Mr. McKinley	ment who were soliciting the Mc- Kinley campaign managers to sing low on the tariff so that they might have an excuse for voting for Mc- Kinley are doubtless sorely disap- pointed at the cavalier way in which their overtures have been met and they themselves snubbed. Their overtures have not only been con- temptuously ignored, but they have in some instances been insultingly sat upon. It may be their own fault that they have put themselves in a position to be thus rebuffed and per- haps they have no right to complain, but the New York Sun doubtless voices their sentiments when it pro- tests against Democrats who thought of taking the advice of the Sun and voting for McKinley being insulted as they were by the Republican can- didate for Governor of New York when in his speech in the State con- vention he said: A man who for the past ten years has voted the Democratic ticket in the State of New York is beyond prayers.
