The Pilots were represented at the meeting yesterday by Capts. S. F. Oraig, J. W. Oraig, William St. George J. J. Adking. They made no sn cific fight against the resolution as adopted except that part of the text which declared the present system to be detrimental to the interests of the port. In fact, the Pilot's Association as a member of the Chamber, voted for the resolution with the understanding that it would be allowed representation at the conference to which the matter was referred. The following were present at yesterday afternoon's meeting: President cream, cakes, cigars, etc. The ladies James H. Chadbourn, Secretary James Lookout. Kyle and Measurs. J. A. Arringdale, L. B. Rogers, G. J. Boney, R. A. Parsley, J. A. Taylor, Roger Moore, R. N. Sweet, Hugh MacRae, J. W. Brooks, H. K. Nash, Jos. H. Watters, E. L. Holloway, of the Angola Lumber Co., Col. Walker Taylor, Capts. S. F. and J. W. Craig J. J. Adkins and Wm. St. George. President Chadbourn, in calling the done. meeting to order, stated its object and said those present had assembled to discusss the pilotage question purely as a business matter; that the Chamber of Commerce was in a measure guardian of the interests of Wilmington and he hoped the discussion would be in a fair, business way. Mr. H. K. Nash moved a resolution much the same but not as drastic as that which came later from Mr. Parsley, and freight. opened the discussion. Mr. Hugh MacRae was the first speaker. He said according to the terms of the resolution that the matter Bear, No. 116 North Fifth street, Miss will probably not come before the Lilly Bear will be united in marriage Chamber again, and he thought there to Mr. Julius Sternberger, a popular should be an expression of opinion young business man of this city and and, in voting, he would like to go on a member of the firm of Sternberger record as saying that the compulsory pilotage law has been very detrimental to the growth of Wilmington; that he was not directly, but was indirectly interested in common with every citizen of the community. He said there seemed so much "hidden evil" in the matter he would be glad to see it cleared up. If Wilmington is to be a great city, it must be through its seaport, and he hoped this pilotage matter would be taken up in consecutive The County Board of Education, all and business-like manner. members having been present, was in Mr. Nash asked Mr. MacRas how session a short time last night and compulsory pilotage had been detricompleted the apportionment of the mental to the port, but in the meanschool fund to the various districts in time, Mr. J. Mr. Parsley drew a comparison of rates in favor of Virginia, Georgia and Florida and Mr. Arringdale went into details, giving figures to support his claims as to lower charges at Norfolk. Sayannah and Brunswick. He said no vessels came here seeking for freight on account of the rates, and Capt. Adkins asked if stevedoring rates did not have something to do with it. Mr. Arringdale explained that rates for stevedoring were higher here, because vessels have to be more compactly loaded to pass Hatteras and Mr. J. W.
