THURSDAY MORNING, APBIL 23

FREEZING OUT THE IOWA IDEA.

It has become apparent from the utterances of President Roosevelt in his Milwaukee speech, and the speeches of Secretary Shaw, Secretary Root, Senator Cullom, and other Republican leaders that they have decided to relegate the "Iowa idea," as it is called, and humbug the people with something else, and the indications are that they will make Governor Cummins, of Iowa, the great champion of that idea, take water. Sometime ago in a speech before a Republican convention in Des Moines he declared that there would be no let up in the demand for tariff revision, at least on such articles as it had been demonstrated no longer need tariff protection, and pledged himself to use all the influence he could bring to bear to have incorporated in the platform adopted by the next National Republican convention a plank pledging the party to tariff revision.

Shortly after that, in a published interview, Senator Allison, of Iowa, expressed himself as opposed to tariff revision at this time, thus declaring against bringing the Iowa idea to the front, and also declaring against reciprocity treaties, which would require tariff reduction with the countries with which we sought reciprocity, as impracticable.

Another significant fact, and one which indicates that Governor Cummins, after all his bold talk, is crawfishing, is the tone of the Des Moines Register, the leading Republican paper of the State and the reputed organ of Governor Cummins, which in a leading editorial on that question says that while tariff revision is an important matter and something that must come in time, the country is now prosperous, it can stand high tariff taxation, and that Republicans must not permit themselves to become divided, into contending camps and into the trap the Demo crats have laid for them, but must remain united and work harmoniously to prevent the defeat of the party, and then in their own good time they can bring the lowa idea to the front again and insist upon its recognition by the Republican statesmen. That's the same old gag rehashed, telling what they propose to do when the opportune time comes, but the remarkable thing about it is that it is dished out by the organ of Governor Cummins, the doughty champion of tariff reform, who has talked so emphatically and frankly for tariff revision, not in some indefinite time to come, but by the next Congress, and apparently with his sanction, too. He will probably be placated and brought into harmony with the statesmen who, like Secretary Root, are opposed to "tariff tinkering," and, like Senator Hanna, insist upon "letting well enough alone."

- Asheboro Courier: Messrs. C. C. Oranford and J. C. Davis have purchased a lot, and are erecting thereon spoke and handle factory.

- Greenville Reflector: Rev. J. T. Phillips, near Farmville, died Sunday morning. He was about 40 years old. In the days of Fusion control he represented this county one term in the Legislature.

- Tarboro Southerner: A rat catch Monday about 6:30 o'clock came very near proving most costly. In the office of Murphy, Jenkins & Co., Mr. Jenkins set a trap to catch a rat. The rat sprung the trap, the trap struck a match, the match set fire to some bags. A timely discovery did the rest.

- Winston Republican: Some weeks ago the Republican printed an item relating to the 8-year-old son of Mr. Leander Woosley, of Arcadia, Davidson county, who, while eating persimmons, accidentally swallowed a seed which gave him much trouble and pain. It was decided that an operation was the only relief and young Woosley was brought here to the Twin-City Hospital for that pnrpose. While Dr. Dalton was arranging to take the case in hand, the boy had a coughing spell, the seed came up and he spat it out.

- Troy Examiner: Asa Morgan, Compound, which promptly restores who was sentenced to twenty years in the kidneys to health and enables the penitentiary last January for the them to perform their functions. The mules became frightened and ran, dragging the unfortunate man some distance before they could be stopped. Within a short time after he was taken from under the wagon he died.

- Fayetteville Observer: The Pine Product Construction Company, of which Lieutenant A. A. The next thing in order will be muzzling Congressman Babcock, of Wisconsin, who declares that tariff revision must not be relegated, for the 58th Congress is pledged to it.

But they had to have something more than an indefinite promise of something in the near or the remote future to humbug the Republican voters with, and hence they have struck on a grand scheme which was outlined in a speech by Senator Cullom, of Illinois, in Philadelphia last Saturday night, the gist of which is given in the following from the Washington correspondence of the Baltimore Sun:

The "lowa ides," which is also the Illinois idea and the idea in a great many States where the Republicans look for their support at a national election, is apparently losing its hold on Republican leaders who were at one time disposed to respect it. It is being explained that there is no sentiment within the Republican party that amounts to antagonism to the policy of high protection, and that everything can be adjusted to the satisfaction of the people who want a reduction of the tariff by simply not doing anything. The President and the leaders who are embarrassed by the "Iowa idea" think they can avoid an issue on the tariff by supplanting it with the suggestion of a new policy of great activity in the development of trade with South and Central America. Senator Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois, who has been reckoned as one of those who see the need of a reduction in the tariff, volced in his speech in Philadelphia last night the new "idea" which is calculated on to distract attention from the "Iowa idea." It is felt that a policy looking to the great development of trade between the republics of this continent would meet with popular approval, and that it could be advanced to a considerable extent without serious secrifice of features of the Republican tariff scheme which the party
