THE STOCKMEN ON MERGERS. TARIFF, &C.

The National Live Stock Association met in annual convention at Kansas City, Mo., last Tuesday and heard some pretty breezy talk on the Beef Trust, the proposed merger, the tariff, protection, &c. In the address of President Springer, of Denver, he thus waved the red flag and served notice on the gentlemen who are behind the proposed beef merger, the scheme the big four who compose the Beef Trust have hit upon to circumvent the Sherman law, and get away with Attorney General Knox:

"Never before was such an unholy combination attempted. Not content with amassing colossal fortunes in the last two decades from the stock raisers of the West, these same packers now blossom out as would-be dictators. "The stockmen of the United States bave more than four billion working capital. If forced to do so, you can build packing plants of your own, kill your own stock, market the product and undersell any packing house trust. We have men outside of this 'charmed circle' who have money, brains and energy, and with these three they also have hearts left in their physical anat-

"Let us pronounce sentence that if this merger is consummated it can operate its five hundred million dollar merger without cattle, without sheep and without hogs, for we own the raw material and we will refuse to sell to any packing house combination."

This sounds plucky whether means business or is only bluff, but if these stock men are half as well financially heeled as their President says they are they would give the merger people a somewhat bilious time and make them feel very sick. But they must play a bold game if they hope to hold their own for if they don't and do not stand together and fight together, and that merger be organized they will be as completely in its power as the so-called independent steel plants of the country are in the power of the Steel Trust, or the so-called independent oil plants are in the power of the Rockefeller Oil Trust.

lease or otherwise of large areas of grazing lands upon which it would raise its own cattle, and then it would be good bye to the stock raiser, who didn't come to its terms, so that the issue is up to the stock men and they must meet it without dodging or surrender unconditionally, and that means that they would be completely in the power of the merger magnates.

Having thus served notice on the merger fellows he hurled a few remarks at Kaiser William's land thus:

"Oar interests firmly and fully believe in a reciprocity which recipro cates. We advocate a give and take policy such as the great McKinley outlined. Not only this, but we ad vocate that the Congress of the United States pass a bill directing the President, whenever in his judgment it may be necessary, to retaliate against any foreign government arbitrarily and unjustly discriminating against American goods or products when the same is as wholly unjustifiable as the proposed German tariff bill now uner consideration in Germany, which, if passed, will exclude from that country twenty five per cent. of all our meal exports. The alleged excuse is that our canned meats are diseased and dangerous to the health of the people of the Fatherland, which we all know is false in every particular.

This is a case of protection vs. protection. This country protects its products by a practically prohibitive tariff against the products of other countries which might come into competition with our products, and Germany is simply doing like-wise, in the interests of the agrarians and others who assert that they have been hurt by American competition. They want American meats kept out of their market, just as our beneficiaries of the protective tariff want the preducts of Germany and other countries with which they would have to compete kept out of this country. It is simply a case of protection carried to the extreme on both sides, and it is as proper, reasonable and defensible on one side as on the other. They may in Germany, as Mr. Springer asserts, give a fraudulent reason for drawing the line so tight against American meats, when they declare that they are unhealthful, &c., but so do our protected manufacturers and others give fraudulent reasons for insisting upon the protection they have when they could get along with a good deal less or none at all, all of which serves as an instructive object lesson showing the intense selfishness in the protective system, when the object is to protext a few at the expense of the many and make the many pay so dearly to promote the prosperity of the few.

- Oxford Ledger: The directors of the Furniture Factory met Tuesda night at the law office of Mr. H. M. Shaw to cast up the account for the year 1903. After going over the matters thoroughly, and placing to profit and loss account all bad debts due, a dividened of 6 per cent. upon the cap ital stock was declared after leaving undivided net profits in excess of that amount. With a better and more efficient class of labor, and with new and up-to-date designs, the out-look for 1908 is very gratifying to the directors. They are making large quantities of quarter-sawed oak suits this year.

In the case of a woven wire fence with square openings, even with four inch mesh, they will push their heads through the openings and get hung by their horns. With this kind of a fence it was necessary to visit them two or three times a day to release the prisoners. A poultry fence (not poultry netting) with small diamond shaped openings has proved perfectly satisfactory.

"In 1901 we gave them too extensive range, and they did but little clearing up. In May, 1902, six ewes, one buck and five kids were put in an acre of young woodland of a mixed growth, most of the trees three to six inches in diameter. There was a quite thick growth of underbrush. The small underbrush of birch, maple, hazel bush, stc., has been cleaned up so that where there are no alders or evergreens the ground under the trees is as clean as though it had been burned over. Sweet fern they do not like very well, but they have cleaned all of the hardhack out of this piece. Ferns and brakes have been eaten to some extent. They have eaten the leaves and younger sprigs of bushes in preference to grass. Birches two inches or more in diameter they have not injured, but they have stripped the bark from every maple. Even maple trees six inches in diameter have been thus killed We have found them to be fond of the bark from old trees. To clean up birch or evergreen woodland they have proved very effective. There has been practically no cost for the summer's ceeping. The twelve goats have been kept without other tood on one acre of young woodland.
