WILMINGTON, N. C.

SUNDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 29.

That the United States is on the eve of momentous times, there need be no prophet or seer to tell us about We have expanded tremendously, our progress and prosperity astounds the world and we do not properly realise it ourselves. Since we launched out on our imperial course and landed fat-footed into the midst of the "world powers," there has always been something doing. The fact is, we may as well observe also, that a people with our tremendous energy and powers will always be doing something. We do not want to live to see the day when decadence and decay begins, if it ever does, but all patriotic Americans believed too firmly in the destiny of their country and in the principle of their government to contemplate or believe that we will ever topple and crumble like the once great Roman empire. Yet Bishop Candler, who is holding the North Carolina Conference, M. E. Church, South, now sitting at Goldsboro, remarked in his Thanksgiving sermon on Thursday, that "no nation ever rose without hardship, and no nation ever fell without luxury." The Bishop, however, was optimistic, and, saying that the establishment of our nation was "no socident," he declared his patriotic faith by remarking that "God was careful about the extension and development of our nation because he wanted to make a better nation than any that existed before." We are reminded here, however, that many nations favored of God have lost the Almighty's favor and have been seattered to the four eads of the earth. We have had our hardships and there are few that cannot say we are a luxurious, high toned and extravagant people. Let us not hope that as in the case of Rome it will be, perhaps paraphrased more or less: "First, glory, then wealth, barbarism at last!" Events are occurring so rapidly that no one can predict what momentous situation the United States will be in from one month to another. Less than a month ago we were resting on one coarse, but suddenly, on the 3rd of November when Panama declared its independence the United States of Colombia, we find our great nation plunged into an affair which has turned the eyes of the world upon us, which has attracted the attention of all civilization, and, strange to say "there is no man's hand to stay us." Right ahead of us lies the construction of the great isthmian canal that is to cross Panama from the Atlantic to the Pacific and rend America in twain. This stopendons enterprise not only opens up prodigious advantages and opportunities to America, but the whole civilized world is concerned directly, and civilization will even make it to the advantage of Eastern nations who have not even dreampt of the thing or even heard the news of our nation's tremendous move forward in this world enterprise. What of the future of our grand country? Some Europeans who stand in wonderment at the expansion of the United States, declare that our "career of forcible conquest" and striving for world supremacy means ultimately the overthrow of Democratic-Republican government and that the destiny is, empire at last. If nothing else, we can say that if "all the world's a stage," the United States is playing "many parts," and the eyes of the universe are fastened upon us in our turn. It is said that our "imperialism" means benevolence and a betterment of the world and that in our career of conquest we are not simply sceking whom we may destroy. In this connection, read what the St. Louis Globe-Democrat (a Republican paper with a curious hyphenated name) says:

Bacon said that the opinion of a foreign nation regarding any country would be likely to foreshadow the verdict of posterity. It is well, there-fore, for the United States to know just what judgment the outside world is rendering on its conduct and des-tiny. Ever since the Spanish war of 1998 we have had an excellent chance to sequire the gift of seeing ourselves as others see us. The world has been passing judgment upon us with a breeziness and freedom which is interesting, though the verdict is not alto-gether fattering, except to the coun-try's pride. But the average American believes that the imperial role marked out for this country by its foreign friends, as well as its foreign critics, will not be played. The United States has no desire for world suprem-ncy except in enlightenment and be-neficence. It has no mission to exercise political sway beyond the seas. The therties of no people in the world are endangered by the growth in our in-fluence and power. Japan, China and other nations have felt our influence resurrected and modernized two gen-orations ago, and the latter by being saved from dismemberment after the march on Pekin by the allies in 1900. The career of forcible conquest which foreign observers are making out for this republic is very far from the aspi-rations or expectations of its people. History tells up of the 'peace of Rome'—the peace which the great em-pire during its days of power forced on the rest of the world. That part of the Roman empire's role, the 'peace of America,' stands a chance of being played on a larger stage and with In a benign way, the former by being played on a larger stage and with greater resources by the United States."

The STAR has time and again, along with most newspapers in the land, endeavored to impress upon Southern farmers that year in and year out the best policy in agriculture was to diversify their crops. Experience has shown that the man who sticks solely to cotton or tobacco, will sooner or later meet the adversity that sometimes comes from either overproduction or some other depressing causes of low prices. Time was when the South almost ruined itself in planting cotton, the result being that overproduction made such low prices that in some years the price which the staple brought on the market would not pay for the production of the crop. We have observed the same conditions as to tobacco, and it is not necessary to refer in this instance the fact that whereas last year tobacco growers made money, the fact is that this year prices have been discourgingly low until very recently, when, for some reason or other, the prices of leaf tobacco have advanced. A diversity of crops will surely pay best in the long run, and here we will say that we are glad to see that the cotton growers are having their in-

We say all this to refer now to the cotton manufacturing conditions in the South. Some how or other manufacturers of cotton goods have not been able to advance the price of their manufactured products in proportion to the practically high price of cotton. The consequence is the mills generally have either not paid expenses or have done a business that had little profit in it. We would infer, however, that overproduction is also the trouble with the manufacturer, judging from the fact that in the STAR yesterday morning was published a call for a meeting of Southern cotton manufacturer, to be held in Charlotte, December 8th, for the purpose of formulating plans to curtail production.

It has been said that the Southern people are more or less "onedesed," but that must not be inferred from the fact that sometimes we all follow up a good thing until we run it into the ground. We have had disasters from overproduction of cotton, from overproduction of tobacco, and now we are told that we are making more coarse cotton goods than there is a demand for. Perhaps the South has been content to confine herself too closely to the manufacture of the coarser lines of cotton fabrics. Why, therefore, do not our manufacturers learn something from the advantages which a diversity of manufactured cotton goods would bring them? We are going too straight forward into one line of manufacture and from the present situation it would appear that we have built enough mills to manufacture coarse grade cotton goods. We hope, therefore, that our capitalists and captains of industry will begin to diversify their manufactures and build future mills for the manufacture of the finer grades of goods. There are many branches of cotton manufacturers to which we have given no attention, and it is time for us now to investigate along these lines and not continue to build mills to add to the over-production of coarse goods. We might also diversify our manufactures otherwise and turn our attention to other industries than

Recently the London Daily News referred to "The American Cotton Industry," and the article shows that even the cotton manufacturers of the New England States, although they manufacture a diversity of high grade goods, have not essayed to make some of the fine fabrics that come from the English mills. The News speaks rather independently of American competition, but in discussing the matter the English papers, perhaps from a more or less sound standpoint, always bring in our high protective tariff. This from the London paper is therefore interesting from two view points: "The truth is that owing to protec tion the American cotton trade is, in spite of the cotton being grown "on the premises," and in spite of the mechanical enterprise of the employers, an extremely poor and sickly plant. Its external trade is trifling; its manufactures are of the coarsest type, and in spite of its advantages and its high tariffs, it cannot keep out the fine goods of Lancashire, which, as we have shown more than once, are find ing a large and increasing market in

CURRENT COMMENT.

-- There are two kinds of people in this world—those who do things and those who oriticize those who do things. The latter, in order to cut any figure at all, are commonly forced to try to make up in noise what they lack in numbers, as may be seen in current discussions of the Panama business .-- Providence

- If Senator Hanna, however, is really cherishing a purpose to try for the nomination, he can undoubtedly exercise a most disturb ing influence, even if he falls short of grasping the prize. He is a fa-vorite with an element of the Republicans which had to accept Mr. Roosevelt in 1900, and which simply accepts him now, supporting him only because he is in office. - Boston Transcript.

— With the possible exception of Senator Tillman of South Carolina, there is no one in either house of Congress who can compare for a moment with Senator Carmack of Tennessee as a master of elegant blackguardism in the guise of ora-tory. There is more finish to Carmack than there is to Tillman, but the foundation stone of pure blackguardism is to be found under the tyle of both .- N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

- To one argument there is no answer. The treaty is made necessary by the Platt amendment which was adopted, under our insistence, by the Cuban constitutional convention. It is too late now to discuss the wisdom or the policy of that amendment. It is a fact accomplished, and it limited the power of Oubs to enter into commercial tresties with other countries than the United States. We can hardly forbid her to do that and refuse to make this commercial treaty which gives her access to the world's trade through the United States. - San Francisco Call.

America, the classic land of patent medicines, is also the happy hunting ground of the mind cure. America, the great exponent of unresting, unthinking hustle, is also the great world prey of those orien-tal systems which neglect matter, and which retire into the recesses of the spirit. Are not these things consequences as well as antitheses of each other? New thought cannot be despised or disregarded. It represents a revolt from materialism. It is sometimes funny with an exceedingly great funniness, but it is always a startling indication of the lengths to which our present materialism will drive the revolted soul. - Chicago Tribune.

Governor Terrell, the two Howells, father and son, and the Hon. One might as well expect a warhorse not to neigh at the scent of battle as these tongues to keep their sheaths when the worldly warfare commenced about How the quartette must have suffered! What effort must it have taken to keep the larnyx still! Yet Atlanta is hardly to be blamed for resorting to such an extreme. It was the only way. There are other communities, similarly infested by the brood of hair trigger talkers, who will feel the tug of temptation to imitate. - New York Commercial Advertiser.

Marriage In Algeria. The farther south one travels the earlier one finds boys and girls arrive at marriageable age. Some time ago a census was taken in Algeria, and then it was found that the youngest married "man" was twelve years old and that many lads of thirteen had several wives. A divorced husband of fifteen and a widower of the same age were also discovered. As might be expected, the girls are even more precocious than the boys, and, though twelve is the usual age, many are married at eleven. There were found to be 189 widows of fifteen and no fewer than 1,176 divorced wives of the same age.

A Vigorous Retort. Lord Erskine, the famous English lawyer, once met a ruffian driver who was belaboring his horse, a miserable, bare boned creature, and Lord Erskine, who was intensely fond of animals, remonstrated. - Charlotte Observer: Up to this time Mr. Roosevelt clearly has the call on the Republican nomination next year, but there is undoubtedly considerable opposition to him in his own party, and surface indications are that it is increasing. The efforts of Senator Hanns to prevent his friends pushing him for the presidency have not wholly availed, and it is alleged that a good deal of Hanna literature is being circulated throughout the country. At a meeting of a Republican club in Cleveland, O., Tuesday night, one of the speakers said the presidential atmosphere was not clear and that Roosevelt was not the choice of a good part of the country. The same idea was expressed by other speakers, and when Attorney General Emerson was called on for a speech, "Why beat about the bush," said he, "and make out those veiled suggestions? Why not come out squarely and say what you mean? tell you, gentlemen, that Hanna is the choice of the majority of the people for President." BECAUSE HARD TO CURE.

An Offer to the People of Wilmington from Our Well Known Druggist,

Our well known druggist, Robt. I Bellamy, claims he has a cure for colds and coughs, and if it fails he will refund your money. The remedy is Vinol, and we have heard such wonderful results from it that we advise every person in Wilmington who is suffering from a cold or cough to try it on his guarantee. A hard cold and backing cough may be the means of undermining your constitution and terminate in consumption. Cough Syrups, while they temporarily allay the spasms of coughing, owing to the opiates they coatain, upset the stomach and do not cure the cause; old-fashioned coaliver oil and emulsions are so nauseating that few can take them. Vinol is delicious to take, and contains all the active curative principles of cod liver oil in a highly concentrated form, and it is, therefore, the greatest specific known, for coughs, colds and bronchial troubles. You would not eat an egg, shell and all. For the same reason you should not take old-fashioned cod liver oil or emulsions, just to get the medicinal curative elements which they contain. The Vinol manufacturers separate them for you, throw away the useless oil and give you in a delicious, con-centrated form all the healing and life giving elements which are to be found in fresh cods' livers. That is what gives Vinol its wonderful power to cure Coughs, Colds and all throat and lung troubles and makes it the greatest tonic reconstructor known to medieine. Robt. R. Bellamy, Druggist. 1
