ENDORSING TURNING THE NE-GRO OUT.

In the resolutions adopted in Greensboro by the negroes who were refused recognition, although duly elected, by the Republican convention, while advising opposition to the Republican party dominated by Senator Pritchard, they proclaimed their steadfast loyalty to the party on national issues, apparently unconscious of the fact that the action of Pritchard's convention was taken with the knowledge and consent of the party leaders in Washington. The Washington Post mentions it as "significant fact" that Senato Pritchard, at whose dictation the negro delegates were excluded, went straight from Oyster Bay, where he had a conference with the President, to Greensboro, where the ejecting was done.

The programme of getting rid of the negro in the convention was not a suddenly sprung one, but was deliberately planned and carried out. It began in the county conventions, in some of which there was not a negro present, although in former years they participated with and sat side by side with the white delegates. The freezing out began in the county conventions, preliminary to the culminating freeze out by the State convention, ruled by Senator Pritchard, who had come straight from his conference with Mr. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay. Of course Mr. Rossevelt knew what was contemplated and approved it; if he hadn't it would not have been done. Now since it has been done and the negro has been unceremoniously ejected from the councils of the party (although he will presumably be permitted to vote the Republican ticket) some of the Republican organs in the North has undertaken to explain this action and justify The Philadelphia Press is not only a recognized leading organ of the party, but it comes as near being an organ of the administration as any paper in the country, the relations which existed between the President and Mr. T. Emory Smith, former Postmaster General, still continuing, if we may judge from the loyalty it shows in defending the administration policies and its high tributes to Mr. Roosevelt as a leader and statesman. In Monday's issue it discussed the elimination of the negro from the Pritchard convention, and undertook to explain it and defend it thus:

The action of the Alabama and North Carolina Republicans in refusing to admit colored delegates to their State conventions is giving the Democratic newspapers an opportunity to express some sneering opinions as to the Republican party deserting the colored man. There has been no such desertion, and the Republican party is as anxious to accord the black man his political rights as it ever was, and does accord them wherever it can.

The situation is this: In every Southern State in which the Democratic party is in power the suffrage privileges of the colored man have been abridged by fraud or by law. In five States this has been done by constitutional enactments, and Alabama and North Carolina are two of these States. The Republican party is powerless to there should be community of interprevent this unless these constitutional enactments are declared void by the est between them, not strikes. Arbitration was desirable, but "we should," he continued, "go further, Supreme Court of the United States. The Republican party accordingly to the root of things." says that men who by the laws of their States are refused to vote should not be allowed to assist in making nominations for which they cannot vote at the

The difference between the Republivent disputes in any country that can and Democratic parties in this matter is that the Republican party says that while the colored man ought to vote, so long as he cannot vote he ought not to be admitted to nominating conventions; while the Democratic party insists that the colored man is not fit to vote, but that he shall be represented in Congress. In the next Congress there will be about fifty have a better conception than some Representatives from the South based of the native-born who aspire to on the colored population of that section, and in electing these fifty Rep- leadership. This is Minister Wu Ting-fang's view, but it isn't the view of the Secretary of the Treasury, Shaw, and other Republican lights, who seem to hold that the people are not competent to dictate public questions in which they are interested, and that a few men know what is good for them better than they do themselves. That's practically the position that Secretary Shaw takes when he says that when Congress gets together if they find that any changes in the tariff may be necessery and they can agree on the changes, they will make them, and this in the face of such a demand for tariff revision in his own party as was ever made before. Mr. Shaw, and other Republican leaders do not seem to have as much respect late season a full crop will be harfor the intelligence and sense of the American people as Minister Wu Ting-fang, the Chinaman, has.

WHAT KIND OF A PARTY IS

Assuming, as a matter of courteous concession, that the Republican party of this State may at some time n the past have been governed to some extent by principle, it would be an abuse of language to say that t is so now. Ever since Jeter C Pritchard (then not a Senator) ma pipulated the fusion with the Populists, and held his principles "in abeyance" to accomplish that, the party has been run' on the "boldprinciples-in-abeyance," expediency, dicker idea. Principle has been totally ignored, and the rule has been with Pritchard and his associates to trade with any party, or any set of men who had votes to swap, provided that party or those men would agree to support Pritchard and his proteges for the offices they wanted. This is practically what they did The first time that a body of our in the late convention at Greens laboring men was ever addressed by boro. They put up a thing of straw and called it a platform, a thing which utterly ignored the leading issues of the day, ignored some of the fundamental principles of the party, turned the cold shoulder to we may judge from the following the most loyal and unselfish element in the party, and went merchandising for the votes of "commercial" Democrats who were led to believe they would profit by entering into political partnership with Jeter C. Pritchard & Co., Pritchard managing the merger. What kind of a party is it which acknowledges that it has not respectable men enough in it to make up a State ticket, or principles enough left to make a respectable showing in a platform? That is precisely the position Pritchard's convention put itself in and yet it professed to represent the substantial element of North Carolina citizenship and as such had the effrontery to appeal for support.

The cleverest financier that we have read of lately was the young man who went into the town of Elnora, Indiana, last April, with a dress suit case and seven dollars in cash as his total assets, and started a bank. He ran the bank until he had accumulated $10,000 deposits. One night he removed the deposits and also himself. The depositors would give $500 to see him and have offered that much to anyone who will bring him back to Elnora.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The cotton market opened steady with prices five points lower to one point higher un der scattering sales by less confident longs, who were influenced by failure of Liverpool to fully respond to last night's "sensational" rise here. Nevertheless soon after the call the buil faction took the aggressive and quickly bid the whole list well above the closing figures of yesterday. January touched 8.66, which was top for the bull movement inaugurated weeks ago. But at this heavy realizing set in and later bear pressure became a factor for the first time in many days. The cause for this return of confidence on the short side and the less optimistic feeling in bull circles was the appearance of official bulletins showing general and soaking rains over extensive areas of the belt, including Georgia, Alabama and Texas. The forecast promised still further rains for to-night and to-morrow, with lower temperature. Very large receipts at the ports and interior towns, with large estimates for to morrow's movement added to the heaviness of the market which late in the day resulted in break to 8.44 for January. The commission houses were large sellers and the South and Europe ceased covering. The easier ruling of the stock market, with higher money, was not without influence. The volume of business was large all through the session, with the chief feature liquidation. The bull syndicate led the selling pretty much all day, though several times making attempts to check the rush of selling in order to prevent too rapid declines. The market was finally easy and net sixteen to twentyone points lower. Total sales were estimated at 500,000 bales. The r ports from dry goods, cotton goods and spot cotton markets were more cheering, and in the South several large spot sales were reported.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 -- Grain trade was of an irregular and dazzling nature to-day. Yesterday prices boomed on the expectation of frosts, but to-day when the frosts were reported prices ended toward recessions because the rosts were not hard enough and because warmer weather might be near. There was good support in wheat for a ime by a big elevator house which helped near futures somewhat.
