NORTH CAROLINA AT. REAMS'S STATION.

always to the Front-August 25, 1864. From Sloan's Forthcoming History. Just then, too, Hampton dispatched Gen. Barringer up the Halifax road, with a large mounted force, in order to reach Hancock's left and rear. This was successfully done, and greatly alarmed the Yankees. The attack was made at Tucker's farm, with the First, Second and Fifth North Carolina regiments. Gen. Barringer then hastened back and took his place in line for the final assault. In making the left wheel the Second North Carolina and the Ninth Virginia were brought full against the enemy's strongest works. But these magnificent troops swept away everything before them, and when the infantry witnessed this charge, they rent the air with cheers, another joint movement was instantly begun, and then the whole Yankee fine gave way, with a loss of five guns, 2,400 prisoners, 3,000 stands of arms, seven colors and untold quantities of entrenching tools and equip-

In this great struggle all the troops did well. "Georgians, South Carolinians, racing to be first, in what they expected would be the struggle of death." But it was conceded by all that more than an ordinary share of the honor, as well as of danger, fell to the gallant citizen soldiers of the Old North State. They were complimented by all the superior officers. letter to Gov. Vance, refers to the rare gallantry of the brigades of Gens. Cooke, McRae, and Lane in advancing through a thick abattis of felled trees, under a heavy fire of musketry and artillery, and carrying the enemy's works with a steady conrage, that elicited the warm commendations of their corps and division commanders, and the admiration of the army." He then adds: "On the same occasion the brigade of Gen. Barringer bore a conspicuous part in the operations of the cavalry, which were not less distinguished for boldness and efficiency than those of the

But it is sad to think that these heroic achievements are almost wholunknown outside of the Army of Northern Virginia, and those especially familiar with the history of the great "American conflict." Our own writers and historians have allowed the honors of these mighty deeds to be borne off by others. But all true North Carolinians should now unite a noble and patriotic effort to vindicate the just claims of these brave men, to the truth of history, and the lasting gratitude of their peo-

The exploits of this day brought prominently forward, besides Gen. Barringer himself, already specially referred to, the names of several North Carolina cavalry officers who attained marked eminence in that difficult service. Cols. Cheek, Roberts and McNeil, of the First, Second and Fifth Regiments, and Lient. Col. Moore, of the Third, all came at once to the front as cavalry leaders. The day and the occasion gave Roberts his chance for promotion, and the cool dash and intrepid daring exhibited by that splendid young trooper soon "won him his spurs." In rapid succession followed the promotion of Lieut. Cols. Cowles. Shaw and Gains. Majors McLeod and McClammy, and numerous subalterns, acquired marked notice in reports and otherwise.

Fancy Grant's surrender with nearly 200,000 men at his back! You can't realize such a thing, and the less the disgraced Marshal says about his career in the Franco-Prussian war the better. "Corn Planter," a chief of one of the Six Nations, to France, and educated him in all the accomplishments of a young man of rank. When he returned to America, accompanied by a lady of great beauty and good family, there was no finer gentleman in the new world. Yet within four-andtwenty hours he was found in the streets of Boston drunk, wrapped in a tattered blanket, and surrounded by a party of his savage countrymen. Next day he deserted his French friends, and when Aaron Burr was traveling from Canada to New York he found the unfortunate wife of the irreclaimable savage wandering in the woods, cruelly maltreated, stripped of her property, almost naked, and subsisting on berries and wild fruit. It has been so over and over again. A young Botocudo boy was brought up by a Brazilian family at Bahia, attended the schools and the university, obtained a medical diploma, and for a time practiced as a physician. Soon, however, he was seized with an irresistible longing for his old life, and within three years after graduating was roaming about the forest with his tribe. "Jemmy Button," the Fuegian, whom the late Admiral Fitzroy brought to England and educated, was, within a few months after his return to Terra del Fuego, as complete a savage as if he hed never worn kid gloves and polished boots in London.

No family dyes were ever so popular as the Diamond Dyes. They never fail. The Black is far superior to logwood. The other colors are brilliant.

TAX THE LUXURIES.

Goldsboro Bulletin

We must have a tariff for revenue at last; and so long as that is necessary it must be, or ought to be, upon such things as will work the least hardship upon the masses. As long as it is necessary to raise a revenue it strikes us as a common sense view of the matter that the necessaries of life should be as near free as possible, and the luxuries should bear the burden of the tax. Three negroes were arrested, and while an inquest was in progress a mob took one of the negroes, Westly Warren, out of jail, and hung him. The others were released.

ALEXANDRIA, VA., June 20.—A negro boy, aged 18, met an eleven-year old daughter of Edgar Lee, in Fairfax county, yesterday, and attempted rape. Another Exciting Day on 'Change-Two Additional Failures Reported. [By Telegraph to the Morning Star.]

CHICAGO, June 20.—This has proved another exciting day on 'Change and the condition of affairs has been very much strained. The great trading has changed over somewhat from provisions to wheat and corn, and failures which have occurred in all lines have caused a suspicion of unsteadiness to attach to many of the heavier firms. Fluctuations in all markets have been sharp and rapid, and speculators have, in consequence, been calling indiscriminately for margins. One failure was announced during the forenoon—that of George Stewart & Co. They are reported long on wheat and lard. All the markets, up to noon, displayed signs of weakness: but all assumed a firmer tone towards the close, although the severe drop in pork was not altogether recovered. Just before the close, the firm of Dally & Co., who have been dealing heavily in pork, succumbed and so notified those with whom they had dealings. The firm's liabilities are not ascertained.
