A single ballad from the nightingale, So doth thy beauty make my lids to fail, And all my sweetest singing out of tune And as at dawn across the level mead

On wings impetuous some wind will with its too harsh kisses break the Which was its only instrument of song

So my too stormy passions work the wrong. And for excess of Love my Love is dumb But surely unto thee mine eye did show Why I am silent and my lute unstrung; Else it were better we should part and go, Thou to some lips of sweeter melody, And I to nurse the barren memory

Of unkissed kisses and songs never sung.

"Seeing the South." Philadelphia Record.

Few things in this life are so delightful as the charming way in which the average "staff correspondent" discourses of "the South," when the line of his travels happens that way. A week or two, or at most a month, of hasty flitting across several Southern States by rail, with more or less frequent stops in the larger towns he comes to, seems to abundantly qualify him to explain the entire southern situation in all its phases and developments. What he does not then know about the South is not worth knowing. Every aspect of the problem has become intelligible to him-political, industrial, social, domestic, educational and religious.

something New in stockings.

Montreal Star. "Silken hosiery is all the rage in Paris just now." So says a fashion paper, and we opine that male humanity is apt to speculate as to what "silken hosiery" is. But there is something odd following this announcement, and it is this: The hosiery is ornamented "with insertions of portraits and medallions in point lace," or perhaps photographs of loving swains are inserted here and there into the silken threads. This latter idea is novel at least. It has the merit of originality, even if it is silly. At times it might be awkward, for it would be somewhat annoying for a fellow to look at his lady love's stock.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, August 3, 11 P. M.

—The progress of the President towards recovery to day has been marked and satisfactory. He has taken rather more than the usual smount of nourishment. His strength is daily increasing and he is able already to do more in the way of turning himself in bed and helping to raise his body than the surgeons think it prudent to allow.

In the opinion of the surgeons he is better and stronger to-day than at any time heretofore. Dr. Agnew returned to Philadelphia this morning, and Dr. Hamilton srrived from New York at 10.30 P. M. In view, however, of the President's extremely favorable condition, it was not thought necessary for Dr. Hamilton to come to the

In India, Cholera often sweeps the country, destroying hundreds of thousands of people; for there it is not only terribly con-tagious, but terribly fatal. For many years no medicine could be found which would cure the sufferers, so that when the disease broke out it at once created a panic. Some years ago an American carried some of PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER into India, and soon found that it would cure any case of Cholers, Summer Complaint, or Dyschtery, used properly and according to directions. The Hindoos were so rejoiced to find a sure remedy, when everything else had failed that they named it "Medicine of the Gods," thinking that man could, not invent so certain a cure. For forty years it has been used in this country, and never has been known to fail. No family is safe without having a bottle ready for use.

THE LAW SCHOOL of the University of North Carolina, at Chapel Hill, will be opened on the 25th of August. There are two classes—(1) one composed of students having no other connection with the University classes; (4) the other of students who are members of other classes in the University. Special attention will be given to the preparation of students for obtaining license to practice in the courts of the State, and, in addition, to obtain the degree of Bachelor of Laws, which will be cenferred on such students as shall pass approved examination on the entire course. To obtain this degree will ordinarily require two years. The sdvantages of this school are thought to be: (1) Access to libraries containing twenty thousand volumes; (2) a participation in the exercises of the two Literary Societies; (3) an opportunity to attend the lectures of the President on Constitutional and Political History, Constitutional and International Law, and also the lectures on Logic, Rhetoric and Psychology; (4) freedom from temptations, (and stimulants to study, found in the University regulations and in the atmesphere of books and study prevailing at Chapel Hill. Sale of the Alum Springs in Obslow Co. WILL BE SOLD, ON THE PIEST MONDAY in September, 1881, at the Court House door, in the town of Jacksonville, at public auction, the property known as the "ALUM SPRING," with about Thirteen Acres of Land in connection therewith. The said property is situated about ten miles from Jacksonville and one mile from Catharine Lake, in a good neighborhood, and it is considered a very desirable location: The Spring is the cutlet of an immense volume of water, which is light, healthy, and is said to possess medicinal virtues which are rare.

The Commissioners reserve the right, if the said property fall, in their judgment, to bring its value, to decline the sale, and expose it again if they see Terms Cash. County claims considered as cash. By order of Board of Commissioners. au 4 Dit Wot D. E. HUMPHREY, Clerk.
