From the June Report of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, 9 A Under date of July 1, the Cotton Exchange of New Orleans makes a full report from all the exchanges.

We have room for only two: Norfolk and Portsmouth Depart ment.-Fifty-five replies have been received from twenty-nine counties in North Carolina, and six replies from two counties in Virginia. Forty five replies report the weather dr and cold, fourteen say favorable, and only two represent the weather as wet and cold. Fifty-four answers report the stand as good; some few complaints on stiff lands; some forms but no blooms. Seven replies from as many counties in North Carolina report the stand below the average. The condition is generally good, and the crop well cultivated and free from grass and weeds. The plant is smaller than at the same time last year, and from eight to fifteen days later. Five replies from as many counties in Eastern Carolina report the condition bad. Correspondents state that the weather since May 15th has been too cold for a rapid growth but with warm and seasonable weather great improvement is looked for.

Charlestan (Department of South Carolina). - Ninety-seven answers have been received from 27 counties. and report the weather since May 15 as generally favorable, with some complaints of cool nights. T Some additional planting has been done. The stands are very generally represented as good. Thirty-four answers report and 9 no forms. All agree, however, in stating that there are no blooms up to the date of their answer. The present condition of the crop is good; the plant though small being clear of thrably with last year. Heavy wind and rain storms are reported in six counties since June 7th, doing much four counties.

OBITUARY, Hon. Thomas B. Florence.

Hon. Thomas B. Florence, formerly member of Congress, and well known in political circles, died in Washington city early Sunday morning. Colonel Florence was born in Philadelphia January 26, 1812, and had not the benefits of a liberal eduscation in his youth, but for some time followed the occupation of a hauter. He subsequently published and edited a Democratic newspaper; was for nine years Secretary of the Board of Comptrollers of Public Schools in Pennsylvania and was elected to Congress in 1850. He remained a member of that body for several successive terms and held positions on the Committees on Naval Affairs and Invalid Pensions. After the expiration of his service Colonel Florence commenced the publication of the Constitutional Union, an evening paper, in Washington city, which suspended publication some years ago, and its proprietor changed the enterprise to the Sunday Guzette, with which he was connected at the time of his death. Col. Florence was a consistent Democrat of the old school, and enjoyed great popularity in the community in which he resided from the geniality of his manners and his liberal hospitality. His death has caused general sorrow among his friends, who esteemed his kindness of heart and honesty of character. His remains will be taken to Philadelphia on Tuesday evening for interment.

The Commissioner of Internal Revethe has reversed the decision of Apr 12th last concerning the stamp tax upon drafts, bills checks or orders drawn in the United States upon a bank, banker or trust company in a foreign country, and decides that they, although perhaps not vouchers while in this country, appear to him to be clearly taxable under the terms of the statute. They are drafts, cheeks or orders drawn upon a bank, banker or trust company, and there is nothing in the law limiting to this country the locality of the bank, etc., upon which the paper is drawn. Collectors are required to notify the banks, bankers and trust companies in their several districts of this change of ruling, and will require the which he henceforth remained. The disagreement substantially pro claims that a man who so conducted himself under a charge of base prac-tices as Beecher did for four years, and who made so poor a defence on the trial, deserves at least to be attainted with strong suspicion of guilt.
On whatever theory you explain his cowardice and deceit, the result is fatal to his integrity as a man and destructive of his power as a minister. Not the least of his manifold offences is his bearing and conduct since the fight between him and Tilton came to an issue. He has played the buffoon, resorted to theatrical tricks to exhibit indifference, joked and jested, laughed and parried words as if it was a mock trial and he a clown undergoing circus justice in the presence of a flippant crowd. From these things alone Mr. Beecher's character as a man of dignity and a serious and conscientions minister has received a fatal blow.-Guilty or innocent, the mere fact that he was on trial in the most notorious case ever brought before the American people, would have saddened, sobered, and tempered almost any other man, assuredly any other minister.— The charge of adultery against him was the worst that can be brought against a preacher. What more damning offence could be alleged against a pastor than that by vile arts he had debauched the wife of his young disciple, herself a child of his flock, and

Treasury Note Currency. |Richmond Whig.]

We are convinced that the one cur rency which will satisfy all the conditions and requirements of a perfect currency is to be found in a treasury note currency issued by the Government of the United States. An act of Congress stripping gold of its privileges and consigning it to its proper place among purchasable commodi-ties, and authorizing the issue of treasury notes to be a legal-tender for all dues, public and private, except interest on that portion of the public debt which at its creation guaranteed gold, and interconvertible with 3 per cent. Government bonds, would constitute the speediest, most certain and most satisfactory solution possible of the currency question. This would simplify the whole matter. It would be a currency consisting of a single article-entirely in the control of the Government-of a uniform value, the value fixed by convertibility into 3 per cent. Government bonds-the quantity regulated in part by the quantity of those bonds and in part by the wants of trade.

There was a little real evidence of affection in Alexander Dumas, the father, and Dumas the son achieved a position in literature which came to him suddenly. It was at the first representation of the "Dame aux Camelias," where in the foyer of the theatre, before the play began, the elder Dumas told his friends he was apprehensive of a failure, as his son was only a gamin. As the play progressed he told them that he himself had touched it up here and there, and it might possibly be a success. At the end when the applause was deafening the expansive father threw his arms around their necks and forgot himself to the extent of saying that he had written the piece entirely himself, and this paints the elder to the letter .-The public for a long time labored under the impression that the senior in dramatic literature.

He received the brevet of second lientenant in the second artillery in July, 1859, but was transferred to the 3rd artillery in December following. In March, 1862, he was transferred to the quartermaster's department, in brevet.

Specel of Gen. Abbott-Resaing of the Beclaration of Independence-Cheers for our Whole Country, &c. ABBOTTSBURG, July 6. Editors Star: The ninety-ninth anniversary of American Independence was duly celebrated in this "burg" on the 5th inst. At 3 o'clock P. M. the sound of the drum and the booming of a miniature cannon notified the citizens that the celebration in a formal manner was about to take place.-Arriving at the appointed spot where the ceremonies would take place, we found quite a large and respectable assemblage, who had come hither to hear the speech, the reading of the Declaration of Independence, &c., &c. The assemblage being comfortably seated, H. S. Servoss, Esq., moved that the meeting come to order and that Gen. Abbott be called to the Chair. Motion carried. It was further moved and carried that John Nutt, Jr., act as Secretary.

The Rev. J. W. Gurganus offered up an appropriate prayer, at the conclusion of which Gen. Abbott arose and addressed the assemblage in a stirring and patriotic speech. He alluded briefly to the condition of the colonists anterior to the Declaration of Independence, the causes which led them to throw off the yoke of British tyranny, the sagacity and wisdom of the fathers of the republic, the blessings we enjoy in this free land which they had given us, &c., &c. The speech was well delivered and well received by those who heard it. At the conclusion of Gen. A.'s remarks he introduced J. W. Rowell, Esq., who had been selected to read the Declaration of Independence. The reading was well done in a clear, distinct voice, and was listened to with marked attention by those present.

At the conclusion of the reading Gen. Abbott proposed three cheers for the flag and our whole country, which were given with enthusiasm. The erowd then dispersed to enjoy the cool evening breeze with which we were so happily blessed on that day. And so ended the "glorious 4th" at the close of the ninety-ninth year of BLADEN. independence.

Convention of Southern Rallway of

A convention of Southern railway officials was held in Atlanta, Ga. commencing on Wednesday last and continuing two days, ex-Governor J. E. Brown, President of the Western and Atlantic road, presiding. The convention was called to ratify the action of the representatives of a number of Southern roads who were in conference in New York several weeks since. The following freight rates from Atlanta to Baltimore were adopted: First class, $1 60 per 100 pounds; second, $1 30; third, $1; fourth, 85 cents; fifth, 75 cents; sixth, 55 cents. The rates to Boston, New York and Philadelphia, from Atlanta, are 10 cents per hundred higher for the three first classes, and 5 cents per hundred higher for the remaining

The convention was thrown into some disorder by the refusal of the East Tennessee and Virginia Air-Line and the South Carolina railroads to enter the pooling combination of freights proposed by the various other lines. They did not object to the rcduction in rates, but held that it was their privilege to act independently. Finding that these roads were positive in their refusal to enter the combination, the other roads threatened to make every discrimination possible against these lines if they did not enter the pool." The convention, after discussing the matter for some time, decided to give the East Tennessee and Virginia Air-Line and the South Carolina roads ten days' time to consider the matter. At the end of that time, if these roads still refuse to enter the pool, they propose to take harsh action.

A Romantie Story.

The schooner Florinda, Capt. Kenmine, sailed from New Orleans in 1849, for San Francisco, taking a number of passengers who had been seized with the gold fever, and touched at Port Praya and Rio Janeiro, which port she left in the latter part of the year. A vessel calling at Rio shortly after reported speaking the Florinda in the Pacific. just beyond Cape Horn, but nothing more was ever heard of her. The New Orleans Picayune says that a short time ago a friend of the wife of one of the passengers of the schooner read in an English paper that a British naval vessel, driven out of her course, sighted an unknown island in the lower Pacific, and found upon it several persons, who said they were the Florinda party, who had been wrecked on the island and had been there ever since-more than twentyfive years ago. The names given were those of the Florinda's crew, and in other ways the identity of the party is said to have been established It is further stated that the offer to take them off was declined, on the ground that as they had been lost so long they preferred ending their days there. Further inquiries are on foot to establish the truthfulness of the

A Spirit in the Tub. The Worcester Spy says that a lady in that city, who put her clothes to soak the night before a recent washing day, awoke her husband during the night with the startling information that there were spirits in the house, and that the clothes were jumping out of the tub. The husband answered her, saying that he would dispatch the spirits, but was very much surprised to find the case exactly as stated; the clothes were jumping up in the tub. An investigation followed, and in the pillow case was found a large rat, the ani mal having got in there before the clothes were put in the water. Not liking the soaking, he attempted to escape by jumping, and his jumps a layer of bone a quarter of an inch produced spiritual manifestations. The spirits having been materialized, quarters of an inch in width. 'You were promptly dispatched according

One of the outhouses on the premises of Col. Humphrey was entered the same night by a ne-gro boy. The room is occupied by a Mrs. Reaves and her little daughter, and it is thought that the negro fiend had hellish designs, in which, we are glad to say, he was however frustrated. We hope that these scoundrels may be left dead in their tracks some night. They ought to be hung to the first tree close by, if captured alive. And where were the police ?

- The Observer describes an accident which took place at Long Creek Bridge, above Charlotte, on the C. C. R.'y last Saturday, just a week after the railroad accident already reported. Workmen were engaged in rebullding the trestle over Long Creek, and Mr. — Weaver and Capt. Harralson were on top of the benches of the trestle. These had not been securely fastened below, and while another bench was being drawn up over one of these it fell, carrying all the others with it. Weaver was killed instantly. Both his arms, both his legs and his neck were broken, and a piece of the timber fell across his chest. The unfortunate man was crushed and mangled beyond all recognition. Capt. Harralson sustained several serious injuries. A piece of the timber fell across him, and he probably suffered internal injury. In addition to this he had a deep gash cut in his face, and was otherwise hurt.

Syntax of the Grant Family. [New York Tribune.]

Lieut. Col. Fred. D. Grant inherits the syntax of his father, who ought to number the English language among the things he has sacrificed since he became President. In his report on his expedition into Colorado he says: "The fish of the Yellowstone consist of catfish near its mouth, shiner and jack salmon."

The announcement that the Italian Government is armed with legal authority to crush the secret society called "La Maffia" is not, it seems, likely to add to the ease of Victor Emmanuel's crown, and will cause the situation in Italy to be watched with more than ordinary interest.
