WILMINGTON, N. C.

SATURDAT MORNING, AUGUST 22.

THE SEABOARD CONSOLIDATION Public attention in the acquisition of the Seaboard Air Line by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific combination has been altogether concentrated upon the rapid fashion in which a road with 4,000 miles of line and a tidy surplus, which made its shares worth twice their par value, has been turned into a system of some 17,000 miles, or one-tenth the mileage in this country, and an aggregate capital of $680,000,000.

But this is only a part of what has been done. Public safety in great aggregations of property has hitherto rested upon the circumstance that its control required means so large and a stake so enormous that it alone would bring conservatism. This is not the case here. By the use of the "holding company" and an ingenious grant of powers to preferred stock the entire management of this vast avetem, which lies like a gigantic Y, crossing the United States, its stem in Texas and Merico and its two arms ending in Chicago and Norfolk, is under the control of the preferred stock of the Rock Island, and the majority of this preferred stock would cost to-day about $16,-000,600.

What has really taken place, therefore, is that a little capital relatively speaking, and a great deal of credit have been used to acquire temporary control of a great railroad property, the Rock Island. This gained, further control has been secured of 13,000 more miles of railroad, including affiliated lines, and the load of carrying this great mass is dexterously shifted onto the public, while all the profits, and, if those in control please, all the plunder possible from control, is retained in a small body of preferred stock, easily owned by what in these days represents comparatively limi-private fortunes grown than corporate capitalization, which could not be captured by this ingenious plan. Once captured and in the hands of a pliable board of directors any use may be made of the property of such a corporation without incurring legal responsibility. Steps like these combine the audacity of personal control and the continuity of corporate ownership. Toward such a combination the courts have never been friendly. The Northern Securities case began as a suit which only raised a question of protostion against competition. It may end as a case memorable because in it the Supreme Court will decide that the "holding company" is a device by which all the benefits of corporate ownership are gained and all of its responsibilities are avoided. It is certainly clear that before long there will be some appalling ase of the speculative plunder of a great railroad which will require drastic legislation for the protection of the vast powerless herd of shareholders into which the ownership of corporate properties is now divided. or is being divided,-Philadelphia closing the postoffice at Indianola, Miss., because a mass-meeting of citizens protested against the congregation of Minnie Cor's colored friends in the lobby when the white women and children had to pass and repass. The disgraceful retirement of Miles, we say, will be publicly annexed to these great presidential mistakes and it seems from this viewpoint to be a fitting climax for such a lot of freakish blunders. We of this section do not love Miles. Back yonder when his military career was at its inception. when the whole heart of the Confederacy was bleeding from the shot wounds of the civil war, this Miles wrenched that bleeding heart with a pair of iron shackles in a manner that was as brutal as it was uncalled for, and we shall never forgive him for it if he undergoes ten times as many indignities as the fertile brain of Roosevelt can cook up for him. We do not love him, we repeat, but we do want to see him get fair play. He doesn't deserve to be publicly chastized by one who is put over him by an assassin's bullet-one, too, who was but an infant in arms when Miles was already well on his way in the service of his country as a soldier .-Atlanta Journal.

The result will be that during the coming season the mills will require a normal crop plus the present defi-ciency. They will, in other words, be able to use all the cotton they can get. FOR THE LITTLE ONES. Obedience of a Boy Who Afterward

Became a Great Man. Sir Henry Havelock attributed much of his success in after life to the training which he received from his father and mother. On one occasion his father told his son to meet him on London bridge at noon, but he forgot all about the appointment, and when he got home in the evening was surprised to find the lad not there. "Where is Henry?" he asked of his wife. She replied that the boy had gone to meet his father early in the day

I promised to meet him there at 12 o'clock. I told him to wait for me if I was not there at that hour, but I forgot all about it."

It was now late in the evening. The father at once put his overcoat on to go in search of the lad. He lived a long way from London, and it was past midnight when he reached the bridge.

Sure enough, there stood the brave boy, shivering with the cold. He would not move away, although cold

ROOSEVELT AND MILES.

Roosevelt has latiled on General Miles this time, sure. He retired the old veteran from his command at the head of the army without so much as a word of commendation for meritorious service. Miles goes down and out in deep, deep dis-grace after forty-two years of so-tive army life, while the man who of execution. A father has a tive army life, while the man who has heaped it all upon him and who figuratively stands gloating at the spectacle of humiliation is one who scarcely has smelt powder if we are to believe any other satements than his own.

The President may well take what comfort he can from the speciacle as it is presented to-day, for it seems writ in the cards that he is to draw something of an entirely different character from it ere long-say about the time the next election comes off. He dishonored Miles and gloats at that act in his capacity as a private enemy of the old war horse, but the country seems to take it in another light. General Miles is a public servant. President Roosevelt is a public servant. What right has one the public's servants to withhold from another of the public's ser-vants something the public has to bestow ? It is General Miles' right, conceded by the people of this country, to receive a "character" when Under such conditions the act provided for a canal across Nicaragua. But, apparently, the transconti-mental railroad lines which intend to delay the project, if they cannot dafeat it altogether, are to have their way, and the whole question will have to reopened. The Roose-velt administration is making a very bad record in this matter."- Louisville Courier-Journal, Dem.

A Washington special to the World this morning foreshadows the rounding off of Assistant Postmaster General Bristow's postal investi-gation within a few days by the dis-charge of some twenty-five of the little fellows implicated in the scandalous Heath regime of Civil-Service-law violations. The mid difng-sized and the small fish will thus have been drawn within the net of iniquity and exposure. But the public will not forget that the big fish, the men "higher up" even than Heath and who stood back of him and profited politically by his misuze and abuse of his authority over the patronage, have been al-lowen to escape by "the statute of limitations."-N. Y. World (Ind.)

---- Georgia's contingent of the grand army of tramps is likely to move on immediately. In fact, not only the tramps, but all other va-grants are going to have many infe-licities if they persist in abiding in that delightful commonwealth. "Get out or go to work" is the meaning of the new vagrant law. All idlers who have no visible means of support must go to work, either in the capacity of wage earners or as laborers for the State at large. Among the various classes of per-sons coming under the provisions of this statute are "all persons able to work and who do not work, but hire out their minor children and live on lawful right to live on the earnings of his minor children, no matter how able-bodied he may be. Thousands of fathers in manufacturing States are thus supported. It may be, and in most instances it un-doubtedly is, a moral wrong, but it doubtedly is, a moral wrong, but it has legal sanction in all the States. A father may lawfully hire out any child whom the law of a State per-mits to be employed; may collect and spend such child's wages, no matter whether the age of the child be ten years or twenty years and eleven months. This has always been lawful in all countries, and we do not believe it can be made a orime. But State legislatures can and ought to put a period to child labor. - Washington Post, Ind. End of Bitter Fight.

An Indoor Snowstorm.

Nature tells of an indoor snowstorm on a very clear, cold evening at a party given in Stockholm, Swe den. Many people were gathered in a single room, which became so warm as to be insufferable. The window sashes were found frozen and a pane of glass was smashed out. A cold air current rushed in, and at the same instant flakes of snow were seen to fall to the floor in all parts of the room. The atmosphere was so saturated with moisture that the sudden fall in temperature produced a snowfall in-

The board of trade does all this for him, the purchaser's part consisting only in giving an orto a broker and paying down margin which will insure the broker against loss through fluctustions in price. COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star By Telegraph to the Morning Star NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The cotion market opened steady at an advance of two points on September, a decline of four points on September, a decline of four points on the later positions. The feature of the early session was the course of August. Notices estimat-ed at 6,000; bales were said to be circu-lating, and there was considerable selling of that position at the start. The month opened at 13.20, sold up to 13.25, then declined to 12.15 only to rally and sell back to 12.30 after rally and sell back to 12.15 only to rally and sell back to 12.20, after which it again declined to 12.16 and was finally quoted at 12.23, or one point under the close of the previous night. The balance of the list ruled very quiet most of the forenoon and fluc-tuations' were very narrow. The weather map reflected generally fa-vorable climatic conditions, but there were further reports of damage from boil weevil in Texas, and this in connection with steady cables restricted sales while on any symptom of a de-cline the clique supported values more or less vigorously and toward the close their buying became more aggressive with September in very good demand. That position which had sold at 10.72 was for up on this demand and covering to 10.88, closing at that figure, while Oc-tober touched 10.05 and December 9.85. The list closed firm, five to six-teen points higher on the new groop teen points higher on the new crop months and net one point lower on August. Bales were estimated at 150,000 bales. The larger sales of spot cotton had some influence in the late market, some 8,908 bales being re-ported sold to spinners, with the mar-ket steady at unchanged prices. NEW YORK, Aug. 21.-Ootton
