WILMINGTON, N. C.

TUES A MORNING. JULY 29

ISSUES ENOUGH.

There is a good deal of talk these days about "harmonizing" and "reorganizing"the Democratic party. Harmonizing is easy enough provided there be a spirit of conciliation and toleration and every one is willing to concede something for the sake of harmony, but there can be no harmony when one insists that another must yield to him and accept his dictum before there can be harmony. There can be no harmony when one insists that the other who differs from him must confess that he erred, declare his repentance and humbly ask to be forgiven before the door will be opened and he is permitted to enter. There can be no harmony when he who agrees with you on every question but one must recant his belief in that before you take him into fellowship and let him join hands with you in fighting for all those other questions, the vital importance of which both realize and proclaim. There is no sense in that kind of plan of harmonizing. It is both senseless and intolerant. It is egotistic and arrogant, besides.

There are isms enough on which all Democrats are agreed without taking any one issue upon which they differ, making that a test of Democracy, of party loyalty, and making it also the obstacle to prevent Democrats, who are willing to join hands to fight the common enemy from gathering together. In a letter recently written to the Democrats of Mississippi, by David B. Hill, and read at their State convention, he made a plea for harmony and gave some of the questions on which Democrats are united as fol-

"Our duty at the present time is promoting the avoidance of recriminations among leading men, and the exercise of a spirit of conciliation among ail factions in every section of the organization of the party. The party of the Steel Trust, pays the Amalgmated Scale. On this scale it cannot take country. There is no need of any regood enough for us. We need to avoid a contract for 1,500,000 tin cases to be divisions about abstract questions and we should only press to the front those timely issues upon which there is substantial accord among all Democrats.

The preservation of constitutional liberty, wherever our flag permanently floats; opposition to dangerous cor-porations and other monopolies, which prevent legitimate competition and operate to the detriment of the people; popular insistence upon State rights upon the guarantee of the constitution; public taxation for public purpose only; the abelition of the tariff upon articles controlled by the trusts, the election of United States Senators by the people of several States, genuine reciprocity with Cubs, as against Republican '20 per cent,' specious reciprocity, and the maintenance of the personal liberty of the citizens. These are issues, among others upon which there is no division of sentiment among Domocrats and upon which all can unite, North. South, East

Isn't there enough in these to rally Democrats? Why should the Democrat who is anxious to redress the grievances from which the people suffer, to lighten the burdens of taxation, to put an end to discriminating class rule, to stop the plundering of the many for the benefit of the few, to stop sectional legislation for partisan purposes, to check the onward course to imperialism and bring our Government back within traditional and constitutional limits, why, we asks, should the Democrat who desires these and other things for the public good subordinate them all and give $1,400,000,000, been declaring that precedence to one question, which has ceased for the time being to be an enthusing or a rallying one? This is conceded by thousands of Democrats who fought zealously and bravely for the silver issue in the campaign of '96, and stood for it again four years later when, although an issue, it was overshadowed by "imperialism," a more pressing issue. It is also practically conceded by Wm. J. Bryan, who, while not surrendering it, subordinated it in the campaign of 1900 to "imperialism." He virtually concedes it now, for while he insists upon adhesion to the platform of '96, in speaking of present and prospective issues, when referring to money, he uses the expression "money question" and avoids special mention of silver or ratio. Why then when he virtually concedes so much make close adhesion to the platform of 1896 a test of Democracy? That is not and should not be the test of Democracy now any more than opposition to the enfranchisement of the emancipated slaves of the South should be. which was vigorously opposed by the Democratic party when that measure was under consideration. A better test and the only one which should be applied now is contained in the following letter by Senator Bailey to the 'harmony meeting" at Nantasket, Mass., at which many prominent Democrats, including Mr. Bryan, were present. Senster Bailey could not attend and sent the following letter in response to an invitation:

"Without yielding any of my con-victions upon disputed questions, I am ready to welcome every Democrat back into active party service, and I only demand of them that they will bow to the will of the majority and support the nominees of our next national convention. All Democrats agree with each other on the main and permanent principles of our Government, and they ought to be willing to submit their differences over issues, however important, to the assembled Democrats.

wisdom of our party, and abide by the decision when fairly reached. Upon no other basis can any organization be maintained, and there is no organization to which this test can be so easily applied as the Democratic party.
"A Democrat's party affiliation

ought to be determined upon what we have been pleased to call the fundamental principles of the Government, and surely it ought to be easy for men who agree upon those principles to subordinate their difference upon issues of a day or of a decade and act cordially and harmonously to-

Mr. Bailey yields none of his convictions, nor does he demand that a Democrat who differs from him on some questions yield his convictions before he will act with him or accept his proffered hand in party fellowship. That ought to be the spirit actuating every Democrat, who is struggling for the country's weal. With such a spirit inviting harmony and closing up the lines we may win; without it never.

A TIN PLATE OBJECT LESSON. We were under the impression that tin plate was so well protected by the Dingley tariff that it didn't ask any odds of foreign manufacturers, so well protected in fact that Welsh tin makers feeling unable to compete with it were contemplating moving their plants to this country. We were also told when the tin schedules in the McKinley tariff were under discussion that the duty on tin would give such an impetus to the development of our tin mines that we would soon be able to produce more tin than our manufacturers would need. Both of these seem to be mistakes, for our tin plate manufacturers say they can't compete with the Welsh tin plate makers, and they are still importing the block tin they use from Wales, but on account of the rebate they get that practically free of duty. Some of the plants are now talking of a 25 per cent. reduction in wages as necessary to enable them to compete with foreign manufacturers. Discussing and defending this the Philadelphia Press, a protection organ, says: The Amalgamated tin plate lodges have been for a fortnight considering a reduction of 25 per cent. in wages so as to permit competition with Welsh tin plate. The American Tin Plate Company, one of the subsidiary coporations

The trust is using Welsh tin. It is practically duty free, as there is a 99 per cent, rebate of the duty paid when the tin plate is exported in the shape of a tin case. If the tin plate workers reduce their wage. 25 per cent. American tin plate can be made cheap enough to compete with Welsh tin plate. If not the competition is impracticable. The difference in wages is greater than 25 per cent., nearer half, but the superior efficiency of American workmen makes up the difference after a 25 per cent. reduction has been made. This reduction is requisite and necessary if the American Tin Plate Company is to compete with free trade goods. It is not necessary in making American goods for the American trade. These can be supplied at current wages. They only keep the big plants busy. With a 25 per cent. reduction all the plants can be kept busy. There will be more work for the tin plate workers, but since it must be done under free trade competition it must be at a 25 per cent. re-

Yet there are people still asserting that the tariff and wages have nothing to do with each other. In this case the only effect of the tariff seems to be to give the tinplate manufacturers control of the home markets by practically excludng foreign tinplate, but it does not senable them to compete with foreign manufacturers. In other words, the American consumer is taxed to enable the tinplate manufacturers to pay the wages they do pay. But haven't the defenders of the Steel Trust, which has been clearing over 11 per cent. profit on its capital of it was the protection that enables it to compete with foreign steel makers and achieve such remarkable success in buliding up their foreign trade? Isn't the trust the Press writes about "a part of the big Trust ?"

KICKING AT THE DICKER.

It seems that the Republican machine managers in Buncombe county have found some Democratic disappointed aspirants for office in that county, and have been dickering with them, to form a combine to get possession of the offices. We do not know what may be the strength of the disappointed contingent or what kind of a bargain the Republican machine manipulators made with them, but they must have given them a pretty big hunk of the pie, for there is hard kicking by some of the loyal who wanted some of the pie themselves. They object to giving the new recruits the first and the best grab, and we don't blame them. while the new recruits are to be Price 25 cents at R. R. Bellary's left out in the cold, hungry, taken in and fed, and the hungry are expected to march up to the polls and yote so that Jeter Pritchard & Co., can get some men elected who will do their bidding and help send Jeter back to Washington to hold that seat in the Senate down for another term. If the machine manipulators can find disappointed Democratic office hankerers enough in other counties to make a dicker worth the effort there will doubtless be a good deal of that kind of thing done and we will have another verification of the warning sent out by Senator Simmons some time ago. Senator Pritchard and his aids are great as dickerers. That's their specialty. But they have never made much of success in dickering with pouting

The Samoans have a polite way of fighting when they are at war. They never attack the enemy without first sending him word, and they think it the meanest kind of business to shoot at an officer who carries only a sword and can't shoot back. ### COTTON MARKETS By Telegraph to the Morning Star higher and other months two to six points lower, following which the tendency was quite steadily down-ward with the close at about the lowest figures of the day. The feature of the day's business, which reached about 250,000 bales, was the selling by Wall street bear interests. The English market news was a disappointment. Futures there were weak and irregular, while spot cotton was neglected and unchanged. The crop reports were quite as good as any received thus far this season. The government weather - Mrs. Greene-"How do you bulletins gave showers generally in the belt, notably in the districts east of the Miss:ssippi river, where moisture is needed for the best interests of the plant. Liverpool. the South and Philadelphia interest were liberal sellers throughout the session. After the first break the scalp element turned for cover but, upon the market without recuperative power again finding sold and for the balance of the day 1,500 bales American.

market was finally barely steady with prices net twelve to sixteen points lower, the distant months showing the greatest loss.

CHICAGO, July 28.—Oats had an other sensational drop to-day, July standard selling of 12c at one time.

There was nothing particularly eventful in the trading but the weakness

naturally had an influence on the other its own. The principal of the bearish influences was the burdensome

quantity of new grain rushed to mar-
