WILMINGTON, N. C.

SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 15

A COMING CALAMITY.

Washington Post: Despite the Post's natural reluctance to disturb the serenity of the Capital of the in North Carolina. republic, it is impelled by its sense of public duty to announce that within six years from this date-it of this county, Yanoyville circuit of the Methodist church will soon next year, and possibly not until thousand dollars. 1900-this country of ours, this nation that adores peace and detests was, will be planged by inexorable fate neck and heels into a gory confliet. "Gentlamen may ory peace, peace," but peace will not long abide | was giving five gallons of milk per with us. Although the inevitable war has not actually begun, it is so imminent that the next gale which imminent that the next gale which sweeps from the northeast may "bring to our ears the crash of re-markable freak of nature. It has 8 sounding arms." Therefore, let us feet, perfect in form, can walk as get ready, stay ready, for the crash. The Post does not announce the coming of the dire calamity of war without due warrant. It is true we have not been privileged to gaze into the future in quest of war wagon and $40 worth of produce beclouds or snything else. We confees that all the circumstances and conditions within our visual range point to the continuance of peace, progress and prosperity, "no fighting men abroad, no weeping maids at home."

But the Boston Post does see beyond the vell that hides coming events from our less gifted eyes. The satral body of our contemporary roams through coming time and lets the other, the actual material body, know what is on the hills. The Boston Post, like other Massachusetts papers, is an authority on occult martial matters. And it is the Boston Post which, coming back from an excursion into the days or years that are to be, solemnly declares that it does "not look to see Gen. Miles' retirement permanent. He may be called upon sgain to take the command which he now surrenders. By the time the Duplin Journal: One evening last

At the present moment Belgium, with its 598 people to the square mile of territory, has approached the suggestion of a full world. Here the problem of transportation became one of the chief matters of solution. In its territory, the size of the state of Maryland and with six times the population of that state, Belgium has 2,867 miles of railroads, 5,748 miles of improved highways and 1,376 miles of navigable inland waters. In the United States little Rhode Island supports 395 people to the square mile, thus holding the palm over all the other states in the Union. As a suggestion of the further possibilities of population in the United States it may be remarked that while the world average is thirty-one to the square mile that of the United States is only twenty-one to the same space. With the density of the Rhode Island population holding over the entire territory of the Union, the total population would be 1,173,150,000 for the United States, exclusive of its island possessions.

Hats have a hard time in Chins. The climate, alternating from intense dryness to a horrible humidity, twists and distorts silk, beaver, cloth and felt in no time. Mold and fungus are universal and convert sweatband and brim into green velvet in a single night. Every hat must be put out in the sunlight three times a week or it is ruined. Besides these foes are ants which go everywhere and cockroaches which fly like birds. The ant enjoys good hat for a playground and a sleeping establishment; the cockroach de sires merely to eat every particle of leather, paper and pasteboard it contains. The only way to keep the pests off is to sprinkle the interior occasionally with carbolic acid, creosote or crude cressol.
