that future generations will hold in great reverence and honor. The historic hour may come to him and rising to the height of the great demand he may withhold his assent to a bill that is simed at the rights of the States and a Constitutional Government regulated by law. We must look to him in the last resort. If he fail in that hour then a great, irrevocable injury is done to the autonomy and integrity of sovereign Commonwealths and to the organic law of the land. We again quote, with hearty indorsement, what our able Northern contemporary says:

"As the Star has already said, his broad constituency can be trusted to sustain him in such a position, and will, not be swayed from principle by local interests. The question is one of very grave importance. The final action upon it will settle not merely this measure, but will demonstrate whether or not there is left in the United States any party that can be depended upon to resist the tendency towards centralization. * * The Democratic party itself is on trial in this crisis, and it is for it to show to the American people whether or not it is such a political organization as its name and past history imply. The one man representing the whole party is the President of the United States, and it seems likely that the of this momentous question will figally rest in his hands."

FERTILIZERS AND THE AGRIdeclared: CULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

The March number of the Bulletin, issued by the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, is devoted mainly to exhibiting the practical results of the Department. It essays to show that it has exercised real influence on the material progress of the State. It first considers the protection it affords against frauds in commercial fertilizers. It is full on this head and satisfactory. It next discusses the good resulting from the discovery and development of phosphate beds. A third instance of good done is the development of the coal fields. Dr. Dabney, in charge of the Experiment Station, discusses, first, what are experiment stations; second, the quality and cost of fertilizers for five years. He shows that under the operations of the Station the farmers could get in 1885 for three millions of dollars what they had to pay four millions for in 1880-yes, and get an article one-sixth better than the 1880 article was. In the third place, he discusses fertilizer valuations for the year, and lastly the analyses of fertilizers. The Station is giving the farmers more analyses and earlier this year than ever before. It is able to do this by an increase of workers. There are eighty-five brands of fertilizers used in North Carolina. Of these North Carolina furnishes 9; South Carolina 11; Virginia 18; Maryland 31; Delaware 4; New Jer-
