Propeller Struck Him When He Fell Overboard Sunday Night-Funeral Took Place Yesterday.

The body of Mr. Amos Redd who met a tragic death Sunday night by drowning, was recovered yesterday morning. It will be remembered that Mr. Redd while returning from Carolina Beach on the steamer Wilmington on the regular 8:45 evening trip, fell from the boat and was drowned in Brunswick Bay about six miles south of the city.

The body was discovered early yesterday morning by two fishermen near range light No. 13 about one mile below the spot where the drowning his resignation as cashier of this bank, occurred. These fishermen reported the matter to Mate George Warren of the steamer Marion who in turn accepted, and Mr. Geo. E. Wilson, informed Mr. W. J. Reaves, a friend of Mr. Redd's family.

Mr. Reaves secured the naptha launch Bessie W. and accompanied by Board of Directors for his faithful and the owners of the boat, Messrs. George W. Penny and R. F. Warren, went down the river to bring the body to the city. In the meantime Wm. Mintz, a fisherman, found the body floating down the river, and had tied it to the frame work supporting range light No. 13, which is near the Brunswick county shore.
