FAVORITE FOR WEAK WOMEN.

No woman's happiness can be complete without children; it is her nature to love and want them. The dreadful ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so fraught with pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with horror. There is no necessity for the ordeal of childbirth to be either painful or danger.

COLORED SUNS. Planets That Are Lighted by Blue, Green or Red Suns.

We are so familiar with the light of our sun, says Dorothy Leonard in the August St. Nicholas, that it is hard for us to realize that there are in the universe a number of suns which shine with blue, green, purple, yellow or red light. These colors are noticed when we examine them through the telescope.

When we look at the heavens on a clear night we see a great many stars, more than we can possibly count; and all these, except the planets, are great glorious suns, some of them many times larger than our own. Most of them shine with white light, like ours; but yet there are a good many which, viewed through the telescope, are found to be of various brilliant hues. The most striking and beautiful effects in coloring are met with in what are called the double stars. There are stars which appear single to us, on account of their extreme distance, but on examination, are found to consist of two or more stars comparatively near together; and when one or both of a pair are colored, they are, of course, exceedingly beautiful. In the constellation called the Southern Cross, one astronomer discovered a group, too far away or too small to be seen with the naked eye, which appeared to him like an elaborate piece of jewelry! For, among a number of ordinary stars, were five green, one greenish blue and two beautiful red ones. In one of our northern constellations there is a large white star accompanied by one of a rich purple hue; in another a triple star consisting of an orange red sun, with two companions of a bright emerald green; while in another a double star has a large orange sun with a small blue mate.

Among the single stars, some of the brightest (which are famous enough to have old Arabian names-given them before the Christian era) are of quite decided color. For instance, Sirlus'is bluish white; so also are Altair, Deneb and Vega: Arcturus is red: Capella is yellow: Rigel and several others are blue; and Aldebaran, Betelgeuse and Antares shine with bright red beams. If any or all of these stars have planets circling around them, as the earth and other planets revolve around our sun, the coloring must be brilliant indeed. In planets revolving around the double suns we can imagine almost any thing. One sun might rise in orange, green or blue, while another set in red or purple, and at times the two suns might mingle their beams, a red sun with a blue sun giving purple light for part of the day or a blue sun and a yellow sun giving green light.

"A Bright Christmas." The main object and desire of all yuletide giving is to convey REAL PLEASURE. To this end we should select with an object to EVERYDAY usefulness. The coatliest presents often afford the least pleasure, because not wisely chosen. There are hundreds of fisters. Brothers, Fathers, Fothers and Grandparents with dimmed and strained vision whose sight could almost instantly be restored to normal conditions by the application of proper glasses. Why not give YOURS new eyes for a Christmas present Could you give them more pleasure or happiness? No wiser course could be pursued, unless it be the course that leads to us for the glasses.
