SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 1

SENATOR BACON ON THE PHIL-IPPINES.

Senator Bacon, of Georgia, who with several Representatives in Congress made a trip to the Philippines and spent some time there, visiting the most important islands and cities, mingling with the people and studying the situation, present and prospective, has been giving his views since his return. With the exception of the fact that he speaks from personal observation and contact, and not on hearsay on from reading army reports and newspaper correspondents, there is nothing in his views that well informed readers did not know before, but as the views of a Senator, based on his personal observation, they have more than ordinary interest. We quote a few extracts from a somewhat lengthy interview, enough to show what this conservative Senator thinks of the task that confronts the United States in this work of "benevolent assimilation" and how it may pan out:

"There are," he said, "but two ways in which we can govern the islands. These are either absolute military rule on the one hand, or such a liberal gov ernment as will satisfy the people on the other; there can be no half-way bus ness.

"As for the Filipino people them selves, I found them distinctly superior to what I had expected. I believe this would be the conclusion of every fair man who was brought in contact with them. Since I left Washington I have been brought in touch with many brown races and I do not hesitate to say that I consider the Filipinos equal to any and superior to most in point of character and mental ability. They labor under the handicap of a tropical climate, and, therefore, are not as vigorous physically or as industrious as the Chinese or the Japanese, for instance, and this must be taken into account in dealing with them, but, as I but the money that would be made have said, I am convinced that they out of these is simply the difference are the equals of any in point of char acter and ability.

There has been no revival of the the cost of production, but this business enterprises of the islands such as I expected to see. Manila on account of the large amount of money being spent there as the re sult of American occupation.

"I am convinced that we have vol untarily undertaken the most difficult and most expensive problem that has ever fallen to the United States Gov ernment; that it will involve a vast amount of labor, expense and trouble f all kinds before we work it out. What the end will be no man can tell.

"In my opinion, the Philippine question must, to a very great extent it least, cease to be political in its character, but it is bound to be for a long time to come to a very serious business and public question with which Congress must deal. I do not believe that the United States govern ment, or the people of the United States in their private capacities, will ever get back one-tenth of the money that has been spent and will have to be spent in working out the problem, and I find this the very general opinion of army officers on the islands who are most familiar with the conditions there and with the material resources of the country.'

We are in the Philippines but in our opinion eight out of ten of the statesmen who have been advocating and supporting the expansion policy would be glad to find some way out if they could do it without an apparent admission of a blunder after all their talk of holding on and an acknowledgement that they had undertaken a task too difficult of accomplishment. But having gone in with a grand flourish apparently allies to achieve liberty and selfunder the impression that cowing or subduing the little yellow men would be a short and easy job, they do not like to admit a failure. If it wasn't for that, and some good way could be devised for getting out an immediate declaration of the nawithout throwing the onus of failure on them they would, in our second, independence; and, third, pro opinion, gladly get out and be conas has been given for nearly a century tent with coaling stations and restto the Republics of Central and South ing places for our ships over which America. this country, by cession, would have jurisdiction. That's all we need and bring peace to the Filipinos, and that is all we ever should have claimed.

There are some points in this extract from Senator Bacon's interview which are worthy of note. It has been contended that the Filipinos are an unintelligent, incompetent mob of ignoramuses who could not be entrusted with selfgovernment lest they would get to butchering each other.

There are ignoranmuses enough and savages, too, in the islands. There is no doubt about that. But there are a good many people who do not belong to either of these classes. This fact was recognized up to the time that they shot at our soldiers and we began to shoot at them. Then they suddenly became an ignorant, semi-savage mob. Before the altercation began Admiral Dewey expressed the opinion, offici-sses of the American people, will derive no benefit whatever from ships and two more armed cruisers. it. We might, if we saw fit, While he admits that these are going pursue the course that Spain purto cost a great deal of money, he arsued, tax the Filipinos to pay the gues that if judiciously expended it debt, but they could never do it will be a good investment, and it and would have about all they could

If they want a plan to get out of a nasty job without crawfishing or acknowledgment of failure they will find it in the Philippine plank of the Democratic platform of 1900, which reads as follows:

"The Democratic platform of 1900 not only presented a plan for the permanent settlement of the Philippine question, but it presented the only complete plan that has been offered to the American people. It reads as follows: 'We condemn and denounce the Philippine policy of the present Ada navy, and the conditions now make that necessary, we must have ships that will be equal if not superior to the best ships of other nations, for there is no sense in putting inferior ships on the sea to cope with floating fortresses. If we are to be the world power that our statesmen are now proclaiming us, we must be in a position to assert that power if need be or if questioned. But when so much money is to be expended there is much temptation and opportunity for swindling, and this must be watchfully guarded against.
