WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 1.

MR. CLEVELAND IS WILLING. Washington Post: We think our Southern friends may safely assume that Mr. Cleveland is now a receptive candidate in good standing. Of course, we do not change our already expressed opinion that his nomination would be fatal to such slim prospects as the Democratic party now seems to have. We refer solely to the gentleman's attitude as disclosed by the Bailey interview of a week or so ago and the controversy that grew out of it.

As will be readily recalled, Mr. Mr. Cleveland in the position of saying that it would be absurd to suppose that he had the faintest idea of re-entering public life; that his dearest hope was to spend the Au. tumn of his years in a serene retirement from the madding crowd, and so on. This did not really bind Mr. Cleveland to anything. He was not made to say explicitly that under no circumstances could he be induced to accept a nomination. On the contrary, the way was left comfortably open for him in the event of his concluding to enter the field again. The utterance really amounted to nothing more than a pleasing but vague generality which admitted of almost any construction and would easily adjust itself to any future action. Indeed, Mr. Cleveland could well have let it pass without remonstrance, for it committed him in no imaginable way. His repudiation of Mr. Bailey's report, therefore, can mean only that he wishes to forestall even the most impulsive and hasty assumption, and to admonish the Democracy that he has no idea of fleeing from their solicitude. He was careful to omit the specification of any of the gross inaccuracies of which he complained, and, since the literature of the publication was usurpation of "Judge Lynch" of literature of the publication was quite up to Mr. Cleveland's highest standard, and the only important matter of fact to which it even remotely related was his high willingness or unwillingness to receive a fourth nomination at the hands of his party, we are left no alternative save that of concluding that he wants to have no misapprehension as to his willingness.

cise of ingenuity, can discover in Mr. Cleveland's repudiation of the Bailey interview a significance other than that which we here indicate, an anxious country will thank him none at all.

SOUTHERN MILLS MAKING MONEY.

Savannah News: Notwithstanding the fact that the price of cotton is out of all proportion to the prices which cotton cloth is commanding the Southern cotton mills seem to be prosperous. In our Valdosta dispatches yesterday it was stated that the Strickland mills had just declared a dividend of 3 per cent. for the last six months and had purchased 300 bales of cotton at 13 good record, much better than any that the mills at the North can show.

In the North mills are closing down rather than pay the price cotton commands. In the Fall River district three corporations have already shut down and it is announced that seven more will do so this week. In all parts of New England mills are closing. They cannot make money at the present price of cotton. No doubt by closing until the harvesting of the new crop begins the market will become quite bare of cotton products, and prices will advance. With better prices for their products the mills can of course afford to pay more for cotton.

Just at present the outlook for the cotton crop isn't at all encouraging. The weather hasn't been favorable and the indications are that the crop will be short. In that event the price of cotton will not go much, if any, below the price that prevails at present. The mills must have an advance in the prices of their products. There will be an advance, of course, if the price of cotton continues high.

The fact that Southern mills are running and Northern mills are Bazar. closed indicates that the Southern mills have an advantage over those of the North. Undoubtedly the time is close at hand when the bulk of the coarser grades of cotton of Piles, causing twenty-four tumors. goods will be made in the South.

WILD BEASTS OF CIVILIZATION.

Baltimore Sun: Within the last few days one phase of the negro problem-the most hideous and dreadful phase—has been brought to the attention of our Northern friends in a vivid manner. On June 15th the daughter of a Pennsylvania minister, who had recently moved with his family to the vicinity of Wilmington, Del., was waylaid by a black brute, assaulted and murdered. This foul deed was committed almost in sight of the church spires of Wilmington, almost in calling distance of the police of the principal Delaware city. Neither the elevating influences of religion nor the fear of the law were sufficient to deter this monster from committing the heinous crime of which the worst types of his race are so frequently guilty. Last Monday night, one week after the arrest of the man charged with this infamous deed, a mob, estimated at 4,000 men, battered down the doors of the prison to which he had Bailey's report of the incident put been taken, seized the alleged criminal, carried him to the spot where the crime had been committed, tied him to a stake, poured oil over him and burned him to death. It is deplorable that such a crime as was fastened upon this man, who in his last moments confessed his guilt, should be possible in a civilized country. It is also deplorable that punishment should be meted out to him by a mob instead of by the orderly processes of the law. That the people of Wilmington were moved to almost uncontrollable anger by the horrible fate of an innocent and helpless girl; that they should have demanded prompt punishment for the monster who took her life, after subjecting her to the worst horror imaginable, can readily be understood. It is regrettable, however, infamous as his crime was, that they took the law in their hands and did not wait for properly constituted tribunal to make the guily man pay the penalty for his heinous misleed. The action of the infuriated Delawareans emphasizes the necessity for speedy trials by the courts and quick execution of sentence in such cases. This method of dealing with a crime which is of startlingly frequent occurrence in some parts of the South has been adopted in Virginia with good results. There s sound reason for the belief that a similar method must eventually be adopted in Northern States in which the negro population is increasing. as much for the prevention of outthe power and functions of the courts as to deter the criminal element among the blacks from assaults on helpless women. In Delaware, according to those familiar with conditions in that State, the criminal and most objectionable tppe of the negro population is steadily|growing in numbers and in offensiveness. Such an element, unless held under stern control, is a menace to any State, especially when it exercises political power and is flattered and cajoled by unscrupulous politicians, who

NEW POTATOES IN WINTER.

Forced on Old Tubers, With Little Foliage or Roos Growth. Something entirely novel and, as it seems, quite suggestive is the experience of a correspondent of the Gardener's Magazine in obtaining supplies of young potatoes of good quality all through the autumn and winter without glass or artificial heat. He says:

"We grow as a field crop enough potatoes for the supply of a large establishment. When lifted, the tubers are taken up and kept in some chalk caverns, of which we have several, and few places are better adapted for storage. These caverns are perfectly dark and do not vary much in temperature. The potatoes are placed in heaps and of course left uncovered and can easily be examined by artificial light, as may be necessary through the season. The crop of 1901 was a very good one, and about ten tons were stored. We generally give any old potatoes away that may be left when the following season's crop is lifted. In doing this in 1902 I saw that some of the old tubers of the 1901 crop on the chalk floor were forming small potatoes on their surfaces. On Aug. 5 the more advanced and promising were arranged one thick in another part of the cave. Over these some finely sifted potting shed soil was sprinkled, but not to quite cover them, so that they might be carefully watched. On Sept. 5 the first dish of potatoes of good size and excellent quality was picked. As everything looked so encouraging we made frequent successions to follow on, with the result that we have been gathering, not digging, young potatoes throughout the autumn and winter.

"Our practice has been to grow the earliest supply in pots, followed by frame culture. In these cases the plants have to be turned out or dug up, and the very small ones are practically wasted. In our caves we pick off those that are ready and leave the little ones to come ou so that the old tubers give a succession. Strange to say, some tubers that had borne a crop after a short interval showed signs of bearing a second time. We have tried fhem with fairly good results. It is curious that very little root action or leaf growth is made, I may almost say none

The next thing will be for some enterprising grower to endeavor to approximate the conditions of these chalk caves and start the industry of Sheep and Hogs Have Paid Well. Last fall when sheep and lambs were going into the feed lots by the thousands everybody figured that fat sheep would sell low in the winter. That was a natural conclusion, and those who predicted large numbers of sheep on the market were correct. February's receipts at Chicago were the largest on record for that month. But the demand is always an unknown quantity in such cases, and this year it has been unexpectedly good. For the first time on record dressed mutton is being shipped to England in large quantities, and there has been a good export demand for sheep right along. This, with large domestic consumption of mutton, has resulted in strong markets and good profits for feeders, who laid in their stock at low prices. Sheep and hogs have paid well for their grain .-National Stockman

Bananas on the London Market. Bananas of American or of West Indian growth are taking a good hold on our markets and now run to 3,500,000 bunches a year, says a London correspondent of Country Gentleman. Working the Sports. "Biff! Bang! That's it! Hit 'im again

Bet on the young one!" Such were the cries heard by those who happened to pass Board of Trade court about 2:30 one afternoon a few weeks ago. In the midst of a crowd of about forty people composed of members, clerks, messenger boys and visitors were two ragged urchins fighting for all they were worth.

The larger of the two was about thin teen years old and about 4 feet inches tall, while the other, though probably as old, was considerably smaller.

For the first five or six minutes they fought quite evenly, until the smaller, apparently finding the opening he was looking for, landed a hard right swing on his opponent's law. This was followed by a few more, and while the larger boy made his way out of the crowd the smaller was greeted with a shower of pennies, nickels and dimes, which he quickly gathered up and was seen no more. In an alley two blocks east two boys met, one rubbing his chin. "How much?" he eagerly inquired of a smaller boy "Two dollars an' twelve cents; lemme

Protective Color. We have a green snake (Dryophis fulgida) which, when hunting for green frogs and lizards, winds in and out among "the flexuous stems of creeping plants and so closely resembles them in color as to almost defy detection even by the keenest eyes." Close at hand among the bushes may be a huge grasshopper, whose broad fore wings when closed are of the exact color of the leaf on which he rests, so that his disguise is perfect and he chirps on in safety, yet if the lizard, instead of haunting the green, leafy thicket, be of that species found crawling over the walls of buildings in the city, he puts on a totally different appearance from that of his own kindred in the forest or even in the interior of houses, being of the exact hue of the ruined stone and mud walls on which he is found, while the house lizard is speckled and of an ashy gray tint, like the ceiling on which he rests and for clinging to which his feet are specially adapted.

COTTON MARKETS

market opened easy at a decline of seven to eight points amid the great-

NEW YORK, June 30 .- The cotton

drop in the Liverpool market, renewed reports of dissensions among the bull leaders and rumors that part of the clique holdings were being unloaded. For a time it looked as though the market was at last going to pieces. August sold down to 12.42, after opening at 12.50, and September starting at 11.50, reached 11.38 before the rush of selling orders received any thing like a check. Accompanying the rumors of the clique disagreements, notices were issued to the amount of about ten thousand bales. and weather accounts were distinctly favorable. Very shortly, however, there were unmistakable evidences of renewed pool support and the market was rallied almost as rapidly as it had declined. The notices were promptly taken care of, presumably by the bull party and advices received from New Orleans, indicated that the various members of the bull pool were in harmony. A factor in checking the decline was the crop report of a trade authority showing a decrease in the condition during the month of June and this, in connection with the weekly report of the weather issued a t mid-day, aroused apprehensions that the monthly report of the govarnment due next Friday would show the lowest report for July condition on record. During the entire afternoon the new crop ruled active under these influences and the list as a whole, was firm. July sold up to 12.70 and closed 12.80 bid. August sold up to 12.82 or to within two points of yesterday's figures; September 11.75 or five points over yesterday's close. Just at the close there was a slight decline from the best prices but the market finally was very steady, two to 14 points higher on the new crop positions while July was eighteen and August five points not lower. Sales estimated at 400,000 bales. NEW YORK, June 30.—Cotton quiet at 13.00; net receipts — bales; gross receipts — bales; stock 168,574 bales. PREMATURE AGE is Brought on by a Failing Body, as Many Wilmington Readers Know.

Failure to provide for the wel fare of the body causes the body to fail, and brings on premature age. Men of 35 who are afflicted with kidney troubles walk about like men of 75. It's easy to cure it. and to regain the elastic step that you should have. A well known Wilmington man tells how.

J. A. White, electrician for the Coast Line R. R, at Rocky Mount residing at 206 North Sixth street. says: "I have had great trouble with my back, right across the loing. and when I sat still for a while hardly knew how to move and when I did you would think I was seventy. five years old. They are pains all over me and I could not tell where they were to strike me. I used liniments and lots of remedies, but nothing did me any permanent good until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Bellamy's drug store and used them. They helped me in a very short time and seemed almost to oil up my joints, in fact, I have not had the pains since I used
