PLEDGES VERSUS PERFOR-MANCE.

New York World.

The Democratic National Convention of 1884 made the following pledges, among others, to the people of the United States:

purify the administration from corruption, to restore economy, to re-vive respect for the law and to rethrough plate glass windows at the duce taxation to the lowest limit consistent with due regard to the preservation of the faith of the nation to its creditors and pensioners. Knowing full well, however, that legislation affecting the operations of the people should be cautious and conservative in method, not in advance of public opinion but responsive to its demands, the Democratic party is pledged to revise the Tariff in a spirit of fairness to all interests.'

Upon the pledges of this platform the people elected Mr. Cleveland President and sent the present Democratic majority to the House of Representatives.

The Republican National Convention of 1884 made the following emphatic declaration in its platform:

"The Republican party pledges itself to correct the inequalities of the tariff and to reduce the surplus, not by the vicious and indiscriminating process of horizontal reduction, but by such methods as will relieve the taxpayer without injuring the laborer or the productive interests of the country."

The Republican members of the present House of Representatives were elected on the strength of these declarations and promises.
