bryan organs can' help it they are compelled to accept Mr. Bryan's denial of the charge that he had been in the pay of the silver mine owners, in advocating free silver. They accept it but in a style which clearly shows that they are sorry that the charge wasn't true. The following "acceptance" we clip from the New York Adver-

Mr. Bryan's denial of the charge that he has been hired by silver mine owners to deliver free coinage speeches will be accepted as final by fair-minded persons of every shade of political belief. The Chicago candidate is explicit and emphatic in his statement, and in order that there may be no lingering doubt about the matter he volunteers to produce his personal accounts if it should become necessary. Nothing more could

At the same time it is not at all strange that the accusation against the repudiationist candidate should have been widely credited. It is notorious that the siland orators all over the country. that paign. - Washington Post, Ind. they have poured out money lavishly for the election of United States Senators and Representatives in Congress, and that they maintain numerous "literary" bureaus. If Mr. Bryan has felt humili ated over the fact that many of his countrymen regarded him as the paid agent of these men it has been owing to his unfortunate associations.

"Nothing more could be asked" as to Mr. Bryan's denial, but some questions may be asked suggested by this second paragraph, which simply an indirect apology for the original lie and an excuse for disseminating it. How does this organ know that the "silver" barons" have subsidized newspapers and orators all over the country, that they have poured out money lavishly for the election of United States Senators and Representatives in Congress and that they maintain numerous "literary bureans?" If all this be "notorious" there should be no difficulty simply employs more capital and in giving the names of at least some puts the finishing touch on the busi- of the newspapers, and some of the ness that they do and reaps a larger orators. This might have been done at the same time that the alleged carefully into the conditions of the The cotton planter who raises the discovery was made as to Mr. Bryan fusion in many of the Western States lint for the spindle and loom is quite and this lie propagated. What as much of a business man as the stronger argument against the silver men could be produced than a showing up like that? But assuming that there may be some truth in this who foots the expenses of the numerous does not class the men who produce orators who have been carrying on the campaign of education for the gold men? Who has been footing the bills of the "literary" bureau they have been running? As for the "subsidized newspapers," how about all that "gold" plate matter, patent print and "supplements" that were sent out by the ton to thousands of order of the day in the North for some years, and we rather think from the number of silver Senators from that side that the gold men have got away with them.

It is reported that Comptroller Eckels and Secretary Morton will be at the Indianapolis Convention. We think this quite likely for we do not see how they could hold such a convention and run it without Mr. Eckels, whatever it might do without "Junk" Morton. We give precedence here to Mr. Eckels' name because that is the order in which the press dispatch heralding this important piece of information puts it. The surprising thing to us is that in all the discussion of the prospective Presidential candidate of this combine of illustrions and unillustrious kickers Mr. Eckels' name has never been mentioned even for the second place, which we say is strange considering the estimate which that gentleman puts on himself, the tireless energy and the colossal ability he has shown in working his jaws for the men whom he expects to get employment from after he has got through his present job. But perhaps, like Bryan, he is too young. But again, perhaps he is not ambitious and that he is giving his friends the benefit of his sage counsel and directing wisdom out of sheer, undiluted patriotism, of which he doubtless contains as much as a statesman of his calibre can hold. It would be safe to wager that, barring accidents, he will be there, and very

One of the so called arguments against the free coinage of silver, not only free coinage, but any coinage at all save for subsidiary money, (for that is what it amounts to) is that the silver dollars will not circulate, that they remain in the Treasury, which issues silver certificates, which some of the gold organs call "warehouse certificates." Would some of these organs be good enough to tell us how much gold there is in circulation? As a matter of convenience paper based on coin and convertible into coin is preferable for ordinary use in the every day transactions, to either gold or silver. It is not prejudice against either gold or silver, but simply because the people prefer the lighter and more convenient paper. But as a matter of fact there are more silver dollars in actual circulation than there is gold, and there would be still more if there were not such persistent and concerted effort made by the gold men to keep silver out of circulation, and then assert that it isn't in circulation because the people do not want it and will not

The Philadelphia Ledger, gold organ, cheerfully accepts Mr. Bryan's denial, that he had been, as charged by a Chicago paper in the pay of the silver mine owners, which charge was given prominence to by the indirect endorsement of Senator Thruston, of Nebraska, and remarks that "even those who disagree with Mr. Bryan's political views will be gratified to know that he has not been the subsidized orator of the silver mine and gulch owners." Judging from the alacrity with which the organs opposed to Mr. Bryan spread and gave prominence to this lie, we doubt that they will be gratified at its refutation. On the contrary, we think they would have been delighted if it had been true or if the lie

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

- Oxford Ledger: Mrs. Samuel I. Currin died near Stovall Monday evening, after a lingering illness of consumption. -- After an illness of several weeks with fever Miss Lizzie Overby passed over the River of Death early Friday, 14th inst. She was 26 years of age and daugh ter of Mr. David Overby, of Sassa fras Fork township.

- Rutherford Democrat: Charley Langston, of Sandy Springs, met with an accident last Saturday which caused his death. He was employed at Lockhart's Shoals to run the steamboat. His leg become entan-gled in a rope and was so badly broken that the doctor found it necessary to amputate it, and administered chloroform. He died under the operation.

- Asheboro Courier: A lad 15 years old in Guilford county, accompanied by some other boys, recently passed near a field of corn. The boy pulled an ear of corn, shucked it, and as he walked along the road commenced to eat the corn. They met the owner of the corn, who accused the lad of stealing the corn, The boy told him he had taken but one ear, that he was hungry, and that he would pay him for it. The owner said he would indict bim for it, and went before I. A. Pritchard, a justice of the peace, and swore out a warrant and had the boy arrested, and the fustice bound him over to the Superior Court. - Wadesboro Messenger: The size of the vote cast in the Democratic primary last Saturday is very gratifying to all Democrats. It was the largest primary ever held in the county, and two hundred more votes were cast than were counted in the primary two years ago. This means that the Anson Democracy is in better shape now than it has been since 1892, and this being so it follows as a matter of course that victory will perch upon its banner in November. -The M. & I. has made inquiry as to the condition of cotton and it be lieves that it is safe in saying that not more than two-thirds of an average crop will be made in this county this year. Not half as much will be made as the condition of the plant a month ago indicated. Farmers say that never before did they know cotton to lose condition as rapidly as it did during the hot dry weather two weeks ago. The truth of the matter is the immense damage to the crop cannot be appreciated by those who have not personally examined into it.

- Gastonia Gazette : There was big wind and rain storm at Mt. Holly last Friday afternoon. There was a tremendous down-pour of rain. The wind was terrific. Trees were torn up and the people greatly frightened. The Methodist church was almost totally demolished. So complete was the wreck that entirely new material will have to be used in rebuilding. -- The death of Mr. Columbus Thornburg last Monday night was sudden and strange. That afternoon he was in Gastonia apparently as well as ever. He Mr. Tom Skidmore and Mr. Bradley Holland in the wagon with him. Near the White church on the Dallas road he was taken very sick and the other men had to drive. He rapidly grew worse along the way and died at ten o'clock that night, about an hour after reaching home. Dr. Jenkins was called but the case defied medical skill. Mr. Thornton was conscious up to the final convulsion which ended in death. He said he had eaten nothing on the trip, but had taken a drink of soda water at one of the fountains. This, he said, had made him sick from the time he drank it. About his last words were

Source of the Emperor's Jokes The German emperor has a trick of annexing good things that may be said in his presence and using them afterward without inverted commas, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. In this way a certain German officer acquired the name of "purveyor of jokes to his majesty." The title is said to have reached the imperial ears, and William II snubbed his jester back to obscurity-a thing which Punchinello never forgave. The emperor and the officer meeting about a year afterward, the emperor said with much affability, "Well, K--, I'm ready to swallow more of your good things." "Your majesty is to be congratulated upon your digestion," said the ironical K-, "since you never bring any of them up again." K-
