SOME MORE OF THE RESULTS.

We wrote something yesterday on the expressions of opinion as the effect of the capture of Aguinaldo in hasting the collapse of resistance to the United States in the Philippine islands. Charles Daniel, correspondent of the Atlanta Journal, who takes a business-like view view of it, volunteers his opinions in the following:

"The march of the syndicates and corporations on the Philippines will now begin.

"With the capture and imprisonment of Emilio Aguinaldo, the Filipino leader, the administration will within a short time establish civil government in the islands.

'Under civil rules and laws the dozens of so called development com panies which have been formed to exploit the Philippines will secure the franchises and concessions that have been promised them.

"Capital will flow into the islands and the work of development, legiti mate and otherwise, will be pushed. Until this time the insurrection car ried on by Aguinaldo has continued the necessity of maintaining a mili tary government at Manila and under military rule the franchise grabbers could not secure the prominent concessions they desire.

"It is believed that with the cap ture of Aguinaldo the insurrection will end and President McKinley will soon establish a civil form of govern ment in the islands, acting on the authority given him in the Spooner amendment to the war reorganization act passed by Congress the last days of the recent session.

'Under t' is act as it now stands the President will appoint a civil govern ment commission or cabinet, and this body will act as a sort of legislative establishment until the Filipinos are permitted to hold an election and choose their own law makers in the limited manner that will be prescribed by this government.

'It is the concensus of opinion i Washington that Judge Taft, the present head of the commission now in the Philippines, will be made gov ernor general of the Philippines un der the civil government to be estab lished, and that several members o the existing commission will be members of the cabinet. The powers of the commission or cabinet will be enlarged and it will exercise legislative executive and judicial authority. 'Under this form of government the franchise grabbers will secure the val uable concessions of lands and exclu sive rights for developing the islands, it being notorious that these corpora tions, are for the most part, composed of Senators and Congressmen, politicians and schemers who have a powerful influence with the powers that be. Franchises will be farmed out and the Filipinos will witness a rush to their lands and cities the like of which they have never dreamed of.

"Valuable timber and mineral prop erties, agricultural lands and city streets and public utilities will be awarded to these companies without price and the men behind the schemes will reap a rich harvest in the new Eldorado which they confidently ex pect the Philippines will turn out to be. 'The work of exploitation will soon begin and within the next few months the rush to the Philippines by the manipulators, schemers, speculators, franchise grabbers and concesion hunters will be marked. Of course many honest settlers will move to the islands, and with the end of the in surrection and the establishment of civil government the possibilities of the islands will soon be known. The Filipinos will now have to grapple with a more powerful enemy and army than any that has yet confronted them-the onward march of the men who seek franchises, valuable lands and concessions, and the schemers, who will fleece the innocents to the exquisite taste of a John Bull. "The disposition of Aguinaldo is problem that will probably not worry the administration. The island of Guam seems to have been selected as a sort of American St. Helena, and, like Napoleon, Cronje and other grand warriors and captured leaders of wars and insurrections, Aguinaldo will doubtless be sent to Guam and im prisoned for an indefinite time, kept under heavy guard night and day to prevent his escape or communication with the Filipino people "It is certain that the government will not permit the Filipino to remain in the Philippines, as his presence near his people would be a constant men ace and temptation for the Filipinos to attempt to liberate him. Aguin aldo's days in the Philippines are numbered. He will be kept in Ma nila only long enough for the news of his capture and imprisonment to spread throughout the islands in order to impress the Filipinos with the futility of making further resistance while their leader is a captive and powerless to aid or command them in resisting the American army and

The talk of Aguinaldo being put to death for treason against the United States is absurd. "Such a thing would never be permitted by President McKinley. The army department in the Philippines may through the thirst for blood, demand that the Filipino leader be tried by courtmartial and sentenced to death, but Mr. McKinley will never consent to this. His kind ness of heart and spirit of generosity will cause a quick respite should Aguinaldo be so sentenced, and the President will no doubt order Aguin aldo to be deported to Guam for the

Mr. Daniel poses neither as a prophet nor the son of a prophet, but as a predictor in this case w think he gets away with the Rev. Ira Hicks, the St. Louis weather prognosticator. The only thing where there is any likelihood of his being mistaken is in Aguinaldo's being shipped to our St. Helena, an event which may depend upon Aguinaldo himself. If he concludes to accept the situation, take the oath of allegiance, and join in the work of pacifying the islands he will not be sent to Guam, for the Government will find more and a better use for him in the Philippines, and so will the syndicates which have their eyes on them with a view to exploiting them as soon as exploiting becomes practicable. If Aguinaldo should remain rebellious or sulky and refuse to come in and co-operate in the work of pacification in that event they would have no use for in the Philippines, and would probably, as Mr. Daniel says, ship him to Guam, where he would be out of touch with his people and, could be safely kept without trouble.

That clause inserted in the army bill prohibiting the granting or getting possession of concessions before the establishment of civil governments put the brakes on the syndicate and other concession hunters, who in consequence have since been all the more anxious and eager for the establishment of civil governments, and this may also account for the speed with which the Taft commission has been moving in that

It may look like spite or narrowmindedness or unfair partisianship to attribute the gratification at the capture of the Filipino chief to such a motive, but we know the fact that adventurers by the score have had their eyes on those islands and have already spotted the valuable properties upon which they proposed to get their clamps at the very first opportunity. Some of them have had their prospectors spying out the and and had the properties they want marked for seizure as soon as the way for grabbing was opened. A year or more ago a lumber syndicate of which Congressman Hull. chairman of the House Committee on Military Affairs, was a member secured concessions to large tracts of forest, where they propose to do a large business in cutting and shipping timber, a soon as that kind of work can be safely carried on. This was but one of a number of syndicates which had been looking ahead spying out timber lands, iron and gold mines, oil lands, coal and other properties in which they saw money, either in working or in holding for speculation when the rush of adventurers came.

Of course the working of these properties or speculating in them depends on the suppression of the insurrection and the establishment of order which would make the investment of money and operating the properties safe. If the islands be as rich as they are represented to be, they offer a splendid field for the concession hunter and fine openings for the investment of capital in developing the mines, in cutting down the forests, in building railroads, running steamboats and steamships, in working hemp, tobacco and other plantations, and in the raising of cattle, for which it is said the valleys afford splendid pasturage.

From all accounts there are plenty of soft snaps over there for the syndicates and others in quest of valuables, all of whom, no doubt, are rejoicing at the capture of Aguinaldo, whose taking in will, they believe, hasten the consummation of their schemes and the realization of their hopes.

WHAT PUZZLED MR. WU.

There are a many things in China that the American sojourning there does not understand and a good many things in this country which a Chinaman sojourning in this country does not understand. Minister Wu Ting Fang is a remarkably intelligent and observant gentleman; very little escapes his keen optics, and he sees more with one eye shut than most of his countrymen who have visted these shores do with both eyes open. He has seen a good many things which he does not understand, and during his recent visit to Chicago he saw some which filled him with astonishment, and even shocked his oriental simplicity. One of the incidents is thus related in the Chicago Tribune:

Chinese Minister Wu Ting Fang devoted yesterday to an investigation of the intellectual and esthetic side of Chicago life. He looked over the masterpieces in the Art Institute and did not attempt to conceal his surprise at finding young men and women sketching from nude models. The popular diplomat, laughing and al ways interrogating, was the center of a bevy of women students the meo ment he entered the classrooms.

"On, what is that?" exclaimed the Oriental, pointing to a man in the nude posing as the dying gladiator. "He is a model? Do you have many like him? Why does he do that Why do these girls sketch him?" Director French told the visitor that the young women were studying anatomy as concerned in sketeling.

"But must they study anatomy in this way? Why should they study auatomy!" were the questions to which the minister found no replies. Tae party then entered a room where a class of young men were sketching from the female figure. "Why is this?" was Minister Wu's first question, a touch of disapproval finding its way into his appear. What does this model represent! Are the young men studying anatomy, too? Why do the girls study the man model and the boys the woman?"

It does not appear from the account in the Tribune that Mr. Wu's inquiries were answered, for the reason, doubtless, that there wasn't anybody around just then who could give a satisfactory answer, and it dosen't seem that the person to answer has been found yet. In the meantime the pagan oriental will keep on wondering about the strange way they do some things in Chicago.

Colonel A. K. McClure, the founder and for twenty-five years the editor-in-chief and directing spirit of the Philadelphia Times, has retired from its editorial staff, a great loss to the Times. For fifty-five years, most if not all of the time. Colonel McClure has been in editorial harness and is entitled to a rest. But he dosen't propose to get out altogether.

The burning question out in Colorado is, "Can a rattlesnake back?" He can if he wants to, but if he is built right, like the rattlesnakes we have down this way, he will not want to, but will stay right where he is found and fight from base.

"LET NO GUILTY MAN ESCAPE '

And now it seems they have discussed scandalous frauds upon the Government in the Philippines. This is not surprising. Some time ago the discovery was made that a ring of army officers had been formed to gobble up and control the hemp crop, as a result of which the price of Manila hemp jumped away up, and the fellows in the ring pocketed lots of money. This was to be investigated but if investigated no report has yet been made.

The last frauds discovered are in the commissary department. How extensive they are, or how many are implicated in themis not yet known and probably never will be,efor if there be any "big injins" in it the proceedings will quashed before they are reached. We had been anticipating something like this, for some time ago we read a letter from Manila by some correspondent who referred to the high-handed robbery that was going on there, and remarked that practically unlimited stealing was going on and that many trusted officers were implicated

The announcement of the discovery of these commissary frauds is accompanied by the stereotyped legend "let no guilty man escape," which has been played until it has become a ridiculous farce that fools no one. It simply means that a few of the unimportant individuals who played the part of tools and gobetweens may be convicted and jugged, while the big thieves who got most of the loot will escape, stand by and exclaim "let no guilty man escape."

LOOKS FOR LOW-PRICED COTTON

We firmly believe, as thousands do who give thought to the subject of cotton production and consumption. that the price the planters will receive for the next crop will depend mainly upon themselves. It will be high or low in proportion to the production and that will depend upon the acreage planted. The planter may not be able to control the production, for that will depend upon favorable or adverse seasons, but he can and should control the acreage. In this connection we publish the following from one of our leading merchants:

WILMINGTON, April 1st, 1901. Editor Star:

DEAR SIR-I noticed in your colamns a few days ago an article advising people not to plant too much cotton. I think it was a timely article. I think there will be 25 per cent. more guano sold this year and 25 per cent. more land planted in cotton than the average has been for the last three years per year. If so, it looks to me like the price of cotton will be down to five cents by the first of next January if not before. If our farmers would first try to make meat and bread, or, in other words, plant corn, potatoes and rice enough for home consump tion, including enough to fatten the meat that they will need for the year, and then make peanuts, cotton and tobacco as a surplus, not planting much of either of the crops for the surplus, in that case they could afford to sell their surplus crops cheap if nec essary, having first made enough to supply their families.

The cotton miling business looks very blue now, and if the Asiatic war cloud does not pass away it looks like the mills will have a hard time to make any money on cotton goods at any price they can get, so we can not expect them to pay much for cotton, and especially when people make more than usual. If the cotton crop was small the factory people would be obliged to pay a higher price, because an article is often valued for its scarcity. I may be wrong, but it looks to me like we are going to have low prices for cotton next Fall. Yours truly, D. L. GORE CO.

BOOK NOTICES.

The April number of the North American Review presents a solid list of contents embracing among other articles that will attract attention, Mark Twain's paper on Missionary Ament, Senator Beveridges paper on Cuba, and Rear Admiral Melville's views on the Submarine Boat; its Promises and Performances. #### A STUDY IN DINING.

THE VERY FAT LADY AND THE TABLE D'HOTE DINNER.

What This Gastronomic Criminal Ate and How It Impressed an Observer, With Some Remarks on Appetite and Moderation.

The usual thoughtful person-who will spend an hour studying the ant at his toll-will disregard his fellow being stuffing at the table d'hote opposite him. It is a great mistake to let any hour go by without analyzing and dissecting the human things around you.

Impressed with this notion we earnestly, but politely, studied the fat lady as she came to eat. She sat down and breathed heavily. That heavy breathing told of asthmatic tendencies—due to an overloaded stomach-and it prophesied an early ending te a placid life. It meant that she should fast moderately for a month. All fat people have some queer contradiction about them. This fat lady had for belt buckle a bronze plate four these as big as a silver dollar. On the bronze plate in relief was the bust of a thin, scrawny, bony, spirituelle girl.

High in the air the fat lady held her three pink chins. Below at her belt and far out of her sight was the bronze relief of a woman as a woman should be. In the old days of knightly frankness it would have been proper to lean forward and say:

"Beautiful fat lady, radiant being, if you will you can be as scrawny, healthful and pleasing as the thin thing at your But in these days such frank talk will not do. We could only sit and watch sadly.

"Oysters," said the lady, and ate them, breathing hard and tugging pitifully with her lungs at her cruel corset strings. "Mock turtle soup," said she, and at that. Then her breath was a little bit shorter and her face a shade pinker. "I think I'll have some fish." She ate half a flounder, called a "sole" by cour-

"Lobster." "Roast beef." "Potatoes."

"Beets"-no one can digest them. "Sweet potatoes." "Punch, with curacoa." This eats out your stomach's lining. "Broiled quail on toast."

"What else, lady?" The lady said: "I don't care for anything else-just give me some ice cream and cheese and erackers and a cup of coffee."

She was an agreeable looking fat lady She was tidy, fairly intelligent in appear ance; had evidently been subject all her life to Christian influences. Undoubtedly, somewhere in this world some one loves her, and to that person she says quite often: "Dear me, I wish I did not getteo stout don't know what to do." The kind admirer says: "I don't think you're stout." The poor fat thing breathes heavily, but more happily, and eats in the same rep tilian fashion the next day. We are perfectly well aware that some tat people do not eat a great deal-that they get fat in spite of all efforts. But they are exceptions, and, besides, we call their attention kindly to the fact that fat s not made of air, but of food, and that if they eat less they will weigh less. We have no hope that many will reform at our bidding, but none the less we paint this picture from life for their contemplation. As for the table d'hote, it should be called the "table d'indigestion," and laws should be passed to modify it. Man is intended of course to eat of the earth's wholesome products.

His appetites are arranged in such proportion as shall impel him to cultivate the earth scientifically. The great Fourier suggests that man's palate analyzed will be found a perfect map of the world under proper cultiva-

But while man, unlike the inferior ani-mals, is destined to great gastronomic variety he is not intended to eat everything at once. Temperance, moderation, the self control essential to true appreciation-those are the things which he should cultivate. WHISKEY, 9 gallon Northern 1 00 6 2 10 THE GLASS OF FASHION. French knots are as commonly used for dress decoration as they were last

Bands of lace insertion alternated with tucked bands of gray silk form effective waists. The tricorne hat in soft felt trimmed with silk or velvet and unique oriental buckles is a popular model. Red velvet applique designs embroid ered with gold are the decoration on the bolero of a white taffeta silk waist. Something pretty for evening wraps is a silk matebesse, soft, thick, light and warm, which comes in pretty pale

Fancy buttons set with imitation gems are shown in great profusion in the shops, and no doubt their particular usefulness will become manifest later on.

Sea gulls are used for the body of chiffon muffs and fancy small cape collars to match, one gull on either shoulder, the heads pointing down on the bust. Two birds are also used for the muff, with chiffon frills at either end. Scotch and Irish tweeds very light in weight and pliant in texture, with a white thread woven in on the surface. giving a frieze effect, have a place among the new dress materials. The colors are very attractive.

A rough material called frieze, subdued by a surface of white hair, seems to be one of the smart materials for winter. These rough fabrics are usually trimmed liberally with bands of silk or satin covered with rows of stitching, or with some of the fancy braids.—New

COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. NEW YORK, April 2 .-- The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of three points, but developed a weak undertone, cables not responding to the satis faction of the trade here. For a time the market ruled quiet, but suddenly developed increased activity and strength on buying started by a Greek house and supplemented by considerable activity for other substantial houses on invest ment account. This led shorts to cover freely and prices moved up five to seventeen points from the lowest to the highest figures, with May selling from 7.83 to 8 00 and being the firmest on the list. Talk of a corner in May was not taken seriously although it is claimed that on the present relation of prices between the Southern and the New York markets the amount of certificates cotton at New York will not exceed fifty thousand bales on May first. The market was finally steady at a net advance of two to twelve points on futures and he advance on spots. The movement of cotton keeps well and this restrained buying to some extent NEW YORK, April 2 .- Cotton quiet; middling uplands 8 5 16c. Cotton futures closed steady: April 7.91, May 7.97, June 7 91, July 7.91 August 7.63, September 7.46, October 7.35, November 7.30, December 7.28, January 7.28.
