HOME INSURANCE.

We have written in these columns on the importance of sustaining home enterprises as much as possible and thus keeping at home our money, in- tinguishing fires when they hapstead of sending it out of the State, thus keeping ourselves short of guish. money and complaining of the scarcity of it. If the South kept at home the many millions of dollars that go out of it to pay for what could, with proper effort, be furnished at munity, but we could have at least home, we would not suffer from the one in the State, under the manscarcity of money as we do now, and agement of some of our wealthiest we might have something to draw and best known business men, upon to develop our resources and whose names would be a guarstart new enterprises. antee to the public. We spend money in various ways, as a people, and send it to other States, and some of it to other countries, when with proper effort we could keep much of it at home. One of these ways is for insurance on life and property. How much the South sends out in this way we do not know, but it goes way up into the millions annually. We do not know how much North Carolina sends out, but the following, which we clip from the Raleigh Post, throws some light on that: According to the North Carolina Insurance Report for 1898, showing the business done in this State for 1897. compiled from annual statements, we find there was paid by our people for that year alone:

THE SILENT MARCH.

MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

When the march beglas in the morn ing And the heart and the foot are light, When the flags are all a flutter And the world is gay and bright, When the bugles lead the column And the drums are proud in the van, It's shoulder to shoulder, forward march! And let him lag who can.

For it's easy to march to music When your comrades are in line, And you don't get tired, you feel inspired, And life is a draught divine.

When the march drags on at evening And the color bearer's gone, When the merry strains are silent That piped so brave in the dawn; When you miss the dear old fellows Who started out with you, When it's stubborn and sturdy forward march!

Though the ragged lines are few.

Then it's hard to march in silence, And the road has lonesome grown, And life is a bitter cup to drink; But the soldier must not moan.

And this is the task before us. A task that we may never shirk, In the gay time and the sorrowful time We must march and do our work. We must march when the music cheers us. March when the strains are dumb.

Plucky and valiant, forward march! And smile, whatever may come.

For, whether life's hard or easy, The stronger man keeps the pace, For the desolate and the silent The strong soul finds the grace.

DOWN FOR YOUND MALKON FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

A PRETTY gown originally designed for home comfort, but which may, if f rich material, be allowed to do duty as a tea gown or be used by a convaescent, is of pale blue nuns' veiling. The back of the garment, which is easyfitting, is of princesse form, and is made upon a fitted model lining. The front of the gown is made with a plain yoke, upon which the full skirt is gathered, he gathering being gently distributed across the entire width of the front From under the collar long stoles, twenty two inches wide at the bottom, fall quite to the foot of the gown. These may be as elaborate or as plain as may be desired, and of single widths of silk or a divided breadth of the veiling. In the present instance the latter material is chosen, the stoles having insertion applied at intervals throughout their length, and the lower edge being finished with deep lace ruffles The wide Medici collar and the lower collar, which assumes almost the proportions of a cape, are correspondingly trimmed. The bottom of the garment is made with a demi train, and may be finished with a simple hem or, a pinked ruffle of the veiling or any preferred mode of trimming. If a drop skirt be desired it may be made separately, and belted or put upon a sliding tape, according to individual desire. The proper cut of this gown, reproduced from HARPER'S BAZAR, can be obtained only by the use of HARPER'S BAZAR cut patterns.

To make this costume for a medium sized person 7 yards of veiling 44 aches wide will be required, or 15 yards of silk 22 inches wide.

In using this model for a cloth costume the skirt will give more complete satisfaction if made up entirely without stiffening except for a crinoline band

The Post, which believes in encouraging and sustaining home institutions, very pertinently asks, "why not keep this money at home?" About the only plausible answer we should not go in view of the difknow to this question is that a determined effort has not been made to keep it at home. By this we mean that there has been no co-operation among our people, that they found the insurance field occupied by companies from other States, and that with a few exceptions they have permitted these companies to hold it, while our capitalist and others who had money to invest looked in other directions for investment. This is somewhat singular for as a matter of fact it takes less money to endangering the lives of our soldiers, establish insurance companies than it does manufactories, the only necessity for the use of much money being in the event of loss. Of course the men who establish insurance companies must be able to command the money to meet the demands upon them, but they can do this without having the actual cash put up. There are few of the insurance companies in the North that have not a large and perhaps the larger part of their "capital" loaned, so forward with the necessary amount. that they practically run a banking business as well - as an insurance business and this is where much of their profit comes from. In time the insurance companies established in the South might also render our people similar service by loaning to have read Mr. Tompkins' contribu-

Possibly they may think there is danger of war, and are now pleading on that line, and yet they have persistently refused to say one word that would quiet the apprehensions of the Filipinos, and put this country in a position where it would need no apology or defence. It is true that the future relations of this country with the Philippine islands are a matter to be determined by the Congress of the United States, speaking and acting for the people, but this does not prevent this Congress from making declaration of its views as to what that policy should be, and as to the lim-

COTTON MARKETS. 7 0 73 By Telegraph to the Morning Star. 1234 8 634 NEW YORK, January 28.-Sentiment 6340 on the Cotton Exchange continues of a pronounced bullish character. This was demonstrated beyond all question this morning when prices moved up four to five points in the face of weak English cables. The 0 1 20 0 1 10 0 22 market opened steady in tone with near months one to two points lower, and far months unchanged to two points higher. After a brief period of hesitation investment buyiug set in on a large scale and sent prices up with a rush. Shorts were dismayed by this unlooked for action of the market and made a lively scramble to cover, thus adding to the firmer undertone. The bad weather and further check to preparations for the new crop tended to materially strengthen the spot markets and offerings to-day were reported as 1-16c to tc higher. NEW YORK, January 28.-Cotton uiet and steady; middling uplands Cotton futures market closed firm, with prices one to three points higher: January 6.13c, February 6.14c, March 5.15c, April 6.18c, May 6.21c, June 6.21c, July 6 23c.
