TO RAISE THE MAINE

HOW ENGINEER RICHARDSON MAY FLCAT CATTLESHIP.

agentons Pinn Devised to Lift Ships From Ocean's Bed-Sunken Spanish Cruiners May Also Be Ruised and

Unless the plans of the engineers are all awry the wreck of the battleship Maine, which has lain in the mud at the bottom of Havana harbor since Feb. 15, 1808, will be raised from its ignoble bed and once more breast tha urling wave.

The plans, which are now complete are the result of constant study since the Spanish war by Mr. George Richardson of Chicago, an engineer of experience. The scheme itself is simple, although it involves a great deal of labor and will require three months to be put into execution. But before anything further can be done it will be necessary to secure the consent of the

At the next session of congress the United States will be asked to release its ownership in the sunken vessel and also to turn over to Mr. Richardson the spanish ships that He beneath the waters off the southern coast of Cuba. If congress will grant the privilege, work will be at once begun by Mr. Richardson on one of the sunken Spanish ships, as he thinks they can most essily be raised. It is his intention, however, to raise all the ships if his plan will work

In beginning the work several rows of piles will be supk parallel to each side of the wreck. These piles will rest on the hardpan and will project several feet above the water. Upon the piles will be built platforms capable of sustaining great weight, and upon the platforms will be set hydraulic jacks. The ingenious part of the scheme, however, is not in this part of the proposed work, but in the method of placing the cables beneath the wrecks. The principal part of the device for running the cables under the sunken ships consists merely of hollow steel tubes ten inches or more in diameter. These tubes,"each section of which is about six feet long, will serve as a spout through which a jet of water is to be forced. In the beginning the tubes will WRECE OF MAINE AS IT NOW APPEARS. be only long enough to reach the mud bottom. Great pumps will force the water through them, driving away the soft deposit. As the water digs into the mud the tubes will be extended by the addition of other sections.

These tubes incline at an angle of forty-five degrees, and there will be 184 of them on each side of the ship. Their location must be so nicely calculated that when they are forced through the mud they will join at right angles beneath the keel of the sunker vessel. When the tubes from opposite sides meet, the pumps on only one side will be kept working. A wooden sphere slightly smaller than the bore of the tubes will then be forced under the vessel through the connected tubes. To this wooden sphere will be fastened a cord. This cord will be used to draw a rope and the rope to draw through a cable. When this is repeated 184 times and the cables are strung under the ship from stem to stern, both ends of the cables will be fastened to the hydraulic jacks.

The raising of the ship then becomes a simple task, according to Mr. Richardson. The jacks will draw the cables taut and thus gradually raise the wreck above the surface of the water. Once above the water the vessel will be buoyed by airtight casks sufficient in number to support it. It can then be towed to a dockyard in this country

It was with the idea of raising the Maine that the inventor set about to find a method to that end, but now that he believes he has solved the problem he intends to raise all the Spanish war wrecks along the Cuban coast. Many expert engineers and wreckage men to whom the scheme has been submitted believe it is practicable. All that is now necessary is Uncle Sam's permission to begin work.

The entire expense of the work will be borne by the inventor, who hopes to be reimbursed by the exhibition and sale of the ships. So confident is Mr. Richardson in the success of his plan that he fully expects to have one or more of the ships up next summer. So the ill fated Maine after her years of repose in Cuban mud may once more gladden the hearts of the patriotic, fully restored to her original strength

SPORTING NOTES.

John A. McKerron and Lord Derby will likely come together in the race for the Cleveland $5,000 cup. C. Ledyard Blair of the New York Yacht club has chartered the steam yacht May from Commodore Alexan-fer Van Rensselaer. Members of the Automobile Club of America want a state law passed that will compel vehicles of all kinds to show a god light in the rear at night. Barney Dreyfus last summer conemplated a trip to Australia for the Pirates, but when some of them did business with the American league the Captain Adrian Anson, once the idol of baseball fans, is getting to be as great a bowler as he was a first base man. He had an average of over 230 in six games recently. Albert Champion, the crack French pace follower, is deeply stirred over new pacing rules adopted by the National Athletic association and trying to break up the circuit.

The new golf links at Nice occupy one of the most picturesque position on the entire riviera. James Gordon Bennett is one of the charter members of the club, which was formed last season.

Questions For Mamma. A little girl was just learning to read. One day while conning her book she suddenly looked up with this peculiar question: "Mamma, what does hen backed up to be the backed up to be the backed by the book of the backed by the b spell and what does the hitched on to 'w' spell?" THINGS THEATRICAL George Ade is writing a comedy called "The Circuit Judge." Clyde Fitch has sailed for Europe and will be abroad until October.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal have brought out a new play in Liverpool entitled "One People." Mr. and Mrs. Robert Drouet sail for Europe in May to spend the summer in Switzerland. One of the big farce comedy successes of the present season has been "Looping the Loop." The Australian tour of "Way Down East" has been postponed. The play will be given in London first. George H. Broadhurst has been commissioned to dramatize Winston Churchill's book, "The Celebrity," for J. K. Hackett. Next season Paul Gilmore will appear in John Drew's great success of this season, "The Mummy and the Humming Bird." David Warfield's season in "The Auctioneer" has been one of such extraordinary success that his tour has been extended to June 1.

THE WRITERS.

After long silence Miss Braddon, who is now an old lady, is about to bring out a new novel. Mrs. Mary Wilkins-Freeman has gone back to her maiden name in writing books, and her forthcoming volume will have her name as simply Mary E. Wilkins on the title page. It appears that Lady Helen Forber the novelist, is a real person—the only sister of Lord Craven, Mr. Bradley Martin's son-in-law. She is the wife of Captain Forbes, who has seen service in South Africa.

Ibsen has just celebrated his seventyfifth birthday-not publicly, however, as his physicians forbade it. The poet can't take any active exercise, but he drives out every day with the youngs doctor, who never leaves him. He reads? a little every day and likes to talk, but never writes even the shortest letter.

LAW POINTS.

To add to a canceled check the words "In full of account to date," with intent to alter its effect as a receipt, is held in Gordon versus Com. (Va.), 57 L. R. A. 744, to constitute forgery.

The title to accretions is held in De Lassus versus Faherty (Mo.), 58 L. R. A. 193, not to be lost by the fact that a stream changes its course and forcing its way through the newly formed land cuts the portion in controversy off from the main land.

The owner of land adjoining a highway is held in Franklin versus Durgee (N. H.), 58 L. R. A. 112, to have no right to fill depressions in his land which are natural outlets to drain the water from the highway if the effect will be to cast the water back on to the highway and injure it.
