MARK HANNA ANSWERS HIMSELF.

Mark Hanna made a stumping tour through Indiana last week and made several speeches a day.

There were generally large crowds to hear him, because his fame as a hustling and resourceful party manager and fund collector makes him a drawing card.

People want to see him whether they want to hear him or not.

Like all the rest of his party stumpers Mark is a claimant. He claims on the principle of claiming or the Republican party and its policies everything worth claiming.

This is a perfectly safe thing to do when there is no one around to question the claims or to remind Mr. Hanna how absurd a sensible man can make himself appear when he is more intent upon humbugging the people to whom he talks than upon being logical or consistent.

When he reached Indianapolis the party leaders gave him a grand reception—"an ovation," as the wires inform us. The Republicans turned out in force and the hall in which he spoke wasn't large enough to hold the people who came to see or hear him, or both.

There he made one of his characteristic, claim-alike speeches, the substance of which is thus given in the wired report. After referring by way of introduction to Ohio and the Tom Johnson "circus" campaign, he said:

"But I am not discussing Ohio State issues to-night. Our record, our platform, our slogan, our record of the Republican party for forty years, and if any argument were needed to satisfy the people of this country, if any argument were needed to make further converts among the antagonists of our party, it would be necessary for me to analyze its progress, year by year, beginning at the birth of this party, when its foundation was laid on protection and sound money."

Senator Hanna then reviewed the events of the last ten years. He declared that there was no prosperity before 1896, and said the good times during the present era were due to the election of President McKinley. In speaking of the results of the election of 1896, he said:

"Hope and faith took possession of every heart, as if it needed only that, that we might resume a normal condition of things in this country."

"It was because of that confidence, because of the victory of those principles, that the men who controlled the great industrial and commercial interests of this country laid their plans for a wider and broader business. That confidence has been maintained from that day to this, because the people of this country have been true to those policies and because every election has given its verdict upon these principles."

"It is a natural sequence of our natural advantages that we should be prosperous. It is not an abnormal condition. Foremost in our industries and conventions we have taken possession of the markets of the East. In 1898, for the first time in our history, our exports of manufactured goods, the products of our factories and mills exceeded our importations, and from that day to this we have been gaining in every market of the world in competition even with the cheap labor of Europe, because our better finished articles and because our

As Old Age Creeps On

Men and Women Can Keep Themselves Hale, Vigorous, and Happy by Using Paine's Celery Compound

The human system in old age must have a sufficient store of nervous energy and rich, nourishing blood, so that the liver and kidneys may be kept in perfect action, and the body free from pain. Paine's Celery Compound is the true invigorator when old age creeps on and the vital powers commence to fail.

"My wife and I have used two bottles of Paine's Celery Compound with great advantage to our general health. It cured her rheumatism and proved a good regulator of the system in general, and a tonic for the nerves. In my case I have found it a cure for kidney trouble arising from old age, as I am now in my 75th year. In this trouble it has given me almost instant relief."

FRITCHARD'S EXTRAVAGANCE YAWP.

Senator Fritchard is trying to make capital for his party in this campaign by charging the Democratic party with extravagance in the expenditure of the State's money, notwithstanding the fact every dollar appropriated and expended is accounted for and shown to have been legitimately and properly expended.

As a sound money party it gave us greenbacks and national bank currency, instead of the gold and silver of the Democratic party.

He repeats the rot about prosperity coming to the country in consequence of the election of McKinley, when every intelligent person knows that the country had begun to recover from the industrial depression (which began in Harrison's administration), before Cleveland's term expired, when the Wilson tariff was in full force.

After claiming all the prosperity for his party he ingeniously remarks that "It is a natural sequence of our natural advantages that we should be prosperous." Of course it is. But how does this accord with the claim that we owe our prosperity to the principle of protection on which "the Republican party is founded?"

This is precisely what the opponents of this high protective system have been contending all along, that it is to our natural advantages, the genius, enterprise and resourcefulness of our people, and not to protective tariffs that we are indebted for our prosperity. We have had prosperity under all kinds of tariffs, low and high, and some of the greatest progress we made was under low tariffs, which the Republicans would call "free trade."

He informs his hearers that we planted our commercial flag on the frontiers of the Orient, and having triumphed there invaded Europe when as a matter of fact we had an established and growing trade in the European markets before we dreamed of the Philippines, or had made any headway worth mentioning in the Orient, where our trade now with all this boasting is insignificant compared with the trade that England and Germany have in that region.

But in this paragraph he again answers himself when he says, "We have been gaining in every market of the world in competition with the cheap labor of Europe, because of our better furnished article and because our products are more salable and acceptable." And yet he tells us that our manufacturers need a high prohibitive tariff to protect them from the "cheap labor of Europe." That's the apology for and main defense of the high tariff at this day.

It is fortunate for Mark and his party that when he talks in this floundering, self-contradicting fashion he is not engaged in a joint discussion with some one to come after him and confront him with his own inconsistency.

There isn't much of a rush of emigration from this country to the Philippines, but this doesn't prevent Gen. Fred Grant from advising his fellow citizens on this side that they have nothing to gain by venturing in that direction. Some time ago the expansion boomers were discouraging eloquently on what an inviting field that was for the American workers. They were working the

The per capita circulation was $28.75, but there are lots of folks scattered around through the various sections of this country who do not get their digits on $28.75 in twelve months.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have relief from the same troubles by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Discovery.

According to reports of the U. S. Geological Survey, the increase in the consumption of soft coal has more than doubled in the past five years, while there has been but little increase in the consumption of anthracite. Manufacturers find bituminous the cheaper fuel and stick to it after they try it.

HOW THE OIL TRUST IS PROTECTED.

In reply to the assertion that the high tariff fosters trusts, the protectionists point to the Oil Trust and the Coal Trust—the anthracite Trust—and exclaim behold these. They are not protected, and yet they have both grown to be colossal in proportions. When both oil and anthracite are on the free list, how, they say, can it be maintained that the protective tariff is responsible for the trusts.

Notwithstanding the fact that if this were true it would prove nothing, for it is against all the rules of logic to argue from particulars to generalities, still this is not true, for neither oil nor coal is really on the free list. They are there with a proviso which practically takes them off the free list. They are there simply to fool people who judge them by the company in which they are found. To what extent "petroleum is on the free list is shown by the following bearing upon it, in the Dingley tariff."

If there be imported into the United States crude petroleum, or the products of crude petroleum, produced in any country which imposes a duty on the product exported to the United States, there shall in such cases be levied, paid and collected a duty upon said crude petroleum, or its products so imported, equal to the duties imposed on the same by the tariff in force at the time of importation.

Under this proviso the customs of ficers are instructed to collect on petroleum from the countries named as follows: Russia, 91 cents a barrel; Germany, $2.07; France, $2.80 on refined and $2.00 on crude; East Indies, 58 cents; Roumania, $4.96 on crude and $3.72 on refined; Peru, $4.22; Canada, $3.50 on refined and $2.10 on crude; Mexico, $12.85 on refined and $3.85 on crude.

To prevent evading the tariff tax by shipping petroleum to free trade countries, this act imposes duty on all such oil, crude, refined, or worked into compounds. It is subjected to duty, although the country from which it is shipped levies no duty upon American oil. Doesn't this give the Oil Trust all the protection it wants?

And so with anthracite. All over 92 per cent pure carbon is on the free list. But there is none of that kind produced in Wales, where the principal anthracite mines are on the other side of the sea, and very little in Pennsylvania. Under this provision anthracite is as fully protected as bituminous coal is.

Chicago suicide rate this year is 23.6 to the 100,000 of population, which is about seven times the rate for the country at large. This shows that when people want to get out of Chicago they will get out some way.

THE HARVESTER combine expects to make during the next year a net profit of 75 per cent on the $120,000,000 stock. The harvester combine seems to be a sort of self-reaper and binder.—Atlanta Journal.

And now it is said that a lot of independent steel companies have bought such a quantity of rich ore lands in Michigan and Minnesota that they will be able to fight the Steel Trust. What is probably meant is that they want to be taken on the ground floor; for when foreign competition is killed by tariff, domestic competition must go, too. Brooklyn Citizen Dem.

Secretary Shaw in his plea for ship subsidies, declared that "95 per cent of their cost is paid for labor. With only 5 per cent to be divided between the manufacturer of all classes, from the forest and the mines to the ship adrift on the sea, capitalists evidently have a right to complain that there is nothing in it for them. Most of them want at least 10 per cent. every time the raw material is turned over in the process of manufacture.—Mobile Register, Dem.

"Although the Northwest is held to be the great granary of the country, the South is able to furnish its own bread. The States of Tennessee, Kentucky, the two Virginias, Maryland and Texas produce in 1900 more than 70,000,000 bushels of wheat, giving a yield to the acre of fourteen bushels, being two bushels more than the average yield of the whole country.—New Orleans Picayune, Dem.
