MANY DELEGATES ARE HERE.

Local Committees Were Busy Yesterday Receiving the Visitors - Mrs. Stone. wall Jackson a Guest-Gov. Aycock Arrived Here.

Perhaps not before in a score of years has Wilmington had the pleasure and the honor of entertaining so distinguished and cultured an organization in annual convention as that which will assemble this morning at 10 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium-the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

All trains that reached the city yesterday and last evening brought officers and delegates from almost every State in the Southland and several from the North, among them being wives and daughters of distinguished heroes in the Civil War, all enthusiastic in the cause and cherishing pleasant anticipations of the forthcoming sessions.

The reception committee found the ist of its duties on the "day before" quite voluminous but withal very pleasant, and other local committees were equally as busy in looking after their respective departments.

The delegates have headquarters at The Orton and there each one is re quired to register with the Information Bureau, which is capably managed by Mrs. R. W. Hicks, with a corps of competent assistants.

It is a bright augury for the success of the convention to say that yesterday every officer of the United Daughters and many prominent committee members were present upon the arrival of the early trains and at once entered into active preparations for the sessions to-day. It was also pleasing for the Daughters to note the arrival of Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, of Charlotte, and Governor Charles B. Aycock, of Raleigh. Mrs. Jackson arrived on the noon train and is being entertained by Mrs. Gabriel Holmes. She will be introduced to the convention after it is formally called to order this morning. Governor Aycock arrived last evening and is being entertained at the home of Mr. George Rountree. He will make a short address during this morning's session.

Mrs. Edwin Gardner Reed, president of the United Daughters, will call the convention to order. She is being entertained at the home of Mr. T. D. Meares. Mrs. M. C. Goodlett, of Nashville, Tenn., honorary president; Mrs. W. W. Read, of New York, first vice president; Mrs. S. T. McCullough, of Staunton, Va., second vice president; Mrs. John P. Hickman, of Nashville, secretary, and Mrs. J. Jefferson Thomas, of Atlanta, treasurer, are being entertained at The Orton.

The morning session to-day will be of a social nature and one altogether pleasant. Aside from the addresses of welcome by Mayor Waddell in behalf of the city, Governor Aycock in behaif of the State and Mrs. Parsley in behalf of Cape Fear Chapter, Miss Adelia Dunovant, of Houston, Texas, and historian of the Texas Division, will sing "Our Southland," and there will be various other musical selections by local talent, including a solo by Miss Mattie Horne, who will sing

"The Bonnie Blue Flag." Of the musical features of the session none perhaps will afford more pleasure to the convention than the solo by Mrs. E. K. Bryan, "A Southern Girl's Lament." Mrs. Bryan will sing the solo at the suggestion of a number who have a very pleasant remembrance of an incident in connection therewith.

After the fall of Fort Fisher down the Cape Fear, when Wilmington had been taken possession of by Yankee troops, but before the surrender, and when officers of the different regiments were quartered in different houses in the city, the hostess of one of them had been heard of as a singer of some note. She was frequently called upon by them to stng for their entertainment. After repeatedly refusing to contribute to their social enjoyment, she finally consented to sing. remarking, however, that having once heard her, they would not likely ask her to sing again. She selected the "Jewish Maiden's Lament for her Country," by Kucken, a German composer, and adapted the words to the condition of the South at that time. It is needless to say that the officers did not request her to sing again.

It may be pleasant to recall that Mrs. Bryan is a grand daughter of Maj. John Reilly, officer in command of Fort Caswell, who willingly surrendered to the Wilmington Light Infantry at the opening of the war and afterwards served gallantly the Confederacy at Fort Fisher.

Other features of the morning session will be addresses by Mrs. Weed and Miss Dunovant. At 3 P. M. the first regular business session will be held and at 9 P. M., the visiting daughters will be guests of the local chapter at a reception at The Orton.

Among the visiting Daughters who have arrived and are guests at the homes of friends are:

Mrs. Weed and Mrs. Roselle Clifton Cooley, Jacksonville, Fla.; Miss Fannie Blount, Montgomery, Ala, and Miss Mary B. Poppenheim, Charleston, S. C., with Miss Mary F. Meares, corresponding secretary, No. 408 Market street.

Mrs. J. P. Nolan, Laurens, S. C., Fort Fisher in the late war.

with friends at No. 117 Red Cross Scarce excelled for beauty and bril liance in the history of the many pretty and elaborate marital events that have been celebrated in Wilmington in recent years, the wedding ceremony which joined as man and wife Miss Eliza McIlhenny Bellamy and Mr. James Walter Williamson was solemnized in St. James' Episcopal church last evening at half after eight o'clock, the Rev. Frederick H.

T. Horsfield, the rector, officiating. The sacred edifice, in which the ceremony was performed, was profusely and elaborately decorated with wealth of flowers and plants deftly and artistically arranged by the ladies of St. Agnes' Guild, in honor of the bride, and the entire scene was made even more beautiful under the radiance of a brilliant illumination. The large auditorium of the church was thronged with hundreds of friends and relatives of the popular young bride and groom, many of them being from a distance. As the guests were assembling Mr. E. H. Munson, the organist, skilfully played in his characteristic happy style a march from "Athalia," Mendelsohn; by request "The Moon and I" from "Mikado," Sullivan, and 'Prayer" from "Rienzi." Wagner. Prior to the entrance of the bridal party a double quartette sweetly sung: "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden." and the party was ushered into the church to the singing by the quartette of a bridal chorus from Lohengrin. The quartette was composed of Miss Foster and Miss Cole, sapranos: Miss Mills and Mrs. E. G. Moody, contraaltos; Messrs. Cooper and Banks, tenors, and Mr. H. K. Holden and Mr. Shine, basses. Promptly at the hour for the ceremony the bridal party came up the main aisle of the church in the following order: Master Emmet Hargrove Bellamy, brother of the bride, and Master Charles Nelms Menefee, of Greensboro, nephew of the groom, ribbon boys: Miss Sophie Busbee, of Raleigh, and Miss Nan Clark, of Tarboro, bridesmaids; Miss Jeanie Harriss, of Charlotte, and Miss Elizabeth Cotchett, of Wilmington, brides maids; Miss Lucile Murchison, of Wilmington, and Miss Elise Duffy, of Columbia, bridesmaids. Mr. Lynn Williamson and Mr. George D. Crow. groomsmen; Mr. Eugene Holt and Mr. W. E. Holt, Jr., groomsmen; Mr. Banks Williamson and Mr. Will. M. Bellamy, groomsmen. Mr. Harvey White and Mr. William J. Bellamy, ushers; Mr. Ed. Williamson and Mr. Hargrove Taylor, ushers. Little Miss Mary Hargrove Taylor, first bridesmaid; Miss Mary Ridgely Brown, maid of honor. After the ceremony the party left the church to the beautiful strains of Mendelsohn's wedding march; skilfully executed by Mr. Munson, the organist.

During the ceremony the bride looked radiantly lovely in a gown of ivory satin, artistically trimmed with Point de Duchesse lace. The veil which was held by a cluster of diamonds extended to the end of the train. The inevitable orange blossom held a place in the bridal veil. She carried a lovely bouquet of Lillies of the Valley, bride's roses and orchets caught with chiffon.

The maid of honor, a school mate of the bride, was Miss Brown, daughter of ex-Governor Frank Brown, of Maryland. She was handsomely attired in nile green silk, covered with sun plaited chiffon and encrusted with maidaillions point lace. She carried a large bouquet of meiteior roses.

The first bridesmaid, little Miss Mary Hargrove Bellamy, sister of the bride, wore a pretty little French dress of embroidered chiffon and carried a basket suspended from the neck bg a ribbon and filled with meitelor

The bridesmaids were beautifully gowned in white mousseline de saje, dots over white taffeta and elaborately trimmed with accordeon plaitings with silk applique and soft satin ribbon sashes. Their bair ornaments were white ribbon bows, caught with red roses. They each carried a lovely bouquet of meiteior roses and asparagus plomaso, tied with ribbon.
