NORFOLK & SOUTHERN EXTENSION.

The Norfolk & Southern is the new railroad system, which has developed from Norfolk into eastern North Carolina within the past few years. The company has bought and consolidated several old lines, built new ones, contemplated others, and the fact is dawning that it is sooner or later to be an important system. The line already extends as far this way as Newbern and Goldsboro, and there have been rumors that it is contemplated to build further into southeastern North Carolina. That means that Wilmington may be one of its objective points, but of that we have no definite information. The Pender Chronicle hears that the system will probably build a line into Pender county, and referring to the Norfolk & Southern, that esteemed contemporary makes this interesting reference to it.

"There are various rumors afloat as to the direction the above railroad is to take when the work of construction begins. We learn that it is at or near Catharine Lake in Onslow county, and that it is undecided as to where it will run in this direction. It seems to us that a route through the Maple Hill section, coming thence through Burgaw, if the road is heading for Charleston as reported, would be the most desirable for the road, as it would open up one of the finest sections of Pender county. The coming of this road through Burgaw would mean much for our town, and it behooves our people to bestir themselves at once, and take whatever steps are necessary to secure it. With competing lines of railway it would encourage the establishment of factories, as it is a well known fact that freight rates have much to do with this kind of business, no man or company being willing to invest money in a manufacturing enterprise where they are liable to be frozen out by excessive freight rates. This is a matter of great importance to Burgaw, and if our people wish to get the benefit of this railroad it would be well to act at once, if any action is taken at all."

PROF. MASSEY TO WRITE.

The Duplin Journal, of Warsaw, says:

"It will doubtless interest hundreds of our farmer readers to know that Prof. Massey, so long and so successfully identified with the Practical Farmer, has severed his connection with that paper, and will hereafter write regularly for The Progressive Farmer, of Raleigh, N. C. Certainly no man in Southern agricultural work has won a greater following than Prof. Massey, and as his life work has been in the South, he will hereafter contribute only to Southern farm papers. His letters will appear in The Progressive Farmer each week."

The Star takes this from The Journal in order to endorse its reference to Prof. Massey and congratulate the Progressive Farmer. We take the opportunity to say that the Progressive Farmer is not only a North Carolina paper, but is a Southern institution, and one worthy of it in the ability of its staff of writers, in their practical and scientific knowledge of agriculture, and in its helpfulness and usefulness to the farmers in developing the great agricultural resources of the South. It is devoted to the cause and exploits it in a manner that should make for it a place in the home of every farmer from Virginia to Texas. The acquisition of Prof. Massey to its already strong corps of agricultural writers adds to the capabilities that make The Progressive Farmer a necessity to the man who wants to make the ground yield him the most satisfactory results. We don't know how to be of greater benefit to our farmers than to make that suggestion.

ONLY A LAUGHING MATTER.

Editor John Temple Graves, of Atlanta, has been quoted as saying that President Roosevelt had remarked to him that he might consent to be a candidate for President again if he thought by so doing he could break the solid South by getting the electoral vote of Georgia or any other Southern State. Col. Graves now rises to explain that while the President did not use the expressions attributed to him, yet he (Col. Graves) did say to the President that if he (Mr. Roosevelt) would accept the Republican nomination next year, he would be sure to get the electoral vote of more than one Southern State, and, in his opinion, many Southern States.

Col. Graves has been put in the attitude of misrepresenting the President, but while he makes the correction he acknowledges that he tried to conjure Mr. Roosevelt with assurances that one or more Southern States would vote for him. If Mr. Roosevelt hadn't known that Col. Graves is honest and innocent he might have reported to the detectives that the Georgia orator did his best to sell him a gold brick. As it was, however, Roosevelt didn't have anything else to do than appear "de-lighted" while Graves was present, but if a snap shot of the President had been taken after the Georgian had left it would have caught the President "jes laffin' to hisself," as Uncle Remus would say of Br'er Possam.

IT ACTED WISELY.

The State Democratic Convention of Pennsylvania acted wisely in turning down a resolution endorsing William J. Bryan for the Presidency in 1908. Such an endorsement would have encouraged a candidacy that forebodes nothing but disaster and demoralization to the Democratic party. Twice has Mr. Bryan been honored with the national leadership of his party, and twice has that party gone down in defeat—the last time it being so overwhelming that the party has not yet recovered from the disaster.

Why should the Democratic party again engage in a hopeless struggle? To be defeated a third time under the leadership of Mr. Bryan would mean irretrievable ruin and the surrender of some of the principles that are the very essence of real Democracy.

The plain duty of every State Democratic Convention that will be held during the next year is to endorse no candidate for the Presidency. Let the delegates to the National Convention go untrammelled by instructions, free to act for the real interests of the party they represent.

There is hope for the Democrats in 1908 if they are wise enough to name a ticket and adopt a platform that will unite the party.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—Senator Foraker and his friends have again notified the administration that they are in no hurry to get out of the trouble zone. — Washington Post.

The magazines and the artists are making special efforts to preserve the "vanishing race" of Indians. But we have more interesting types among us that the next generation will not know except in literature and art. Take the typographical tourist; will not he disappear before the last Indian seeks the happy hunting grounds? Take the "uncles and aunts" of the old plantation—the real thing, not the counterfeit; these remain only in some aged specimens. Let us preserve what is near as well as what is afar. — Jacksonville Times-Union.

The steel trust has decided that it will manufacture no more armor-plate and the Cramps have found the building of battleships unprofitable, and yet both have been enriched by the tariff imposed with the avowed purpose of building up their plants. And now an establishment at Newport News and another in New England bid greatly under them for building the greatest of our battleships, and largely underbid the naval estimates made for a guide to the department. Nothing could be plainer than the verdict thus rendered as to the folly of a prohibitive tariff. — Jacksonville Times-Union.

If the facts are not exaggerated, the "Pentecostal Power" distributed by the wife of Judge Ladd of Iowa's Supreme Court during the religious services she is conducting in Des Moines, causes the men converts to shout and the women to scream, and one man who took it lay unconscious two days and nights on the floor of the mission house. More than that, Mrs. Ladd says that when those thus prostrated regain consciousness they speak in a strange tongue. This ought to be looked into. The symptoms are much like those of "wood alcohol," but worse. — Brooklyn Citizen.

Toistol sneers at the peace conference at The Hague as a piece of hypocrisy and nothing else. Evidently the poor old man is in his dotage. In this age of democratic movement nothing is more essential to monarchs themselves than peace. War is so costly and entails such burdens of taxation that with the spread of intelligence it becomes desperately dangerous to embark in conflict out of bravado or just of conquest. No nation is going to imitate the France of 1870. There is nothing hypocritical in the modern peace movement. — Buffalo News (Rep.).

TWINKLINGS.

"Why, Mary," said her mistress, "I told you to tidy up my room an hour ago, and here it is in terrible disorder." "Yes, mum, and I did," said Mary, "but the master came in to put on a clean collar, mum, and he lost the stud." — London Tatler.

"He's a great growler, isn't he?" "Hurricane is nothin' to him." Finds fault with everything! "Worst you ever saw." "By the by—what is he doing now?" "Editing the 'Band of Hope' and 'Smashin' department of a new magazine!" — Atlanta Constitution.

"We have left undone the things we should have done," acknowledged the fair worshiper. "It's all right, dear," whispers a motherly soul in the pew back of her. "It's not undone any more, I reached over and hooked it while you was standing up." — Et.

Louis Republic. —"Of course," said the author of the very French comedy, "the dialogue is rather racy, and perhaps it's too long, but I could boil it down." "Yes," replied the disgusted critic, "if you expect the public to swallow this, by all means boil it." — Philadelphia Press.

EASILY DECIDED.

This Question Should be Answered Easily by Wilmington People.

Which is wiser—to have confidence in the opinions of your fellow-citizens, of people you know, or depend on statements made by utter strangers residing in far-away places? Read the following:

H. Cronenberg, photographer, of 119 1-2 Market street, Wilmington, N. C. says: "I used Doan's Ointment and it did its work promptly and permanently. I had a rash all over me, and no one knows how I suffered. It was like being in the infernal region and I could get no relief. I did not dare scratch because that made it worse. I tried everything but only to be disappointed. Some one told me about Doan's Ointment and I procured a box at R. R. Bellamy's drug store. I went home and applied some of the ointment, and I can say that it brought the first relief I had had for a long time. I can only add that it is a preparation of great merit."

Remarkable Rescue.

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Pepper. He writes: "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing soon ceased; the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work." Guaranteed cure for coughs and colds. 50c and $1.00 at R. R. Bellamy's drug store. Trial bottle free.
