

member of the party... The first thing the Senate should do after organizing is to pass a bill, Hoar's or better one, regulating the succession.

What has been gained. The question is, what has the Democracy gained by setting the Cleveland Administration up as a monster.

They have gained three very important things, if not more; first, the South is left alone and has an Administration that is thoroughly friendly; second, there is a manifest purpose to reduce expenditures where it is possible and to bring back the Government to the simplicity, economy and purity of the old days.

Mr. Cleveland has had to move with caution in the matter of turning out Republican officials and "offensive partisans" because he is to meet a hostile Senate. If he had a Democratic Senate to back him he would have no doubt the turning out of Republicans would have gone on much more rapidly.

As far as Mr. Cleveland's opinions are known they do not differ from those held by Republicans. On the Tariff, silver, civil service reform and Paternal Pledge he holds about the views of ex-President Arthur. In fact, as far as the Civil Service is concerned, probably, he is more pronounced in his advocacy of it than even Arthur was.

But of one thing we feel assured, Mr. Cleveland will give the country as far as in him lies a clean Administration. He may not be in harmony with the views of a large and uneducated class of old fashioned Democrats who learned their principles from the Democratic teachers in the past.

The death of Vice President Hendricks opens up the return of the Republican party to power in case of the death of the President. This is unfortunate every way. The people nearly three months ago recorded their preferences at the polls. They decided that there should be a change of parties in the administration of the Government.

The number of disasters to documented vessels during the field of station operations within the year was 256. There were on board these vessels 3,906 persons of whom 3,199 were saved and only 707 lost.

The Senate ought to have settled this question of succession in 1883. President Garfield had been murdered, and the Vice President had stepped into his place. The Senate had to choose a presiding officer.

The New York Times, in discussing this question of succession, says: "Senator Hoar's bill of 1883, which is the most acceptable measure dealing with this subject, provided that the succession should devolve upon the members of the Cabinet in their order, beginning with the Secretary of State."

If it is to place in the best possible foundation and to give the hardy and gallant men liberal pay.

The North Carolina Conference, in session at Charlotte, decided by a vote of 22 yeas to 110 nays against the division. There was but a majority among the preachers.

A Washington correspondent of the Fayetteville Observer-Gazette falls into two or three errors in regard to the Gales family. He says the late Joseph Gales, of the National Intelligencer, was a North Carolinian.

Mr. Joseph Gales was the father of the late Maj. Joseph Gales, of Raleigh, who was named after the partner of his father, W. Weston.

His brother, Weston R. Gales, was the father of Maj. Seaton Gales. Col. Seaton had a son whose name was Gales Seaton. Joseph and Weston R. Gales were sons of Joseph Gales.

THIRDS RETURNED.

There was a lighthearted looking quartette seated in the prisoner's dock in the court house yesterday afternoon. Three of the four were women—the notorious shop-lifters—and the other a man.

Three men arrested. Three white men of rather respectable appearance were arrested yesterday on the charge of stealing a gold watch from a woman named Alice Dean, living in a disreputable house on MacRae street between Walnut and Mulberry.

The woman alleged that the watch, which she described as a small gold one, was taken from under her pillow by one of the three men, who spent the night in the house. It has not been recovered.

The men were made to deliver up everything that they had in their pockets at the jail, (as is customary.) They had no money; or at least no money was found upon their persons. One of them had a silver watch on the neck of each and each had a pair of English walking shoes, used sometimes by gamblers to play the "little joker."

A dispatch to the Star from London, received yesterday, says that the German bark Fido, which sailed from this port October 9th, for Wolsat, Germany, was found on her beam-ends in the English channel. She had been cut down three straws below the copper on the starboard side.

Wm. P. Stiden and Chas. Cuff, colored sailors on the schooner Three Brothers, were committed to jail yesterday in default of bail for $300 each by T. M. Gardner, Esq., U. S. Commissioner. The two men shipped on the schooner mentioned at Baltimore, for a voyage to Wilmington and return, and on the arrival of the schooner at this port deserted.
