Don Paul is equipping himself to do some vigorous kicking. He is buying mules.

The receipts of the Suez canal last year were $17,581,200. American ships didn't contribute much of this, but American cargoes did a considerable.

Young Cornelius Vanderbilt has an inventive turn of mind, and has invented among other things a loco motive, which is now being built after his drawings.

In ex-Mrs. Langtry's new play she is made to say, "I ought to have been a man." If she had been she would have escaped the volumes of unsavory stuff that have been published about her.

The city of Toronto spent $2,400,000 on a new municipal building, and then the city fathers were struck by an economy freak and are haggling over the amount of money they shall spend in the christening.

The weather in Paris is said to have been so hot last Saturday that it melted the lead on the roofs of houses. Judging from the capering over there it must also have melted the brains in a good many Frenchmen.

Gen. Merritt expresses the opinion that with 50,000 troops Gen. Otis will be able to put down the "rebellion" in the Philippines. But he does not venture to go on record as to the time it will take Otis to do it.

Commander St. John, or Sin Jin, says he didn't criticize Gen. Otis, and that he didn't do it for publication anyhow. Some wicked, long eared reporter overheard him talking to himself and went off and published it.

A Western exchange remarks that while President McKinley is recuperating at Lake Champlain, the plumber is going through the White House, and when the bill is presented him he will have some realizing sense of the inadequacy of a $50,000 salary. But as he doesn't foot plumber's bills he can plumb away, and he will not worry over their bills.

According to a letter from an officer in the Twentieth Kansas, the much lauded Gen. Funston won most of his glory in the press dispatches. Those facts that gave him fame this officer pronounces fakes, the creation of a correspondent whom Funston keeps with him and gives soft snaps as a quid pro quo for the fakes he builds.

Metts and Mr. A. S. Holden. Separate Apartments for Races.

Newbern Journal: In the report of the Criminal Court proceedings, published in this issue of the Journal, will be noted a motion of somewhat unusual character, and yet its approval by the judge presiding and its prompt adoption shows that it was a motion well made. The motion was made by D. L. Ward, Esq., a leading lawyer of the Newbern bar, that the white and colored people who attended the court sessions should be separated, and Judge Dossey Battle promptly made it an order of the court that places should be reserved for whites and blacks separately in the court room.

Accident to the Onida.

A Press dispatch to the STAR last night from Galilee, New Jersey, says: "The Clyde line steamer Onida from Wilmington, N. C., for New York, broke her propeller shaft and is anchored fifteen miles south of Absecon. A life saving crew from Absecon light has gone to her."

NAMING THE PRICE OF COTTON.

[Raleigh News and Observer.]
Mr. A. B. Williams, one of the first business men of the Cape Fear section, has an article in the Fayetteville Observer urging cotton ginners to make a uniform rate of cotton 24 1/2 inches. He says:
"The round bale people are doing their utmost to establish the round bale, and if successful in their efforts, the cotton farmer will be completely in their hands. The certainty of a royalty to them of $1.00 per bale and the naming of the price to be paid for cotton are what they are aiming at. That is exactly, John E. Searies would never have left the Sugar Trust and taken hold of the round bale if he did not expect to coin millions by cornering the market. The Southern farmers are not averse to improvement in baling cotton. They would welcome all improvements, but they will not put their neck in the halter of the round bale trust."

The East Carolina Real Estate Agency has excellent facilities for selling farms and timbered lands. It advertises all property and makes only a nominal charge unless a sale is made. For terms etc., address R. G. Grady & Co., Burgaw, N. C.

MRS. VAN AMRINGE DEAD.

Died Yesterday Morning After a Brief Illness—Funeral To-morrow.

At the VanAmringe home, No. 608 Orange street, early yesterday morning, Mrs. Fannie Wallace VanAmringe died, having been seriously ill only a short time.

It was only a few days ago that Mrs. VanAmringe was down town shopping and many of her friends were not even aware that she was dangerously ill. She was 55 years of age and her health had been rather poor for several months, no one having any idea, however, that death was so soon to claim her as a victim.

The deceased was the widow of the late Stacy VanAmringe and a daughter of Stephen D. Wallace, deceased. A son and a daughter, Mr. Cyrus VanAmringe and Miss Fannie VanAmringe, survive her, as does a sister, Mrs. Emily Davis, who resides in New York. The bereaved relatives have the sincere sympathy of many friends in their sad affliction.

The funeral will be conducted from the residence at 10:30 o'clock to-morrow (Friday) morning. The interment will be in Oakdale cemetery.
