BATTLESHIP TEXAS.

Court of Isquiry Held With Giosed Doors. By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 .- It is stated at the Navy Department, in extenuation of the fact that the court of inquiry on the battleship Texas is being held with closed doors, that it is not thought ad-visable to give publicity to the possible weakness in the ship just at the present juncture when the eyes of other nations are directed to our naval and military establishments. It is learned that the investigation is developing evidance of somewhat startling nature about the structural strength of the ship's hull, which has caused so much concern since her keel was laid. The most remarkable thing about the recent flooding of the ship was that the water tight doors leaked and other compartments were flooded in addition to that extent when the accident occurred.

"A man can't always tell how things "A man can't always tell how things are going to turn out," said the retired burgiar. "Sometimes when they look most promising some little thing may happen that just upsets the whole cala-bash. I remember very well one night go-ing into a house where I found about as beautiful a lot of silver as I ever saw. I got together on the dinning room table as much of this stuff as I could carry off and much of this stuff as I could carry off, and I was just beginning to get it into shape to make a bundle which I could get through the cellar window that I'd come it at when I heard the awfulest racket in the kitchen you ever heard of. Then I heard a man jumping out of bed overhead and making for the stairs. «I couldn't see him, but I could guess what sort of a man he was easy enough from his step, carry-ing a gun and a darned sight more likely to use it than most burglars would be. "Of course there wasn't anything to do but to git. I hated to leave that stuff on the table there all ready to pack up, but there wasn't anything else to do. Going through the kitchen on the way to the cel-iar stairs, I tumbled over something that made so much noise you'd ha' thought a tin factory had fell down. I kloked it over against the side of the room, and I wished I could have kicked it through the side of the house.
