ABILITY WASTED IN CRIME.

SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 7.

Louisville Courier. Journal: That the ingenuity and energy devoted to criminal pursuits would insure a comfortable living and an easy competence if applied to honest labor is a truism. A fresh and effective illustration of this was furnished last week in the killing by a train of "Big Jim" Brady, one of the most noted burglars of thirty years ago, who had just left the Westchester, New York, poorhouse after a stay of three years. He was seventyeight years old and had been admitted to the institution in a starving condition, added to which he was desperately ill. His record was well known, and when he went into the poorhouse his life was thought to be only a question of a few weeks. Nevertheless he fought his way back to health and when ready applied for his discharge. When his dead body was picked up by the side of the railroad there was tightly clutched in his hand a bag containing a complete set of burglars' tools of the most modern description. One of them was an electric torch, decidedly a new thing in burglary It turned out that the kit of tools was his own handiwork, constructed with the rudest sort of instruments, but of excellent workmanship. Seventyeight years old and feeble as he must have been, he had struggled away from his place of refuge obviously to return to his old life of desperation and crime.

Brady belonged to the higher classes of criminals. He was an expert bank burglar, and it is said no safe lock was invented that could defeat his skill. He did some very profitable jobs in his line, the total of his "lootings" amounting, it is said, to half a million dollars. His all he got out of this fortune and for the desperate chances he took were long years in prison, shattered health and death unwept and alone under home as a rapidly assisted immithe engine wheels of an express grant." Turbulent Thomas For-Had he devoted his unquestioned abilities as a mechanic to legitimate pursuits he might have been a sort of Charles Schwab, who lifted himself in comparative youth to the ranks of the millionaires solely by his energy and his skill as an artisan.

The difference between the two men was that Schwab was a normal and honest man, and "Big Jim" Brady had no moral basis for an otherwise strong character. He chose the wrong road of life and was severely punished even on this earth.

EXTORTION IN A PERIOD OF altercation with the police. - Savan-DISTRESS.

Baltimore Sun: The flood in Kansas City cut off to a great extent the food supply by rail, and a number of merchants who had large stocks on hand took advantage of the situation to advance prices. The merchandise they sold had not cost them one cent more than the usual market price. And yet numbers of the grocers and provision dealers did not hesitate to take advantage of the necessities of the people, poor and rich alike, to demand famine prices. Beef went up to $1 a pound, potatoes to $3 a bushel, and other things in proportion. A great portion of the population are unable to pay these prices, and there was, of "Excuse me, but are we dancing or course, much deprivation and suffering in consequence. The City Council took cognizance of the situation and passed an ordinance forbidding extortionate or unreasonable prices "for water and other necessaries of life." The ordinance fixes a penalty up to $500, and persons who were overcharged were advised to appeal to the police. Whether the City Council has the authority to enforce such an ordinance is a question of law. But the enactment of the ordinance is an expression of public sentiment which may have some effect upon the extortionate dealers. Last Winter while the supply of coal wes limited not one ton of that limited supply cost any more to mine and haul than the usual sum. And yet the price in most of the Eastern cities was doubled and sometimes almost quadrupled by some of the operators. In consequence of this extertion there was much suffering among the poor and doubtless much disease and many deaths. But just as with the Kansas City food sellers, some of these coal men had no pity. The public press in Kansas City is denouncing the merchants who are advancing the price of the necessaries of life undaly as robbers. It is difficult to differentiate the morals of such men from those who rebbed and wounded ing and dying in the highway.

Worst of All Experiences. Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last; Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, of Decatur, Ala. "For three years," she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from Indigestion, Stomach and Bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters, and the result was miraculous. I improved at once, and now I am completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50 cents. It is guaranteed by R. B. Bessamy, deuggist.

CURRENT COMMENT.

- In line with a recent editorial in this paper entitled, "The Danger to the South," we call attention to the fact that the Ohio Convention, that was dominated by Roosevelt, made a platform declaring that "justice requires any State excluding any of its citizens from the ballot to be proportionally reduced in representation in the electoral college and in the lower House of Representatives." The South has a good deal at stake in the next Presidential campaign and so has the Northern Democracy, unless both have a hankering to remain in a lean and beggarly minority.— Charlotte News, (Dem.)

- President Roosevelt seems to be having things his own way, and if he lives he will be the Republican nominee for the Presidency next year. Mr. Roosevelt is a popular man, and we are willing to give him all the credit that is due him, but he is not a safe man, he has not the confidence of the business men of the United States, and it is our deliberate opinion that if the Democrats in 1904 will nominate a safe, conservative man for the Presidency, and put him on a sound Democratic platform, they will win. It is a great opportunity, and it is to be hoped that the Democrats will not let it slip. - Richmond Times-Democrat, Dem.

- "Why should Cuba be allowed to go to London to borrow the thirty-five millions she needs? Do American financiers fail to recognize the importance of maintaining preponderant influence in the island republic naturally bound to us? Do we forget that the financial tie is in these days far the most influential. of all, and quickly comoines with itself the commercial and the political? With prospects so happy, after a year of prosperity under sober and responsible government, Cuba should have no difficulty in getting any reasonable sum in the United States at a lower rate of interest than she would have to pay abroad."-Philadelphia Ledger: - The information is gathered from a cable dispatch published in the Washington Post that T Thomas Fortune, President Roose velt's special labor commissioner to the Philippine Islands, "who recent ly had a difficulty with the police of Manilla, has been "sent home by the government." It appears from the information received and published by a Honolulu paper that Turbulent Thomas is "returning tune, as is very well tor of New York. During the course of a speech made at Honolulu while on his way to investigate for the President the conditions of labor in the Philippines, he said: "Booker Washington preaches the gospel of work; I preach the gospel of dissension;" and that very well describes him. He prefers kicking up a row about something to honest labor, and it was because he was so noisy and bothersome that he was shipped across the Pacific by the Republican bosses. Puffed up with his own importance, it seems that the only thing he did worthy of notice while in Manila was to get into an nah News, Dem.

Cheerfulness. It is said there is nothing which diffuses itself more quickly in a family than the coolness, indifference and discontent which manifest themselves in the countenances of one of its members. This thought is not absolutely true. There are some things which communicate themselves with as much rapidity and more force. They are a bright smile, a frank and open manner, a cheerful face, a happy heart.-Selected.

- Mount Airy News: The farmers over in the Brim section and in a portion of Patrick are calculating on a short crop of tobacco this year. while a representative farmer from the Ash Hill section of the county said to us Saturday that he believed nearly an average crop would be cured this fall. - Monroe Journal: Mr. T. H Simpson, who runs a distillery two miles south of town, had a herd of about sixty-five hogs. The other day a negro who works about the place concluded that the hogs needed some salt, and proceeded to give it to them in considerable quantity, after which fifteen of them lay down

- Wadesboro Messenger-Intelligencer: The small grain crop of this section, which is now being harvested, is turning out much better than was expected at one time. Oats will be more than an average crop and wheat will probably average about half a crop. The recent showers have brought cotton to a stand in most sections. The crop is about two weeks late and the weed is small.

- Newton Gazette: The excitement over the sinking of Sugar Loaf Mountain has about quieted down. There is no doubt but what cracks have appeared on the side of the mountain and in some places the round has settled or sunk to the lepth of three to five feet. There has been no noise or rumbling in the earth and no smoke or fire has een seen, except in the imagination of some sensational newspaper

- Rockingham Anglo Sazon: Mr A. C. Covington tells of a curiosity he saw in Montgomery county re-cently. Mr. John B. Usher, of that county, has an apple tree which bears alternately on one side one year and on the other side the next year, the one side being loaded with fruit and the other entirely bare. This has been its habit for a number of years. - Mr. Covington says he visited the Iola gold mine while over there, which is one of the richest mines in the country. They are getting from it an average of four pounds of gold ore per day, of the value of $166. It is said that a mine has recently been discovered on Mr. Frank Baldwin's place, in this county, which promises to be a very rich one. Interest in searching for gold in the territory just north of us has been very much intensified recently.

THE KINDNESS OF DISEASE.

With our forefathers disease was an evil influence. We should no longer look at it in that way-at least, so we are assured in a recent address by Sir Frederick Treves, an English physician. To the modern expert, he says, disease is merely the outcome of natural processes, whose purpose at bottom is a kindly or beneficent one. Its symptoms are merely "expressions of a natural effort toward cure." They are "not malign in intent, but have for their end the ridding of the body of the very troubles which they are supposed to represent." After all, however, this view is not so very new. Even in the middle ages wise men talked of the "curative force of nature," and in this phrase lies the truth on which Sir Frederick has based his lecture. Still it is frequently forgotten that nature means well by us, and it is a good thing to be once in awhile reminded of it

Origin of the Thoroughbred. Before the Cambridge Philosophcal society in England recently Professor Ridgeway produced evidence, historical and scientific, to prove that the Barbary horse, from which all the fine horses of the world have sprung, was derived either from the zebra of northeast Africa or, more likely, from some very closely allied species now extinct. North Africa, therefore, and not Arabia, is the original home of the thoroughbred. More than 900 years before Christ King Solomon imported horses from Egypt, and Egypt got them from Lybia. "It is now clear," says Professor Ridgeway, "that the Arabs never owned a good horse until they had become masters of north Africa and the Barbary horses, from which is sprung our own racing stock."

During the past year we have seen £4,100 paid for a tiny Tudor gilt cup, 1521, scarcely more than four inches in height, and £3,000 for a standing saltcellar, 1577, about seven and a half inches high, the former price working out at £290 per ounce and the latter £330 per ounce. A James I. silver gilt cup, nineteen inches high, further realized the comfortable fortune of £4,000, and a Henry VII. spoon, partly gilt, went for £690. The possession of these little articles must be a source of great responsibilityalthough doubtless many of us would cheerfully endure the responsibility if we could get them given to us.—John Bull's Year Book.

Not Such an Unusual Feat. Dr. de Sarak a few weeks ago lectured in Washington on "Occult Science." After his address he gave a demonstration of his power when, by concentrating his mind on it, he smashed into smithereens a bottle full of water. The incident caused comment and was discussed by several senators gathered in the cloakroom of the capitol.

"Imagine breaking a bottle by thinking of it," said one of statesmen in amazement. "That's nothing," said Senator Spooner blandly, "I've known men to think of a bottle and break a dollar."-Detroit Free Press.

CONDENSED STORIES

How the Late Judge French Surprised a Lying Witness.

Judge French, who recently died in England, was a genuine humorist himself and appreciated humor in others, says Leslie's Weekly. He often used to say that no man without a sense of humor could have borne the pathos of the sordidness of life and the absolute lack of character which were exhibited in his courts. The litigants he loved least were those who thought he was to be easily deceived by lying. He was a master hand at telling which side was lying the least. One day in an interpleader action a man set up the plea that he had lent his son $1,200. It seemed impossible to tell where the truth lay. All the parties were foreigners and addressed the bench as "Your most noble honor." "Ah. now," said Judge French, "how kind it was of your father to lend $1,200." The man thought the judge believed him. "And how did $1,200." The man thought you carry that $1,200?" asked his honor. "All in mine pockets in the good gold," replied the witness, still laughing. "Ah, what a load!" went on the judge. "Yes, what a load!" responded the witness. "I don't believe a word of it," returned the judge; "judgment for the execution, creditor."

The Red Men's Rigs. Colonel Bill Sterrett used to tell story about the man who went into the Indian Territory to sell baby carriages.

Everybody said he was crazy. It was admitted that there was a fine crop of babies in the territory, but no one could see what the squaws, who were used to packing their offspring on their backs, could do with baby carriages.

Still, orders began to come back, first for dozens and then for car-

"SQUAWS WERE PUSHING THEM AROUND. loads, and finally Sterrett went up to investigate. He went into one of the Indian villages.

"And I'll be dashed," said Colonel
Bill, "if I didn't see a dozen big fat Indians sitting in baby carriages, all scrouged up, while the squaws were pushing them around. The baby carriage man had made the Indians believe that baby carriages were the right kind of pleasure rigs for the noble-red man."—Washington Post.

Renan Talked Too Long. A certain woman in Parls gives periodical dinners at which assemble most of the best known wits and literati of the day. The rule of the mansion is that while one person discourses no interruption whatever can be permitted.

It is said that M. Renan once attended one of these dinners and, being in excellent vein, talked without a break during the whole repast.

Toward the end of the dinner a guest was heard to commence a sentence, but he was instantly silenced by the hostess. After they had left the table, however, she at once in-formed the extinguished individual that as M. Renan had now finished his conversation she would gladly hear what he (the guest) had to say The guest modestly declined. The hostess insisted.

"I am certain it was something of consequence," she said. "Alas, madam," he answered, "it was indeed, but it is now too late. I should have liked a little more of that iced pudding."

Helen Gould's Sharp Nephew. Miss Helen Gould tells several stories of the cleverness of her brother George's children.

Miss Gould's latest story is to the effect that as she was lunching one afternoon with her small relatives she made a little lecture upon laziness, ending with the aphorism,
"Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today."

Kingdon, who had been restricted to one helping of pudding, pondered this old saw a moment and then said: "You must never put off till to-

THE PASSING OF STEAM.

Inch by inch the field is contest ed, and slowly, sullenly, the locomotive is giving way before the insistent trolley. A dozen years ago i was only the car horse and cable in the towns that were threatened by electric traction. Then the trolley poked an inquiring tentacle over the city limits into the suburbs. The results were satisfactory, and swiftly the electric lines flung their spider filaments from town to town, until now great sections of the country are cobwebbed with them. The trolley . map of eastern Massachusetts looks as complete as the steam railroad map. If you have a little time to spare, you can go on an electric car to almost any part of southern by a locomotive and to a good man parts that you could not .- S. E Moffett in McClure's.

In the Wilds of Massachusetts. It might be thought that the day had gone by when to the English mind America appeared as a land of waste places and wildernesses unredeemed. But a story which a recent visitor to England brings home shows that there are still honest Britons who do not understand our At a dinner table the American

Yes; a bell that rings at half past 9 to call the children off the street." "Oh, I see," said the English lady affably. "I suppose after dark there is danger from wolves."

A Cutting Retort. Beerbohm Tree, the London actor, has rather a pompous manner, which is calculated to ruffle the temper of other people at times. An actor from the provinces called upon him recently, hoping to get an op-portunity to show his worth on the metropolitan stage. "Oh, I could not possibly give you a part," said the great manager, "but I dare say I could arrange to let you walk on with the crowd in the last act." The young aspirant flushed with indignation, but, holding himself well in hand, replied pleasantly, "My dear Mr. Tree, I really don't think I have heard anything quite so funny from you since your Hamlet."

"Copper" Is the Word. Mr. Bernard Shaw holds that "copper" is, after all, the most correct and the most English term that can possibly be applied to the representative of law and order, and he advocates its permanent substitution for "policeman." At Essex hall Mr. Shaw entertained the promoters of the new Public and Police Vigilance society by talking about the police force and its methods. "Bobby," said he, "is slang, and police-man is simply a vulgar Latinization." "Copper," however, he deems excellent Saxon for describing a man who pursues and captures .-London Daily Chronicle.
