WILMINGTON, N. C. TUES . MORNING, SEPT. 10.

THROTTLE THEM.

The probabilities are that one of the first acts to be passed by Conreas when it meets will be one to exclude anarchists, nihilists and all such advocates of lawlessness and crime from this country. There are but two countries in the world where they have a recognized right to live and to talk. These are the United States and England, When driven from countries on the continent they take refuge in England and this country, especially this country, where they are not watched so closely, have more freedom of action and are in less danger of being held in restraint.

This country, with its freedom of speech and of individual action, when that action is not in violation of existing laws, offers them an inviting field for organization, for the dissemination of their societydestroying teachings and for conspiracy to murder. Here they plan the assassination of European rulers and send the men drawn by lot to do the murder. There is a den of them in Paterson, N. J., which sent across the man who slew King Humbert, of Italy, one of the best and most democratic of the crowned heads of Europe. Another went with him, whose assigned task was the assassination of the Czar of Russia. But his courage failed or he failed to find the opportunity.

They spare neither sex nor merit, for they slay a woman with as little compunction of conscience as they would kill a dog, and invariably the rulers they have assassinated or attempted to assassinate were among the best rulers, who had done most for their people and for whom their people had the most regard and affection. With them it doesn't matter whether the ruler is a man or a woman, whether good or bad, the fact that he or she occupies the position as ruler is enough to incur their enmity and to be spotted

If they had any sense of appreciation of the privileges they here enjoy and abuse, of the latitude given them in their meetings and public utterances, they would not turn their stealthy weapons against citizens of a country which in its excess of hospitality gives them a refuge and domicile when driven from other countries. If they are too callous to appreciate such favors, they ought to have sense enough to know that when they inaugurate the programme of murder here then, as a matter of self-protection, it will be necessary for this country to close its gates against them, and if they venture in seize and send them back to the country whence they came.

Why not? We have immigration laws which exclude paupers, idiots and victims of contagious or infectious diseases. We have extradition treaties to surrender murderers, embezzlers, forgers, &c. We have exclusion acts prohibiting the incoming of Chinese laborers. There are good reasons for all of these, but there isn't half the reason for any of them that there is for the exclusion of this law-defying, chaos-breeding, society-destroying, murder-inciting, assassination-glorifying clan.

Freedom of speech is one thing: advocacy of riot and assassination is another.

There have been, we believe, one or two Americans who have belonged to that gang, but they were hanged by due process of law after the Haymarket riots in Chicago some year ago, hanged for throwing bombs into crowds and killing men. If there be an avowed American anarchist now the public does not know who he is. We don't believe there is. Every one of those now here is an alien who found the gates open and fled hither when the gates of his own and other countries were closed and locked against him. Others came because they knew there was a better opportunity to earn a livelihood here than in the countries they came from, and every one of them expects and is given every protection of the law, protection to their persons and property and exercises all the rights and privileges under the law that any American citizen does.

And yet coming as bread seekers, or as refugees to escape espionage and arrest and imprisonment, perhaps death, they make no distinction between the executors of the law in this country and the crowned hom they are sworn to de troy. They pursue with unrelenting hate and smite with merciless malice the most exalted and honored representative American in the land. simply because he is the most exalted and honored, which in their diseased imaginings is sufficient cause for murder, and those of them who feel that they are safe from prison or the hangman's noose, glorify the deed, applaud the murderer for doing his "duty" and eulogize him as a hero, worthy of emulation. With a fiendish glee they revel in the blood of the victim and sing passus when a nation stands horrified at the appalling crime which they glorify, and yet if they were arrested as accessories they would demand and would have the full protection of the laws of the country whose hospitality they violate, the laws they defy and are conspiring and laboring to destroy.

As Catiline abused the patience of the Roman Senate, so have these fomenters of riot and murder, these turbulent incendiaries and menaces to law and order and government, abused the patience of the American people, who in their mistaken toleration and indulgence, have arbored them too long. Let the gates be closed upon them and they who seek to enter be sent, when discovered, to the countries whence they came, and then let every State so frame its laws that the avowed anarchist who secretly conspires for or openly counsels defends and glorifies assassination will find better work to do in the penitentiary if he doesn't commit the overt act of murder which would put his neck in a noose. The American people must protect themselves and the men they place in representative positions form the daggers and bullets of these, brazen, blatant advocates and defenders of assassination. This should not be the dumping ground for the venomous reptiles of Europe.

METHOD IN HIS MADNESS.

For cold-blooded deliberation, and persistent malevolent perseverance. the story told in Sunday's STAR by the assassin of President McKinley surpasses anything of that kind that we have ever read. He declares that he had no ac complices, had planned with no one about it, and that he alone is re sponsible for the conception and commission of the crime. Eight days before the assassination he resolved to do something. with that resolve uppermost in his mind he went to Buffalo, and there resolved to kill the President. He followed him from Tuesday till Friday, and several times he was near enough to him to shoot but was afraid he might miss his mark, and kept on the trail until he got almost close enough to put his concealed pistol against the body of his victim. He took no chances on missing, and he shot to kill, for the first ball struck the breast bone, and if it hadn't been for the stooping posture of the President, would have been suffici to accomplish the deadly purpose of the assassin. He had time to think time to ponder on the enormity of the deed he contemplated, but failing to succeed the first, second and third day, the fourth found him still resolved, early on the ground, among the first in the line of people moving to greet the President who stood to greet and welcome them, and then with his handkerchief ruse, notwithstanding the fact that he was tremulous with excitement, he accomplished his fell purpose, shot to kill without a cause and without a

This act differs from that of the Anarchist drawn by lot to kill, and who is sworn, under penalty of death, to obey, for he was not delegated but took this murder upon himself voluntarily, and pursued his victim with astonishing method and per-

He says he was crazed by the speeches of that female miscreant Emma Goldman; filled with an impulse he was powerless to resist if he would, and that he would have shot if it had brought instant death to himself. This will be his plea when put on trial-insanity-that he was crazed and therefore, while he knew what he was doing and could and did plan with the cunning of a healthy brain, he was not responsible for what he did. That is the only plea that can be made. But that will not save him from imprisonment for life if the President survives, or from the electrocution chair if he dies.

A MISFIT SUBSIDY PLEA.

The Philadelphia Press, a subsidy advocate, takes the speech of Mr. John B. Cleveland, cotton manufacturer, delivered at Spartanburg, S. C., as a text for the following subsidy booming editorial: "Cotton manufacturing offers great future for the South. The great trouble is to find markets in which to sell the manufactured goods. The raw material is grown in the South, and Mr. Cleveland says that it can be manufactured as cheaply there as any where else. But new markets are no available, principally for lack of direct steamship lines. Argentina buys $10, 000,000 worth of cotton goods in a year of the kind manufactured in the Bouth, but the United States supplies only $50,000 worth to that country. The raw material is transported from the South to Europe, there manufactured into cotton goods and then sent to Argentina. If a Southern manufacturer wants to send his goods to Argentina he has to ship them by the way of Europe. There are several direct lines of steamships from Europe to Argentina, but not one from the United States.

"Hundreds of thousands of tons of coal are sent from England to Argencoal are sent from England to Argentina every year which could be shipped just as cheaply from the United States excepting for lack of ocean transportation. If the Government would give lhe necessary aid American steamship lines would be established to South America and the United States could supply both the coal and cotton goods now sent there from Europe. Some of those vessels could sail with cargoes from South America to Edrope and then bring cargoes from Europs to the United States, though coffee, rubber and other South American products would supply cargoes to a large extent for vessels returning direct to the United States. But without steamships we can never get that trade. Ships we can never get that trade. Europe will continue to supply the cotton manufactures and the coal to Argentina, Brazil and other South American countries which could better be supplied by this country."

That is the subsidy side of it, but It doesn't fit the case at all. If it did the Northern mills would have more cause to plead on that line than Mr. Cleveland has for Southern mills, for the Southern mills consume more than three times as many bales of cotton now as they did ten years ago. The Southern mills to-day take 45.2 per cent. of the annual consumption to 54.8 by the Northern mills, while ten years ago the Southern mills took only 23.3 per cent to 76.7 by the Northern mills. If the lack of transportation to foreign markets has anything to do with this the Northern mills are the greater sufferers, for they, compared with the Southern mills, have fallen away behind, while the Southern mills have forged right along, manufactured more cotton every year and made more money and are still forging ahead without waiting for American ships or subsidies. Since April 15, 1865, when President Lincoln was slain, two Presidents have been assassinated, making three out of the seven elected by the people. Garfield was shot July 2d, 1881, and lingered till September 19th, when he died at Elberon, N. J., to which place he had been removed from Washington. Here are three assassinations of Presidents in thirty-six years, which exceeds the record of any European Monarchy. Let us hope that the third attempt will not end in a third death.

One hundred and thirty of the cotton mills in Georgia have followed the example of the North Carolina mills which some time ago entered into an agreement not to employ children under twelve years of age, except where the labor of the child might be necessary for the support of parents incapacitated for self sup-

Intelligence of Fisher

"Here is a curious thing that fishes and one that seems clearly to show great intelligence," said an old fisherman. might be that two fishes some feet apart saw the same object of prey, maybe smaller fish, at the same instant and they might both dart for it at once and come violently into collision, while their prey escaped. Now, that would be when they had each the same chance of capturing what they wanted; they would both make dash for it. "But often I have seen something very different happen. Of two larger fishes following along side by side and pretty well closed up together, pursuing a minnow, I have seen the rearmost sheer off and let the other fellow have it, apparently either because he knew he couldn reach it and there was no use of his trye kept on and mixed in he would make the fish ahead lose the game as well as himself. This last would seem to be indicate, besides intelligence, unselfishness on the part of fish No. 2, but the action of sheering off when he saw he couldn't get it showed intelligence anyhow." - New Advice to Travelers About Money. On all steamers American money is ac cepted, but every passenger should have enough of the coin of the country to which the steamship line belongs to meet all bills outside of mere passage money as these bills are made out in francs marks or shillings, according to the official medium of the line. The convenience also of having some of the current coi of the country to be first visited is ap preciated in the ability to board a train on landing without the delay of bank exchange. Geographical Distribution of Hair. The geographical distribution of the hair over the habitable world is, as regards the color, very precisely definable. The xanthocomic or light haired races are to be found north of latitude 48 degrees, which cuts off England. Belgium, the whole of northern Germany and a great portion of Russia. Between this parallel and latitude 45 degrees, including northern France. Switzerland and part of Piedmont and passing through Bohemia and Austria, there is a sort of debatable land of more or less dark brown hair, and below this line we come gradually upon the Melanic races. The people of Europe therefore present in the color of hair an almost perfect gradation, the light flaxen of the colder latitudes deepening imperceptibly into the blue black of the Mediterranean shores .-Gentleman's Magazine.

COTTON MARKETS.

by Telegraph to the Morning Star. NEW YORK, Sept. 8 .- The market

New York, Sept. 8.—The market for cotton futures opened quiet and firm with prices six to nine points higher on a spurt of room covering and light outside support, prompted by the marked change for the better in the President's condition and by builish cables from Liverpool. The monthly British trade statement of exports of cotton goods was far better than looked for. Following the call prices eased off quite sharply under profittaking and light selling of a scalping character. Before midday brisk Wall street buying and a scare of rooms shorts sent values up to the high poin of the morning. The crop reports in hand were conflicting and unsatisfactory. In the early afternoon the market eased off again under seiling for profits by the scalping contingent and a withdrawal of outside support. Dur-ing the last hour the market was irregular and slightly more active, with prices off to lowest of the day under pit realizing.
