CHARLOTTE EVENING CHRONICLE

Our highly esteemed contemporary, the Charlotte Chronicle, has just passed the third year of its existence. If there is any three year old that can beat it we have never seen it, and the Star can heartily and with deep sincerity join the chorus of wishes that it may add unlimited years to its highly creditable career. The Chronicle is the handsomest paper in North Carolina and is a paragon of excellence in every respect. It is a superior newspaper, its tone is high, and its temper even at all times. The editorial page is a model and we commend it for its versatility, ability and unvarying interest. Editor Wade H. Harris has our congratulations and Charlotte our felicitations on the Chronicle subject.

JUDGE GOFF ASSAILED.

There are evidences that the fight between the Republican factions in North Carolina is as bitter as ever. The Caucasian, published at Raleigh, and formerly if not now the property of Ex-Senator Marion Butler, is now a strenuous Republican paper and fighting with the Rollins-Butler faction. The Caucasian does not seem to be satisfied because Judge Goff declined to give the jury a chance to convict Congressman Spencer Blackburn in his trial in the Federal court at Greensboro, and in its last issue thus assails Judge Goff for ordering the Blackburn case to be dismissed without giving it to the jury to decide.

"North Carolinians have great respect for their juries—the twelve honest men who sit in the jury box to do justice to their peers. Yet Judge Goff insulted a North Carolina jury by refusing to trust them. He did not even claim that there was 'no evidence' to go to the jury (which he could not do) but said if the jury convicted the accused that he would set the verdict aside. So he took the case from the jury. Then why did he not let the jury have a chance to do its duty? The Judge had it in his power to set aside the verdict, but he knew that then an appeal could be taken from his action. And this must be the reason of the remarkable action of the Judge. No State judge would dare to so ignore the State law and to so insult a North Carolina jury."

The inference to be drawn from the above is that the Rollins-Butler faction still regards Congressman Blackburn as guilty of the charges against him, despite Judge Goff's conclusion that the evidence was so trivial that it was not worth while letting it go to the jury.

The Caucasian's allusion to the Blackburn case shows that the fight against Blackburn has not ceased, and evidently Blackburn is still in a fighting mood. This from yesterday's Charlotte Observer is more evidence that the row is still on:

"A most interesting report struck Charlotte yesterday. It is to the effect that Mr. A. H. Price, of Salisbury, has given up his post of assistant district attorney to Mr. A. B. Holton, of Winston-Salem, and his place has been offered to ex-Judge A. L. Coble, of Statesville. Although this story is still in the shape of a rumor it bears the earmarks of truth. The Hon. E. Spencer Blackburn loves not Mr. Price and he may have gunned for his scalp. Mr. Price is, at present, on his bridal tour. The Republican war goes on and nothing is considered unusual these days. If Dr. Warren Vines Hall were to be made secretary to the vice president of the United States no one should wonder."

REVELATIONS IN MEAT PACKING.

Not only in Washington but throughout this country and in Europe has interest in the Chicago packing house situation, been roused to a white heat by sensational statements that have been made public concerning the alleged contents of a report made to the President by certain investigators whom he sent to Chicago to inquire into the conditions in the meat packing industry at that place.

As a result it is now announced that no action on the Agricultural Appropriation bill, containing the Beveridge amendment for meat inspection, will be taken either by the Conference Committee or by the House Committee on Agriculture until representatives of the packing industry have had opportunity to satisfy themselves concerning the operation of the provision. Public curiosity, which has reached a high pitch with reference to the precise contents of the report, will probably not be satisfied through its official publication unless the opposition of the packing interests to the inspection system becomes so strong that it is necessary to force public opinion upon Congress in order to assure the retention of the Beveridge amendment in the Agricultural Appropriation bill.

It will be remembered that Mr. Beveridge's amendment provided for government inspection of cattle before they are slaughtered and for inspection of meats before they are marketed. Thursday's Chicago dispatches, stated, however, that the packing house companies will welcome inspection and will not oppose any measure before Congress looking to that end.

Concerning the alarm over the disclosures and the result, the New York Journal of Commerce says:

"The reports about packing house conditions in Chicago are calculated to produce an excited state of mind which is not favorable to deliberate or wise legislation. Congress should not be too precipitate in action provoked by such disclosures. It is not obliged to adjourn at any particular date and can take whatever time may be necessary in providing for an inspection of packing house conditions and operations, to make sure that its legislation is not only fitted to the requirements of the case but is within its constitutional power for the regulation of interstate commerce and will therefore be upheld as valid. The immediate effect of the exposures will be to put the packers on their guard and induce them to avoid at least for the time those practices the report of which has aroused such indignation and is so damaging to their business, and there is no such occasion for haste as to justify headlong action."

"Much that has been told is no doubt based upon fact, and it is probably true that diseased cattle are slaughtered, that bad material is doctored and sold for food, that there has been much that is offensive and unwholesome in the holes and corners of the by-products of this business. It is one of the drawbacks of the enormous scale upon which the business is done that a close supervision is impossible on the part of its chief managers, and that much is left to the discretion of underlings who are expected to produce the most profitable results. In the employment of thousands of men, many of a coarse and vulgar type, there is likely to be much negligence and recklessness in work that should be done with care and cleanliness. Doubtless gross abuses may have grown up in the enormous business of slaughtering herds of cattle, converting them into food products, with a utilization of everything salable, and marketing the results; and collecting together instances of these and arraying them in a tale of horrors has a revolting effect. But this is not the kind of evidence upon which it is safe to proceed in devising legislation, without further examination and a more deliberate ascertainment of facts."

President Roosevelt is withholding some of the matter reported to him, but he is stirred up over the situation. There is proper cause for alarm but conditions may not be as bad as reported. Everybody who eat meats, however, can subscribe to the declaration that whatever proportion of foulness, Wonderful Change in Condition of Man Who Was Victim of Whiskey But Was Cured.

The Keeley Institute, Greensboro, N. C.

I entered the Keeley Institute at Greensboro, N. C., on the 2d day of January, 1904, and left there January 29th, 1904, sound and well and cured of the disease which had caused me so much trouble and ruin. I have continued entirely sober and without the desire for strong drink in the least up to this time. I am satisfied with my present condition and my friends are all gratified at my recovery. But a short while longer and I would have been in my grave had I not taken the treatment at your Institute. The physician, manager and attendants I shall ever hold in loving remembrance, and I shall never forget the comfortable board and cheerful home at the Institute. I always praise the Keeley Treatment and recommend it to all who drink in my county, which shall be my home until I die. I tell them it is a home of peace, love and prosperity.

unwholesomeness and fraud there may be in this purveying of food supplies, it should be vigorously dealt with and wholly prevented. There should be thorough inspection and an effective system of regulation, but the Federal authority will no doubt observe the limitation of its jurisdiction. The primary responsibility for the conditions and methods which prevail at Chicago, so far as they may be as represented, rests upon that city and the State of Illinois, and public opinion will be largely directed upon them.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—Two white men lynched in the South in three days shows that the lynchers do not draw the color line.—Baltimore Sun.

—Standard Oil certainly killed competition, but for a dead man the latter is telling a lot of tales.—Memphis News-Scimitar.

—It appears that former Senator Marion Butler runs a press bureau in the interest of his faction of the Republican party, having himself interviewed as often as the newspaper men will consent to be imposed upon. This Tar Heel political manipulator is a slick proposition.—Charlotte Observer.

—Mr. Roosevelt's address yesterday, when he paid Portsmouth and the Navy Yard a visit, contained no remarkable feature. It eschewed, as seemed entirely proper, any particular political issue. The references to the Civil War were in good taste, the tributes paid to the devotion of the soldiers and leaders on both sides were warm and generous, and the praise of the work of the regular army at San Francisco was just and timely. The President's references to political matters were few in number and general in import. He gave expression to a great and important truth when he said that the voters are responsible for the efficiency or inefficiency of their government; for they can get as good government as they want if they realize and respect the power of their ballots.—Norfolk Landmark, May 31.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Helpful Reminders as to the Laundering of Linen.

To prepare linen for washing soak the articles overnight in water. Never use hot water for soaking purposes, as it tends to make dirt adhere to linen, while cold or tepid water loosens it and so simplifies the process of washing. Use borax in the proportion of one tablespoonful to one gallon of water. It is perfectly harmless and has a marvelous power of softening water and of drawing out dirt. The object to be aimed at in washing is to get rid of the dirt with as little wear and tear as possible.

Do not put the clothes in the boiler if the water is at all hot. This method discolors linen and should at all times be carefully avoided. Allow the clothes to boil for ten minutes, remove from the boiler to a tub and add cold water. Do not allow the clothes to boil too long or they will become a yellow color, and they must on no account be boiled before washing.

Fireplace Mottoes.

"Welcome ye coming, speed ye parting guest."
"My home is your home."
"Peace be unto this house and all who dwell herein."
"As I sat musing ye fire burned."
"My fire is my friend."
"Let no man take beyond this threshold hence words spoken here in friendship's confidence."
"We strive to serve you, friends. In entering this house you do possess it. Peace and heart's greetings."
"As we journey through life let us live by the way."

To Get Rid of Cockroaches.

A housekeeper who was recommended to try cucumber peeling as a remedy for cockroaches strewed the floor with pieces of the peel, cut not very thin, and watched the sequel. The pests covered the peel within a short time so that it could not be seen, so voraciously were they engaged in sucking the poisonous moisture from it. The second night that this was tried the number of cockroaches was reduced to a quarter, and none was left alive on the third night.
