ABOUT GOLF. The Game Gaining in Popularity-Officers

tional and null and void, but that the remaining portions of the said act are good and valid. the Cape Fear Golf Club. Among the many sports in America o-day there is one which is fast coming o the front and continually gaining in popularity. Golf, as this game is termed, is a pastime almost peculiar to Scotland, and is one of the oldest of its class, as it appears to have been greatly in favor during the reigns of James I, and Charles I. In 1876 Prince Leopold was elected captain of St. Andrew's Royal Club, and the rules laid down by St. Andrew's Royal and Ancient Union Club generdant H. Coleman Twining; that James ally govern all associations and contests. Of late years golf seems to have obtained a strong foothold in this country. After one has fully entered into the pastime he finds it possesses no ordinary fascination, and it is a game in which the old and the young can successfully compete and display their strength and energy in driving long balls. Of course few attain to great excellence, but crack players will drive a ball over 200 yards. The most essential qualities for a player to possess is an exact eye, a steady and measured stroke for short distances, muscular developments for making long drives and skill in avoiding hazards (golfing "labels"). Golf derives its name from the club, of which there are about six different kinds, with which it is played. W. Strange, John D. Bellamy, Esq., Ju-Wilmington, not to be outdone, has also a golf club, known as the Cape Fear Golf Club. The club practices every afternoon at their grounds near Hilton Park, which have been laid off and fitted up in every way. Tuesday and Friday afternoons the club generally hold tournaments, and a handicap tournament is booked for this week. The club has a membership of about fortyfive ladies and gentlemen, two of whom, Mr. Geo. Rountree and Mr. M. F. H.
