THE REPUBLICAN PARTY'S BURDEN.

Baltimore Sun: There have been several imitations recently that the identification of the negro with the Republican party is at last beginning to be regarded as a source of weakness in the North. This was set forth in an interesting dispatch to the Sun from Washington, published yesterday. In the South when the bayonets of the Federal army ware withdrawn from behind the negro and the carget-bagger the Republican party almost ceased to exist. White men in the South have differed, and still differ, upon the political questions which divide the white people of the North into political parties. But while in the Northern States white men are free to express their political sentiments by their party affiliations, in the South they are compelled to hand together in one party for self-protection-for the preservation of their civilization. Most white men in the South refuse to identify themselves with the Republican party because It is in fact in that section the negro party.

Now it seems that since the number of negroes in the North has increased so greatly, prudent Northern Republicans are beginning to fear the effect of too much identifihe defied the decent element of the cation of their party with the negro even in the North. For some reason the negro of late has been more than usually self-assertive and obnoxious. The great mass of the negroes in the North are the more educated and ambitious members of the race. Many who have obtained education in the South have gone North, and those raised in the North he is going to experiment with tohave had the advantage in many States of attending the white schools. Education, however, does not seem to have made good (citizens of all of them, for the number of crimes committed by them in the North abolished just as the canteen was those States. A strong race feeling has also been stirred up in some of the Northern States a loser, either way .- Philadelphia by the effort of negross from the Ledger, Ind. South to obtain employment. The negro is satisfied with a style of living far inferior to that which the white mechanic is accustomad to, and of course any great number of negroes competing with them would naturally affect wages. The result of this competition and, in some instances, of crimes committed by negroes has caused riots in some of the towns of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, and the negroes have been treated with violence and sometimes driven away. Many who left Georgis and other Southern States, hoping to better their condition in the North have returned to their old homes convinced that the South is the best place for them, and that there is really less antipathy to them there than in the North. The plain working people, who have most to fear from the negro's competition in labor and from his incomant efforts to force himself. upon them as a social equal and his children into white schools as com-panions for white children, are be-ginning to attribute these things to the Republican politician, who is catering to the negro for his vote at children into white schools as comcatering to the negro for his vote at the elections or in party primaries and conventions. There can be little doubt that the Booker Washington dinner at the White House, the uproar over the appointment of the negro Crum as Collector of the port of Charleston, the Indianapolis postoffice affair and other similar incldents have greatly inflamed the imagination of the negroes throughout way; and so this provision for taking off helped us greatly in getting on."

Stuart Robson used to tell a strange story of Laura Keene, with whom he played in the sixties in the last century. "The sight of a bottle of red in was enough to upset her for a week," he said. "On one occasion we playing a farce called The Lady and the D II' An important scene of it was wich she was sitting at a table preparatory to writing a letter. I, as her servant, stood at the back of a chair. Take your right hand off that chair,' she whispered. The stage dislogue proceeded., 'You are sure you can find Don Rafael at his lodgings? Tes, madam; his servant tells me his wounds will confine him to his bed for a week.' 'Is this the only paper that we have? Where is the ink? 'Here, madam.' And I bent forward to place the ink within her reach, when, in my confusion at her reproof, the vessel was upset and its contents trickled on to the lap of her satin dress. The ink was blood red. I shall never forget the ghastly look that overspread her face, and I was so frightened that I never knew how the scene ended. "The next morning at rehearsal she told me I was doomed to ill luck for the remainder of my days. She called the company together and gave them a detailed description of the 'awful scene' the night before occasioned by the young man who would never make an
