WILMINGTON, N. C.

URSDAY MORNING, NOV.

HANNA AND HEATH TO QUIT.

The Republican National Committee will meet in Washington some time during the first ten days of December. The committee will have nothing to do beyond selecting the place of meeting of the national convention of next year, but there will, of course, be an abundance of wire pulling and political discussion indulged in at that time. Two matters that are regarded as practically foregone conclusions, that will come in for informal attention at the hands of the assembled politicians, are the retirement of Chairman Hanna and Secretary Heath. There seems to be not the slightest doubt in the minds of a number of those who are well informed that Chairman Hanna will retire, voluntarily and against the wishes of many of the party leaders, and that Mr. Heath will retire "for the good of the party."

Senator Hanna has stated to number of his intimate friends that he feels he is entitled to a rest from active political management, hence will decline re-election to the chairmanship of the National Committee after the meeting of the convention. It is to be admitted that Senator Hanna worked hard, and successfully, in the two campaigns he has managed. It is not necessary to approve his methods to give him credit for hard and intelligent work. He stands at the very fore-front of practical politicians, and strives to win when he enters a campaign. It is the general understanding that President Roosevelt, anticipating his nomination to succeed himself, would like Senator Hanna to be chairman of the National Committee again. But in that connection an interesting story is told. It is to the effect that some time | trenchment is the mark of a deprayago Senator Hanna took it upon ed heart and inspired by a failure to himself to sound the business interests with respects to Col. Roosewelt's probable candidacy; whether those interests would be willing to contribute liberally to a campaign fund for the purpose of electing Col. Roosevelt to the presidency. A number of days were spent in New York, in consultation with representatives of moneyed interests that had on previous occasions given large sums to the Republican cause. What Senator Hanna found, it is alleged, was that the corporate and moneyed interests were not inclined to contribute to the Republican campaign fund with Col. Roosevelt as the candidate. Senator Hanna was informed frankly that the prospective candidate lacked the confidence of the business intercets. Now, the Senator is a general who believes in a big and full war chest. He doesn't like to enter a fight without a plenty of ammunition, hence he balks and kicks at another term as chairman of the National Committee under the circumstances. He says his health will not permit of his running another campaign. It may be that it makes him sick to contemplate what he would have to contend with .- Savannah

THE CONDITION OF THE COTTON

Those cotton mills both at the North and South which were shut down for the want of raw material are new nearly all running. The present outlook is for a good steady business for the manufacturers throughout the coming season. Stocks in first hands, as a rule, are now under good control, some accumulations having been removed. Owing to the enhanced cost of cotton, manufacturers are convinced that they must get more for their product, and are accordingly turning down many orders at old prices. Buyers realize that eventually they will probably have to meet the situstion by making better offers, but for the time being are pursuing the policy of holding off from the market, or at least seeking for any soft

The mill curtailments of the Sum mer were so arranged as to intervals and came at such a comparatively favorable time that no severe suffering was entailed upon the operatives. By running many of the mills alternately, or on part time, the help was generally kept from scattering, and the mild season of the year readily gave opportunity to secure temporary outside occupation. . The mills are now running along on full time and remarkable harmony is the prevailing condition between the employer and the em ployed.

Contrast this situation with that of our competitors in England. After an almost unexampled period of curtailment, the mills throughout Lancashire are just beginning to get ready to run full time. Last August these mills reduced their time to four days a week. The distress that this long period of contraction produced was severe beyond comparison. Family goods had to be pawned to secure necessities of life for the employes out of work. life for the employes out of work, and beyond that charity had to be invoked. The loss in wages of the operatives in the Lancashire district during this recent period of shutdowns is estimated at nearly $4,

Certainly all engaged in the cotton manufacturing industries of our country have reason for thanksgiving that the evils of the temporary scarcity of the staple have been so comparatively short and light .-New York Commercial Bulletin.

CLEARER UNDERSTANDING OF DIVINE LAWS MEEDED.

Editor of THE MORNING STAR: The very interesting article of the 29th upon "Temperance and Health" has been read with much enjoyment, and I should like to express my apprecia-tion of many of its sensible and whole-

There is do doubt about it that intemperance of any sort is a great source of physical and moral disorder and demoralisation among the human race, and that temperance and a non use of poisonous drugs will always prove an upward step in civilisation. This of itself is, however, insufficient in the majority of cases, to bring about the desired results. It cannot heal the lame, restore the lost senses of sight and sound, or even cure many acute allments. It certainly can never produce the marked and seeming miraculous cures, both physical and moral, that are the fruits of Christian Science. We need a clearer understanding of the divine and unerring laws of the great lessior, and an active, positive reliance thereon, to produce unerring and permanent results. In the exact proportion in which man comes in armony with God's laws and require is he morally perfected and physically healed, and made immuse rom all that is opposed to God's har-

Many thousands of the best people of our land and abroad have found in Bible, when read in the light of Mrs. Eddy's teachings, a satisfactory and demonstrable spiritual rule for restoring and maintaining health, mperance and sound morals; in fact, identical rule which was occasionally seen by the prophets of old, and the one which Jesus fully understood and applied throughout his ministry. ELIZABETH EARL JONES. Asheville, N. C., Nov. $4d, 1908.

CURRENT COMMENT.

-- The Republicans are quite willing to claim credit for every element of prosperity that develops while they are in power. They even cialm that they ought to be applauded for the good crops. But when adversity comes they insist that rerecognize the infallibility and im peccability of the Republican cane didate for the presidency.—Louisville Courier Journal, Dem.

- Things are going on the natural way. Silver and gold are circulating side by side and without any discount on either. Nobody stops to see if the paper he receives is redeemable in gold or silver, or practically in neither. Silver is not merely the ourrency of the "gellow nations." It is a tremendous part of the currency of this great country, and it is not redeemable in gold. There is no silver question in polities now, but those who are trying to kick the silver circulation we have into diagrace know nothing of the first principles of finance. - Cincinnati Enquirer, Dem.

- We know of no question more difficult to pass upon with confidence than this question of deciding between the two isthmian routes. The country wants a canal, but it doesn't want to build it through Nicaragus and Costa Rica if the other route is best, nor does the public approve of letting Colombia bleed this government unduly. Though we do not pretend to know which of the two routes is the better, from an engineering point of view, it looks to us as if the game has been bluffed to a standstill for the present.—Norfolk

The corn is from seed which had been selected from time to time by the late Milton Morrison, of Bethany, and it produces two, three and four ears to the stalk. The corn was brought up to this by selecting for seed from time to time sound ears where two or more grew on a stalk. This year Dr. Hall found that corn grew both at the top and bottom of the stalks. On one stalk he found two ears at the usual place and at the ground, where the roots grew out above the soil, two more ears had grown fast to the roots. The latter cars were small but the idea gives hope.

The Anthem. The rustic choir's greatest show was always made in the anthem, in which bumpkin had generally a solo to exhibit his "lusty voice." It was a splendid musical display-of its kind. People came from a long distance to hear it and felt so satiated that they left without the sermon. No wonder buried treasures which from time to Shakespeare made Sir John Falstaff lose his voice with "pallooing and sing-ing of anthems." To be sure, he was guilty of an anachronism, for there time have been unearthed in Great Britain. In Lancashire in 1840 were found a rare lot of coins, among which were po anthems in the fat knight's time, but it may reasonably be supposed that he had become so impressed with this part of the service in his own anythat he dropped into the nod which even Homer is privileged occasionally were several pennies of the time of Alfred and Edward divided in this Impressions While Drewning. Most of us, I expect, at some time or other have wondered what it feels like to be drowned. If we have never seen any one drowning we mean by this that we wonder whether it is at all like what it is represented to be-whether one's whole past life passes before one's eyes like a dream, whether one spends one's last few moments in wishing one had spent more profitably the last few years. If we have seen people drowning we wonder whether it feels as bad as it looks. Now, I cannot pretend to have been nearly drowned. Nor can I say what it feels like to sink after a prolonged struggle in calm water within sight of land. But I can say what it feels like to be quite convinced that one is going to be drowned, and I am happy to know from personal ex-perience that the feeling is one merely of disappointment. One is simply annoyed, certainly not angry, certainly not afraid.-Hubert Walter in Black-

Too Many Revolutions. The New York Outlook tells an amus ing story illustrative of the vigilance of the Turkish censorship. There is strict supervision over telegrams. A German engineer in the Lebanon placed an order with a Paris firm for some sort of a stationary engine, to be shipped to him as soon as possible. The tirm telegraphed to inquire how many revolutions a minute he wanted. He answered, "Five hundred revolutions a minute." The next day he was arrested. Brought into court, the judge asked him if he lived in the Lebanon. He replied that he did. "Do you correspond with such and such a firm in Paris?"

"Ah?" cried the judge. "I know you. You are the man who telegraphed to Paris that there are 500 revolutions a minute in the Lebanon!"

How Climate Has Changed. In Switzerland a mean temperature equal to that of north Africa at the present time is shown by its fossil flora to have prevailed during the miccene or middle tertiary epoch. Anthropold apes lived in Germany and France; fig and cinnamon trees flourished at Dantzic; in Greenland, up to 70 degrees of latitude, magnelias bloomed and vines ripened their fruit, while in Spitzbergen and even in Grinnell Land, within little more than 8 degrees of the pole, swamp cypresses and walnuts, cedars, limes, planes and poplars grew freely, water lilles covered over standing pools and frises lifted their tall heads by the margins of streams and rivers.-Edinburgh, Re-

When the Barber Was a Wit. In original literature the barber is great figure, and Arabian tales are full of him. In Italy and Spain he was often the brightest man in town, and his shop was headquarters for wit and intrigue. Jasamin became famous as a poet in southern France and rebrush and comical gestures as he dressed the hair and beard of fine ladies and gentlemen in his shop. He had a great run, made money, hived fame, and Smiles made a book about him.

How many collectors of coins know anything about the curious halfpence issued centuries ago by English authorities-halfpence in the truest sense of the word, since they were nothing more than minted pennies cut directly in half? Specimens of these coins have been discovered frequently among the

Similarly divided pence of the time of Edward the Confessor have been found, and in speaking of the discovery in 1833 of a number of these curious halfpence of the time of William the Conqueror an unquestioned authority states that they were probably issued from the mints in that form, since the whole collection had evidently been in circulation.

How to Spenge Woolen Cloth. Heavy woolen cloth should always be sponged, and this can easily be done at home. Lay the cloth out on a wide ta ble, wet a sheet and spread over it, b ginning about a foot from the end of the cloth. Fold over this portion of the cloth on to the sheet and continue the folds so that the wet sheet will come next to the surface of the cloth all the way. If the cloth is too long for one sheet use two or as many as required Fold the ends of the roll together and let it lie for six or eight hours. This dampens the ontire surface very even y. COTTON MARKETS.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star New York, Nov. a. - the cotton market opened strong at an advance of eleven to seventeen points on active and excited covering and aggressive bull support. During the entire session it ruled with only very narrow and brief reactions, closing firm within two to three points of the top, or a net advance of two to three points on the active months. The firmness was caused in the first instance by the higher cables and private advices, stating that the Liver pool authority, Mr. Ellison, had estimated the world's requirements of American cotton for this season at 10,877,000 bales. Later, a very bullish crop estimate was circulated by prominent local bull concern, pointing to a yield of something like 9,600,000 bales, as compiled from the reports of 1,275 Southern correspondents to a local newspaper. In addition to the bullish comparison of supply and consumption thus furnished, the Far Eastern situation was considered more favorable and it was reported that spinners were being stimulated to buy more freely by the recent bullish crop talk. Private advices also indicated continued firmness in the Southern spot markets and while the movement continued heavy and the weather aside from rains in some sections good, there during the day to sell short. Many were apparently expecting a reaction but this seemed to lead to nothing more important than profit-taking for the account of scattering long interests, while the recognized bull leader was a heavy buyer of January and March and the South held the later positions. December sold at 10.68 at the best point, while January touched 10.61, March 10.65, May 10.66 and July 10.67, these being new high record prices for the present bull movement, this season, and the life of the present options. Sales for the day were estimated at 700,000 bales. Port receipts were 63,001 bales for the day against 53,065 last year and the estimates for to-morrow's leading points averaged heavy.

New York, Nov. 4.—Cotton steady at 10.75c; net receipts — bales; gross receipts 6,834 bales; stock 74,146 bales.
