EASTERN NORTH CAROLINA

This Section Has Wonderful Possibilities in Agriculture, Timber and Other Lines _A Great Need of Manual Training.

A large and most representative au dience, composed of both ladies and gentlemen, heard an excellent address from Dr. Geo. T. Winston, president of the A. & M. college at Baleigh, in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last night under the auspices of the boards of trade of the city. The distinguished speaker and edu cator arrived in the city yesterday morning from Raleigh and is being entertained by Capt. W. R. Kenan. Dr. Winston spoke last evening upon the Industrial Development of Eastern North Carolina, with special application to Wilmington and New Hano Ver county, and he received the undi vided attention and thoughtful consideration of every one in his audience. He was introduced by Mr. D. L. Gore as one having been born in Eastern Carolina, therefore "one of us." Mr. Gore said he knew enough good things of Dr. Winston to speak for an hour, but he would forbear and pre sent the distinguished gentleman, which he did in a graceful manner. Dr. Winston expressed pleasure at receiving the invitation of the business men of the city to address them and said that the subject assigned him was rather an unusual one-that of discussing an economic subject in public assembly. However, he said, if any apology were needed for launching out upon an industrial address, he would say that upon that issue depended all others, political and other-

He briefly reviewed the industrial history of the South and placed em phasis on the fact that this is an indusognize the fact, the sooner will the country enter upon that substantial growth which abides forever.

Making a practical application of his subject, he suggested cattle raising upon an extensive scale as one of the industries peculiarly suited to the Eastera section of the State. The conditions here, he said, were even more favorable for that industry than the plains of Texas. There is an abundance of non-arable lands admirably adapted to pasturage and the future possibilities in that regard are great.

He next suggested as a line of development for the East, timber culture and the manufacture of a finished product by skilled labor, instead of making an extravagant waste by placing lumber on the market in a crude state. Ten times the amount of wealth by that method could be brought to the State with not one-tenth the destruction of trees. He cited High Point, N. C., with its innumerable wood-working plants, as an example of the utilization of all that Nature has given it. He knew of no place where wood-working plants would pay better than in Wilmington.

Other lines, Dr. Winston said, Nature has marked out with equal clearness and the watchword should be development. He spoke at length upon the splendid advantages of this section for trucking and suggested great possibilities for the future. The time will come, he said, when ocean steamers with cold storage facilities will lie at Wilmington's wharves for cargoes of lettuce, tomatoes and other vegetables for the markets of the world. The geographical location of this section, jutting out into the ocean as it does farther than any other strip of land along the entire coast, insures a climate unsurpassed in the United States for truck. He laid emphasis upon the desirability of establishing canning establishments for the utilization of waste products and illustrated great possibilities in that respect.

He complimented Wilmington upon the stand it had taken for progress in the past and exhorted its citizens to continue the work along industrial

He closed with a convincing appeal for the establishment of schools for manual training, and suggested Wilmington as an ideal spot for the inauguration of a movement along this line, which is destined to sweep the S.ate.

Any further synopsizing of Dr. Winston's scholarly address would do him an injustice. It was entertaining, profitable and delivered in his characteristic, forcible and elegant style. He was greeted with generous applause through the various stages of his discourse.

A NEGRO DESPERADO.

Manager R. C. Rivers, of Raleigh Athletic Association, Here to Interest Wil-

To play or not play?

That is the question that Manager R. C. Rivers, of the Raleigh Athletic Association, is proposing to the Wilmington baseball cranks. Mr. Rivers arrived yesterday in the interest of the State League and will remain here until it is definitely decided whether Wilmington will put a professional team in the field this year. Yesterday. afternoon he spent some time in individual conference with a number of persons likely to be interested in the baseball movement again this season, and will most likely hold a general meeting collectively of the more pronounced cranks to night.

The idea is to form a six-club league and five cities have already entered. It is now up to Wilmington to come in and make the circuit complete. It is Manager Rivers' purpose to secure a team at all hazards from this city and the more ardent admirers of the sport hope he will succeed.

Lavendar recently sold to a small merchant in "Brooklyn," 100 dozen spools of Coat's cotton and 100 twoounce packages of Railroad Mills snuff at ten cents per dozen. The price was so amszingly low that the storekeeper reported the matter to police headquarters and that led to Lavendar's arrest. The goods were sold day before yesterday. It is not known from whom the property was stolen. Layendar was arrested near Fourth street bridge aud a search of his premises by Chief Furlong developed vidence of the theft of other property.

From best accounts of the difficulty obtainable, Mr. Gregory had trouble with the negro yesterday morning and in the afternoon at 4 o'clock he was discharged and given a check for his pay on Mr. Calvin Gore, who has charge of settling with the hands employed by the contractors. The negro took his check and went away, but about an hour later he returned and while Mr. Gregory was in a deep excavation, laying out a line | York. for the pipe, he leaned up against a bank of earth to one side and fired five times at the foreman. He then turned and fled down Fifth street. In the meantime Mr. B. H. Fleck, another foreman, working a second squad of hands nearby. heard the firing and ran to the scene of the shooting in time to give chase to the fleeing negro down the street. He rau him to Red Cross, thence through Company. through "Dross Neck" to the Seaboard Air Line yards, where the negro was lost among a number of box cars, Mr. Fleck having become exhausted by Brewery in That City Gives Away a Keg the long run. Mr. Gregory was assisted from the excavation by the colored laborers about the works, and one of them started down town with him to get surgical attention. At Fifth and Chesnut streets Mr. P. H. Sears was passing in a buggy, which he tendered to the wounded man and he was brought to the office of Wm. Mc-Lean & Co., on Princess street. Dr. T. S. Burbank was hastily called in and dressed the wounds. One of the bullets took effect in the muscle of Mr. Gregory's left arm and passed through, entering the fleshy part of his shoulder. Another took effect in his left side, just over the kidney, and a third caused only a slight abrasion of the right arm. None of the wounds is considered dangerous unless unusual complications arise. Mr. Gregory was sent out to the Memorial Hospital in a carriage and was report-

In the same editorial the News says of Wilmington's former townsman and North Carolina's distinguished educator. President E. A. Alderman Another notable oratorical incident demands special mention, though i did not form part of the public exercises. At the alumni banquet, when, as is so apt to be the case upon such occasions, the programme was draw-ing tardily to its close, President Alderman, of Tulane University, arose to make the response for which he was set down. Both the floor where the diners sat and the galleries occupied by the ladies had been much thinned out, but Mr. Alderman instantly dispelled all disposition to restlessness or the part of those who remained by one or two appropriate and jesting introductory hits. He then made a brief and stirring speech in which, with a few strong touches, he brought home to his hearers the significance of As, in his closing sentence, he spoke of the prostrate condition of the Southern States when the Johns Hopkins was founded, of the pall which had fallen on all high hopes and aspirations and told how the men of the South felt that here in our Baltimore University a strong hand had been stretched out to help them and uplift them, there was not a man present but was stirred to the depths. And the tumultuous and long-continued applause which greeted the New Orleans President gave evidence of the effect he had produced.

BEER WAR ON IN SAVANNAH.

With Every Five Bought. Savannah News, 9th. A beer war is on, and while the consumers have not noticed any less foam, or any larger glasses at 5 cents per each," the saloon men are happy. The fight was begun, it is claimed, by he Georgia Brewing Association. The Savannah Brewing Company purchased a few chips and is holding hand in the game, while thus far the Herman Winter Brewing Company has remained on the outside. The war is said to be the result of the failure to ombine the beer and ice interests, and being conducted under the direction President Hart, of the Gorrie Ice Company and vice president of the deorgia Brewing Association. Mr. Hart is in New Orleans, but is expected in the city Saturday.

Until the war was declared the sa oon men paid $1.75 a keg for their beer. The Georgia Company announc ed a reduction of 10 cents a keg and the Savannah stood pat. Then the Georgia concern knocked off 15 cents more on each keg, making the price $1 50. The Savannah still held to its price of $1.75 a keg, but announced that with every five kegs purchased an extra keg would be given, coming under the figures of the rival company The Winter concern is still hands off and further are cuts anticipated by the saloon men.
