MEAT INSPECTION LEGISLATION

President Roosevelt on Thursday made the House Committee on Agriculture sit up straight. He told Chairman Wadsworth, of the committee that he absolutely and positively disapproved of the substitute which that committee has reported to the House to take the place of the amendment of Senator Beveridge providing for government inspection of slaughtering and packing houses, packing house products, and the like. Senator Beveridge's amendment was framed as a part of the agricultural appropriation bill, and among its other provisions it provides that the cost of meat inspection shall fall on the packers. In the committee's substitute the cost is made to fall on the government.

The committee a few days ago gave it out with a good deal of gusto that they were going to report a bill that would thoroughly cover the inspection business, and it is a great fall down for them that the President repudiates their boastful substitute. While the committee was in session it considered four amendments—the Beveridge amendment, the Crumpacker amendment, and the draft of two submitted by Judge Cowan, of Texas, and Mr. Wilson, the latter of whom represented the packers. It is certainly to be regretted that a satisfactory amendment has not been forthcoming, for prompt action by Congress is necessary to prevent injury to a great industry and allay the anxiety created by the packing house disclosures.

Advices from Washington state that something of a reaction has occurred among members of the House who have heretofore been considered thoroughly friendly to President Roosevelt's plans in the matter. This is particularly true among Democrats from the West and Southwest who represent cattle raising districts. The pressure from these interests during the past few days has been tremendous. Constituents have demanded immediate action of some kind in order that the damage done to the meat industry and inevitably transferred by the packers to the raisers of cattle might cease. They have been specially anxious to have the cost of inspection, whatever it might be, paid by the government, fearing that it would result in a reduction in the price paid for cattle by the packing houses.

Owing to this pressure, Democrats who were at first delighted with the President's action are now severely criticizing him for not being more deliberate and getting his results by methods calculated to inflict less injury on the meat and cattle industry.

It is considered probable that unless some way can be found to shut off debate the presentation of the agricultural appropriation bill, including the provision for meat inspection to the House in full session, will result in a bitter debate, involving the whole question of meat inspection, as well as various political phases of present interest.

The disclosures made in the United States concerning the meat packing industry, has stirred up Switzerland and in the elections on the new food inspection law in that country the measure carried by a large majority. The British Parliament is also taking steps for inspection of the meat industry in that country.

WILLIAMS TO SPEAK IN NORTH CAROLINA.

Charlotte is in luck, for after all, the Hon. John Sharp Williams, the able, distinguished and aggressive Democratic leader in the House, is to speak in the Queen City this Fall. Owing to the pressure of important legislation in Washington during the past month, Mr. Williams had to cancel his engagement to deliver the address at the commencement of Davidson College. He has also accepted invitations to address the commercial clubs in Charlotte, but in each instance had to cancel his engagements. It was a great disappointment to the people of North Carolina that they have fallen so far to hear the distinguished Southern statesman, but Congressman Webb, reminding him of that disappointment, invited him to speak in his district during the campaign this Fall, and especially at Charlotte. The Washington correspondent of the Charlotte Observer, so telegraphed on Thursday, and in his telegram says:

"The invitation caught the brilliant Mississippian, who is ever partial to North Carolinians and who takes great delight in telling his friends that he is a Tar Heel by descent. Mr. Williams has not selected the date for his appearance in Charlotte, but he has promised definitely to make a speech in Webb's district. His time will be at the disposal of the Congressional campaign committee, and most of his speeches will be made in the enemy's country. There is no more effective campaigner in this country than the Democracy's minority leader in the House, who, if political conditions are reversed this fall, will be the next Speaker. It is worthy of note that Mr. Williams promises at this time to speak in Charlotte this Fall, knocks silly the story that he proposes to resign from Congress in order to accept the Chair of Political History at the University of Virginia. The Mississippian has no idea of resigning and his country and party could ill afford to lose his services in the halls of National legislation. The Democrats have not had a leader in the House to compare with John Sharp Williams since the days of Samuel J. Randall."

We are glad Mr. Williams is coming to North Carolina. Our State honors and admires him, and besides he will be a strong card in the campaign in Congressman Webb's district. We would like to have him in the eastern part of North Carolina during the campaign.

The Delineator for July has been received, and that means a season of delight for the hundreds of North Carolina ladies who so eagerly anticipate the coming of that charming publication. The handsome and artistic frontispiece is typical of the Nation's birthday, and the midsummer fashions are exploited to the queen's taste. The fashion plates are rarely artistic and the table of contents particularly entertaining and valuable. The magazine is sent for $1.00 a year; single copies 10 cents. Address The Butterick Publishing Co. (Limited), New York.

CURRENT COMMENT.

It is a sad commentary on our age that the more money a man has the more lies he tells the tax assessor.—Lumberton Robesonian.

Senator Tillman will probably find time, before congress adjourns, to say something nice about the men who have acted as proxies for him in white house negotiations.—Washington Post.

—Rev. Prof. Arthur T. Abernethy, doubt thought "The Hell You Say!" when accosted by an officer in Philadelphia, Tuesday night, and told that he was wanted for having more wives than Secretary Smoot.—Charlotte Observer.

ing this time North Carolina and her splendid resources have been advertised to people of other States to a greater extent than ever before. The time Governor Glenn has spent in telling of this State's growth and prosperity has been productive of much good.—Winston-Salem Sentinel.

—"The fact that Stenographer Deal has resigned proves that Director Boykin's contract for thirty million whiskey labels was straight and honest, doesn't it? Will the Columbia Record please answer?"—Anderson Mail.

We now wonder how any preacher, theologian or anybody else can have any doubt as to literal truth of the Biblical story about Balaam's ass opening its mouth and speaking, when there is positive evidence in these days that such animals do talk, and even write.—Columbia Record.

—The Tar Heel charges that Senator Butler has never voted a Republican ticket. He has voted since 1894 the same kind of a State Republican ticket each year that everybody opposed to the Democratic machine has voted. In the last campaign he was campaigning in the West under the direction of the Republican National Committee and Republican State Committees. He requested that his last appointment should be on Saturday before the election so he could reach home. But by urgent request he remained to speak in Indiana in Congressmen Landis' District on Monday night before the election. This is his excuse for not being able to vote at the last election. Now will the Tar Heel explain why its hero did not vote in the last election?—aleigh Caucasian (Rep.)

—Robby (to his stout uncle)—Gee! Uncle, couldn't a fellow have a fine Christmas dinner if he was an hungry as me an' as roomy as you?—Brooklyn Life.

—First Bachelor—Let's ask Lamb. He's married, and he will be able to speak from experience. Second Bachelor—On the contrary, he'll keep his mouth shut from experience.—Meggen-dorfer Blaetter.

—"Did you notice that faux pas I made at the Gottawaad's last night?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle. "No," replied her hostess. "I see you 'workin' over the chafin' dish, but I thought you was makin' a Welsh rarebit."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"I'm kind o' discouraged 'bout that new boarder," said Mrs. Cornotssel. "Cheer up," answered the farmer. "Their ain't no use o' tryin' to suit him. He's one o' those fellows that write political articles for the magazines."—Washington Star.

—"Doctor, can't you give me something to relieve my sleeplessness?" "Yes; I could prescribe a sedatives, but drugs would do you no real good. Instead of that let me recommend a large, fat, onion, to be eaten raw just before going to bed." "Why, doctor, that's exactly what keeps me awake." "How can it possibly have that effect?" "My wife eats it."—Chicago Tribune.

KEELEY CURE

SAFE AND SURE

Not One in Ten With Liquor Disease Can Quit Drinking—Keeley is Godsend.

The Keeley Institute, Greensboro, N. C.

Mr. friend, Mr. Osborn, as I have enjoyed such good health since I have taken the Keeley Treatment, eight years ago, I feel it my duty to always praise the Keeley Institute for its great and noble work. I believe that Dr. Keeley must have been inspired by the Holy Spirit to have discovered a cure for such a terrible disease as the liquor habit, one that is so hard to get rid of. There are not many drunkards but who think they can stop it when they please, but there is not one in ten that can stop it without aid of medicine. I know that I could not, and I tried it hundreds of times until I went to the Keeley Institute at Greensboro, N. C. I think God must have had a hand in the Keeley Cure. I believe I would have been dead now had I not taken the treatment.
