IN BORROWED PLUMAGE.

Well Dressed Women Who Wenr Goods Sent on Approval. When the ways of some women are considered, it is less remarkable that such numbers of women dwelling in the large cities dress extravagantly than before their methods of securing rich costumes for all occasions have been scrutinized. There are women, and many of them very wealthy, who make a regular practice of having elegant garments sent to their homes on approval, wearing them once and then returning them to stores or costumers. Some women will wear a dress or a cloak to the opera and send it back next morning. Or they will get a hat or wrap and go driving or visiting in it. The average person would be astonished to know all the things, from handsome umbrellas and fans of great beauty to jewelry, and clothes, that some women borrow from the shops.

Of course all of these women are not well off, but they all dress well and go out a great deal, and although the shopkeepers often discover the manner in which they are being deceived they do not always like to make a fuss for fear of losing a good customer. Besides they know that if they incur the enmity of such impostors the women are quite capable of abusing their goods and robbing them of other and more honest customers.' Strange as it may seem, these women generally mingle in pretty good society, or the fringes of it, and have some influence in the matter of dress, since they have won the reputation of always dressing elegantly and in the newest things.

This sort of imposition had been carried on so often by a customer of a certain large firm that its members determined to put a stop to her flaunting about in borrowed plumage, at least when the plumage belonged to them. One Saturday this woman had a splendid wrap sent home on approval, and on Sunday one of the head clerks of the firm who knew Mrs. Blank as the offender stationed himself near her pew in the fashionable church which she attended. When she sailed down the aisle after service, resplendent in the borrowed cloak, this man stepped up to her and said:

"How do you do, Mrs. Blank? I am delighted to see that you like our cloak well enough to keep it." Of course after that she could not return the cloak. Still, with all the efforts put forward by shops and costumers to break up the pernicious habit of forcible borrowing on the part of sundry feminine customers, the practice goes merrily on, and many a fair dame with an enviable reputation for exquisite dressing appears but once in garments and hats that when next seen are bedecking another woman or hanging in the showroom of some smart shop.—Washington

HOLDING A CIGAR.

oints In a Man's Character the Act Did you ever notice the different ways men hold cigars or cigarettes? hold one?

There are about a dozen different ways, and probably no two men hold their cigars exactly alike. A judge of human nature may pick up interesting points as to character from watching smokers. One man will hold his cigar firmly between thumb and forefinger. He is usually a resolute, tenacious man, strenuous or merely phlegmatic, as the case may be, but never lazy. His fingers are stumpy.

Another man holds the cigar loosely between his first and second fingers He is apt to be graceful, lazy, irresolute, a man of artistic temperament, but not a hustler. His fingers are long and tapering.

and tapering.

A third man will carry his clear with the lighted end turned in toward the palm, the hand held scoop shape around it. He picked up that trick when smoking on the sly as a boy, fearing papa might break suddenly into the game. He is usually of a secretive nature and not marked by any special tendency to frankness.

A fourth will hold his cigar awk wardly, nervously gripping it and often staring at it inquisitively to see how it is burning. He is not a "natural smoker," nor is he apt to be what is known as a "good fellow." He is usually anxgreat force of character.

A CHEAP SQUARE MEAL. uccessful Scheme That Was Worked

by Two Hungry Men.

"One of the cleverest 'grafts' I ever saw was worked the other day in a quick lunch restaurant on Park row,' said the Observer. "I noticed two men talking earnestly just below the place as I was going in to get my lunch. One of them followed me in and took a seat just below me at the table. A few secdid not appear to know. The first man onds later the other entered and took a seat just opposite his friend, whom he ordered a very extensive dinner, commencing with soup and ending with charlotte russe and coffee. He got the very best that the place could afford, and his check for $1.85 was placed in front of him. The other man took his time about ordering, taking corned beef and beans-10 cents' worth. His check was placed in the center of the table, between the two men. "Number one ate hastily and finished first. He got up, put on his hat and then calmly picked up the ten cent check that belonged to his friend. Without turning a hair he went to the desk, paid 10 cents and walked out. A few minutes later number two, who had been reading the paper, prepared to leave and took up the remaining check. He appeared greatly surprised and called the waiter, asking for an explanation. There was nothing for the knight of the napkin to do but give the man a new ten cent check, as it was very evident that he had not eaten $1.35 worth of food. I suppose that the two met outside and at the next place visited number two got the "square" meal.—New York Mail and Express.

In one small community in Kansas drug firm in four weeks in January sold 102 onnces of strychnine, 214 ounces of cyanide of potassium, 45 bushels of poisoned wheat and 231/2 gallons of carbon bisulphide, all for the purpose of destroying the prairie dogs on the farms of that community.

The question of food supply for animals produces some curious results. In Wyoming during the winter just passed the jack rabbits by thousands sought the protection of snow fences along the lines of railroad, while the wolves and coyotes from over a vast tract of country found the jack an easy cent looking front yard, but the back yard of their premises will be a terror, As a matter of fact, there should be no back yard to any home—that is, a dump lot for all the rubbish of the place. Such a place always puts us in mind of a finely dressed lady wearing

Farmers and Canners. The Farmers' Protective association of central New York is making trouble for the canning factories in setting prices for which the members are willing to grow their produce instead of taking the prices offered, as heretofore. The scale adopted is considerably in advance of what was received by farmers last year. Some factories have granted a slight increase. In Maryland there are much agitation and confliet between growers and packers of tomatoes along the eastern shore.+ Country Gentleman.

Leave the Old Hen In Peace. During the hatching, if you are wise, you will not be too curious, but will allow the instinct of the hen to do her work. It may be well to quietly reach under her and remove such eggshells as can be removed without disturbing her, but nothing further should be attempted.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Charles Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had Consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood; but, when all other medi-cines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained fifty-eight pounds.
