The Prisoner From Rowan. Deputy Sheriff Monroe, of Rowan county, was here yesterday for the young man Curllee, who was placed in jail Thursday charged with arson. Lots of Fun at "Finnigan's Ball."

A large audience witnessed the presentation of "Finnigan's Ball," by the famous Irish comedians, Murray and Mack, at the Opera House last night, and every one pronounced the "Ball" a thorough success as a mirtyprovoking farce comedy.

Throughout the performance-during the "quiet morning on Finnigan's bunlevard," "at W. A. L. and K depot," and "at Finnigan's Ball," the three acts of the comedy-there was a constant succession of funny situation, brightened by an easy flow of Irish wit. There were also a number of interesting specialties which were well received. Murray and Mack's "Finnigan's Ball" made a pleasing impression in Wilmington and will be well patronized should they play a return engagement.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Fittingly Observed by Hibernian Society and Wilmingtonians Generally.

ADDRESS BY MR. JOHN DYER.

Delivered Before the Hibernian Society Yesterday-Officers Elected-President Reilly's Report Made Considerable Showing.

St. Patrick's Day was, as usual, fittingly observed in Wilmington yesterday, the most important features of the observance being the ceremonies by the Hibernian Society and the service at St. Thomas' pro-cathedral. Then, too, there was the wearing of Ireland's national flower, the "shamrock." or the national color, green, not only by the Irish element of Wilmington's citizenship, but by the people generally, without regard to nationality, who have learned, by intimate association, the sterling worth of

St. Patrick's Day is the anniversary of the Hibernian Society and at 9 o'clock vesterday morning the members assembled at Hibernian Hall and marched in a body to St. Thomas' pro-cathedral where, at 9:30 o'clock mass was said and Father Dennen de livered an eloquent and highly appropriate address, in which he reviewed the life and work of St. Patrick, emphasising the great service he rendered their country in their hour of great

After the service the Hibernian Society marched back to Hibernian Hall where the annual business meeting was held. The society was called to order about 11 o'clock by President J. W. Reilley, who submitted a very gratifying report of the work accomplished during the past year. The report made an especially good showing of the good accomplished by caring for the sick and other channels of fraternal work.

Father O'Brien was called upon for a speech and spoke for several minutes, referring especially to St. Patrick's Day, and commending the work of the Hibernian Society as reviewed in the president's report.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was held and resulted in the re-election of Mr. J. W. Reilly president and Dr. T. B. Carroll as vice president. Mr. William Flanagan, the efficient secretary during last year, declined re-election, and Mr. Frank P. Donlan was elected in his stead Mr. Wm. Sheehan, Jr., was elected treasurer and Mr. Wm Sheenan, Sr., standard-bearer.

One of the most notable features of the meeting was the annual address, delivered by Mr. John Dyer. It was most heartily received by the Society. Mr. Dyer said:

Ireland's sons, wherever they may be scattered in different parts of the world, will not forget to celebrate the anniversary of St. Patrick's day; their thoughts will naturally be turned to their native land; they will think of her ancient glories as a nation of freemen, governed by their own legitimate Kings, by just and equitable laws at a time when the most of the nations of Europe were only semi-barbarians, when as a nation she was famed for learning and piety and superior civilization; when her people virtually owned the land, and paid a moderate tax for the support of government. The people were happy and contented, until by unfortunate circumstances England. usurper that she is, gained a foothold and laid the foundation of her present woes. Not content by taking away her liberties, suppressing her history and language, but she has presumed to write her history, intended to cover up her bad government of that unhappy country. Even the celebrated historians, Froude and Lecky, have been compelled to admit the unjustifi able and despotic government of the Irish by England, yet strange to these same men, while ad mitting these facts, are opposed to home rule, which can easily be accounted for, as they are not willing to give up Protestant ascendancy. All the government positions are monopolized by that class; Catholics are excluded from all and every office except to those who turn traitors to their country. But John Bull, with characteristic egotism, imagines his opinions are in-fallible, his government perfect, and that his mission is to rule the world; write the history of other nations. The English snob visits the United States, and, like Dickens and others, spends a short time in forming his opinions, judges us by his own nar-row standard, goes back to England writes about us, and criticises us with out mercy. Nothing pleases him. He considers us a nation of semi-barba-rians, mere plebians without character or noble lineage. We think that such people had better stay at home, and enjoy their imagined English heaven, and not trouble themselves about out-

But then they pity us and think that an alliance with us might possibly civan alliance with us might possibly civilize us, and give them an opportunity to present to us their grand system of government that would give us correct ideas how to manage affairs; namely, to learn the art of dissimilation, robbery and hypocrisy; to establish caste and a titled nobility, such as they boast about as being descended from a long about, as being descended from a long line of ancestral robbers, buccaneers and pirates.

the Anglo-Saxon race these days.
Why, the ruling classes of England are ashamed of the name. Ask any of them from whom they are descended and they are sure to claim descent from that usurper, William, the Norman, or from some of his hired assassins, who conquered England and enslaved the Saxons and put the iron collar around their necks, confiscated their property, but graciously permit-ted the humblec lass to remain as clothown people, yet talks of constitutional government. Its constitution is not written nor well defined, but rests on precedent, and may be changed by act of parliament, always in the interest of the governing class.

The Barons of Runymead were Normans, not Saxons, who held their pressed by an organized system of and regular delivery.

titles from the Norman King. One hundred years after the Normans landed, they forced King John to sign magna charta, the first document that gave England anything approximating to liberty. But since our war with Spain, great change has come over the gov-erning class in England in reference to us, all at once. Instead of looking on Americans as low-born pleblans and using every opportunity to show their contempt of us, they have pro-fessedly become our most ardent friends, and are so fond of us, that they are clamoring for an alliance with the United States. Since we have proven our capacity in war as well as in peaceful government, John Bull thinks that an alliance would greatly benefit both nations. Hence, he patronizingly claims us as Anglo-Saxons, who speak the same language and whose interests are identical, and from his fulsome admiration of us we would suppose he was very anxious to take us under his fatherly protection. But intelligent Americans who know the history of their country, and being well acquainted with his character, have not much faith in his professed friendship. They cannot forget when he waged an unjust war against us, burned our capitol and nassacred our people, and has proven himself to be our natural enemy. We are inclined to think that America as a nation is perfectly able to stand alone without the aid of England or any other despotic power. This re-public has maintained its existence for more than a century, in spite of the adverse prophecying of European na-tions, and, although we do not claim perfection in government, but need a good many reforms, still we believe that the United States is the best government that exists in the world at the present day; that our constitution is the most perfect instrument of government that has ever been written. If the mission of the United States is to put an end to tyranny and relieve he peoples of oppressed nations from despotism, as some enthusiatists seem to think, we would respectfully sug-gest that while Uncle Sam's hand is in he go over to Ireland and help her to self from the yoke of England. England's oppression of that country is quite as bad, nay worse, than the late Spanish rule in Cuba. If he did this philantrophic act he would be helping to freedom a people who have al-ways been friendly to the United States, who rendered all the assistance in their power to America during the war of independence, and whose labors, of brawn and brain, have helped to build up this great Republic. Of course our would be friend John Bull would object to this, and deny that the land is oppressed, and yet he conwelve million five hundred thousand dollars annually. He has totally refused to stop this robbery, notwithstanding the earnest protest of all parties. Even Leckey, the celebrated historian, who is a member for Trinity College, Dublin, and belongs to the Tory party, has denounced that robbery; also many fair minded Englishmen of note have done the same

Ireland was one of the first to ac knowledge American independence. and has more claim on the United States than either Cubans or Philipinos. England may try her best to from any love of us, but from her morbid selfishness. She would like very much to have the United States to help her to fight her aggressive wars, at a time when she has not one friend among the nations of Europe. But then she kindly calls us Anglo-Sax-ons, and claims that blood is thicder than water. All American citizens are glad that we have driven Spanish tyranny out of Cuba, and her other colonies. While thankful for this great achievement of American arms, we hope the United States will not carry on aggressive warfare like the nations of Europe, or turn pirate, like our old enemy England. We believe righteousness exalteth a nation, and hope our rulers will turn their attention to the grievances of her own people. There are monopolies in trade, and unjust trusts, and monied influence, class legislation, capital does not deal fairly with trade, the people are dissatisfied because they are unjustly dealt with. Let the government make laws that would make all the above mentioned evils impossible. Do away with laws that benefit the rich and oppress the poor. Let our Senators and Congressmen be pure, good men, and not political party tricksters, who care not for the people's interest, but for their own selfish gains; purge herealt of her political party and then selfself of her political sins, and then she will be in a condition to do some good in the world. Having done the best she could for her own people, she would be in a position to sympathize with the oppressed everywhere.

But we are told by enthusiastic Anlo-maniacs, that an alliance with England would be the means of inaugurating the millenium. This class of Americans have more faith in England than they have in their own country, and were it possible, at this late day, would vote for us to become subjects of England. But if England desires an alliance with us, she had hetter be consistent before this compact is made. She ought to humble herself before the Great Ruler of the universe and repent of her political sins and disgorge her ill-gotten gains and restore, as far as she is able, and make amends for her piratical acts. Let her do justice to her own people by making needed reforms, abolish the House of Lords, improve the land laws, so that the people can live and prosper on them, and raise them from niserable serfs to a free and independent people. Let her give liberty to Ireland, that has been oppressed for seven centuries, and when she has made a clean breast of it by confessing her manifold political sins, then it would be time enough to beg for an alliance with the United States, when she gives justice to Ireland and allows her to be governed by her own people. We think it would be good policy for her to make friends with Ireland, as the Irish are agenerous people, and would forgive all her op-pressions, and England could count on We hear a great deal of talk about he Anglo-Saxon race these days. Why, the ruling classes of England are ashamed of the name. Ask any her in the ranks of her enemies, just the same as they fought against her at the battle of Fontenoy and caused her the battle of Fontenoy and caused her defeat. The Irish brigade, who after an Irish rebellion entered the service of France, and when they met the English on the battlefield, their war cry was "Remember Limerick, the city of the violated treaty." The King of England was on the battlefield and ing to the soil, or as a part thereof, reducing them to serfdom. This is the government that has enslaved its saw the valor of the Irish brigade. was informed that they were his former Irish subjects. He exclaimed, "cursed are the laws that have deprived me of such noble and gallant subjects." But those cursed laws that drove the Irish brigade into exile and into the service of France still exist in men that take no interest in the wel-fare of their tenants. The people have been driven off the best lands to fur-nish pasture for cattle, and those who cannot pay unjust rents for their poor holdings are evicted, driven out to die on the roadside. The government of England upholds these robbers by the strong arm of unjust laws. The Irish are a more patient, people than they are a more patient people than they get credit for, and were it not that they heed the pacific advice of their clergy those robber landlords would have been made to bite the dust long ere this. Living under a government that professes to give civilization and religion to those unfortunate countries under its, misrule. This is the true character of the na tion that wants an alliance with this republic. It will be a sad day for America if that alliance is ever con-In reference to the situation in Ire land at present, the government has refused to stop the overtaxation of the $12,500,000, more than Ireland's share, and I suppose this robbery will still go on until when Ireland forces home rule from this dastardly robber government. In order to stop the agitation for home rule they have grant-ed the county council bill. This measure is a step in the right direction, and will give the people a chance to say how their counties shall be gov erned. There seems to be a spir.t of determination among the peo ple to demand the land, and compel the landlords to sell and rent their lands to tenants at fair rates. In order to accomplish this they have formed an Irish league. This league is well established in several counties and bids fair to extend to all the thirty two counties. All political parties are uniting in this. The boycott is to be freely used against land grabbers. Wm. O'Brien is the chosen leader, a man every way fit, as an organizer, orator and patriot, endorsed by Michael Davitt as the right man in the right place. Already this league has produced good results in preventing landgrabbing. The people are very much encouraged and are hopeful of brighter and better times in the future.

Medical Society Last Night. An enthusiastic and well attended meeting of the Wilmington Medical Society was held last night at the office of Dr. McMillan, on Princess street. The president, Dr. W. C. Galloway, presided, and many subjects of interest to the medical fraternity were discussed. The feature of the programme was the reading of a practical, very interesting and carefully prepared paper on Hygiene in its Relation to the Causes of Disease," by Dr. Zachary. The paper consisted of a demonstration of some of the ways, which hygiene both private and public, is connected with the duties of the general practitioner. The subject was presented under three sub-divisions, "Causes of Disease." "Means of Discovery," and "Method of Prevention," the first topic being further sub-divided assigning at the primeval causes of disease, "impure air," "impure water," and "habitation." The subject was very comprehensively treated and local applications made by the theories suggested. Dr. Zachary received many compliments upon his truly interesting paper.
