THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

It is now manifest that the Monroe doctrine will be maintained on the part of the United States in regard to foreign intervention in the affairs of this country.

The telegraphic summary of proceedings state that the committee reviewed in their report the whole question involved in the Monroe doctrine.

In a discussion during Polk's Administration relative to the United States becoming the protector of Yucatan, Mr. Calhoun made a speech in which he analyzed the doctrine in his clear, luminous, plain way, and he maintained that the Monroe doctrine had nothing whatever to do with the question then before the Senate.

Heretofore the doctrine has been limited more to a simple declaration than a well defined policy. Congress never indorsed it. In fact the House once repudiated the second and third divisions of it.

HOW TO MULTIPLY COTTON MILLS.

We notice some advice given to Southern planters by Mr. S. R. Cockrill, Vice President of the Mississippi Valley Cotton Planters' Association, concerning the Clement Attachment that is worth publishing.

THE WEEKLY STAR.

VOL. XII.

He thinks the raw cotton can be doubled in value by manufacturing it at home, and he is certainly not far wrong in his figures. He says that the crop would fetch $450,000,000 if converted into yarns.

Mr. Cockrill asks this question: "Why are we compelled to send to Europe? Because they have the spindles and we have not."

At the meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias, held at Goldsboro, Mr. J. A. Bonitz, the indefatigable editor and proprietor of the Messenger, was elected Grand Chancellor of the Jurisdiction of North Carolina.

LANE AND SCALE'S AT GETTYSBURG.

The conduct of Gen. Pettigrew's fine Brigade in the memorable charge at Gettysburg on the third day has received due attention in these columns, and we do not propose to go into the matter again.

The splendid map of the battlefield prepared with the utmost labor and care and after a personal inspection of the ground upon which the death-struggle occurred, and after extensive correspondence with eyewitnesses in both armies, by Col. Bator, (we believe this is the correct orthography) of Massachusetts, will aid the future conscientious historian in little in arriving at the truth of the matter.

credit to its own dashing soldiery. There was no brigade in Pickett's command that lost as many men as did Pettigrew's North Carolina Brigade in Heth's Division.

But we wish to-day to call attention to the two very interesting letters from the pen of Major General L. R. Trimble, of Maryland. One of these letters bears the date of "October 15th, 1875," and is addressed to Col. S. D. Pool. It appeared in Our Living and Our Dead.

He adds, that when he ordered his two Brigades to fall back finally, they marched back, calmly and slowly, in almost as good order as they had advanced, and I halted them on the summit of Seminary Ridge.

It needs to be remembered that Gen. Cadmus M. Wilcox, so Maj. Daniel says in a letter to Gen. Trimble, told him that (Maj. D.) had made some errors as to the third day's charge at Gettysburg.

There is some excitement in Florida. One man was killed at Madison, and another was attacked, but killed his assailant. It is alleged that they were attacked because of their testimony in favor of Horatio Bisbee, Jr., the Republican who was seated recently by a Democratic Congress.

We have drawn attention already to the proposed cotton exposition at Atlanta, Ga., next October. We notice it is growing in favor, and in New England is exciting due attention.

The Philadelphia American takes the same view of the Jeannette that we presented last week. It says: "We do not object to the appropriation, provided it exacts at the same time a law making all such expeditions criminal for the future."

The Charlotte Democrat calls on the Star to publish what it says for ex-Gov. Holden. We have not the space for all, but we give a long paragraph that contains the main part of the article.

Mr. Moncure D. Conway, a really learned and highly gifted Virginian, living in England, is to publish a volume of Carlyle's table-talk. He was a favorite with the great Scotchman and for several years was in the habit of visiting him and having long walks with him.

Although 1880 was a very prosperous year, there were 31 railroads sold under foreclosure. The total debt was $165,568,000, with a capital of $97,313,000. But large as this, it is much less than in 1879.

The Cape Fear Tobacco Factory-Removal-Improvements, &c. Workmen were employed yesterday, under the direction of Mr. Meadows, one of the proprietors, in removing the stock and machinery of the Cape Fear Tobacco Works, located on Chestnut, between Sixth and Seventh streets, to the store of Mr. C. F. Bischoff, corner of Eighth and Tenth streets.

The Bank of New Hanover Annual Meeting of stockholders. The annual meeting of the stockholders of "The Bank of New Hanover" was held at their Banking House at 12 M. yesterday.

Murder in Duplin. Wright Quinn, a man 70 years old, was found murdered in his own house, in Duplin county, near the Jones county line, last week. It seems that he was in the act of getting supper (as he lived alone) when some one shot him; and then placed the body in the fireplace, piled a quantity of wood on the remains and attempted to burn them.
