afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the case of N. L. Smith, charged with embezzlement, was called, but upon motion of counsel for the prosecution and after argument of the same lasting for two hours, it was continued until next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. By consent of the prosecution, though defendant's counsel gave notice that they "asked no favors," bond was reduced from $2,000 to $500.

At last accounts last night the reduced bond had not been given, and the defendant was still in jail.

the defendant was represented by Hon. Jno. D. Bellamy and E. K. Bryan and the prosecution was represented by L. V. Grady, Esq., Herbert Mc-Clammy, Esq., and Messrs. Bellamy & Bellamy. A large number of friends of the defendant and interested spectators were present when the preliminary trial was in progress. Mr. Grady asked tor a continuance on the ground that a number of important witnesses were absent and had not been summoned by reason of the usual delays attendant upon hearings of the character in hand. He spoke at some length and was followed by Hon. Jno, D. Mr. Grady interposed the remark that the non suit must have been

according to a rule of the bar. Judge Bryan explained that it was matter of record that it had been taken. He further spoke on an alleged defectiveness of the warrant in that it stated that Mr. Smith was "arrested on suspicion" of having embezzled the amount upon the assertion of Mr. W. W. Slaton, now manager here for Ludden & Bates. He said that Mr. Smith certainly should not be further held in jail when it was on a "mere suspicion."

Herbert McClammy, Esq., next spoke for the prosecution and disclaimed that the commissions of Smith amounted to over $2,000 or fifty per cent, and he only wanted time to produce witnesses to the effect that the contract was only 30 per cent. He resented the idea of appeals to the sympathy of the court when justice was at

It sets forth that the officers of the Ludden & Bates' Company are wanted from New Haven, Conn., to disprove the contract which Smith alleges that he has with the company. and to prove the correct contract, as they claim. night.

The meeting came a little unexpected to the public though it has been known for some time that a lively campaign was on in Aldermanic circles for the election of a successor to the late H. P. West, of the Second ward, both as a member of the Board and as Mayor pro tem. The caucus last night was in anticipation of the regular monthly meeting of the Board Monday night at which the action of last night is expected to be confirmed.

At the meeting every member was present and as Mayor Waddell is not one of the Board, Alderman E. P. Bailey presided.

The first and most important action of the caucus was the election of an Alderman and there were those present who favored making this the sole object of the session, leaving the choice of Mayor pro tem. to be made Monday night. This sentiment was not, however, unanimous and an agreement was reached by which the Alderman would first be selected and then he would be sent for to par-
