My soul is voiceless as the frozen moon. Yet in it slumbers music deep an i strong As all the splendid tire of sunlit noon; Would that some hand might strike it

And yet perchance the touch that thus should wake The silent chords to soaring melody, Might be the band of one for whose dear The song would grow until too great

So sleep, my heart, screne as yonder star; Silence shall be sweet like Summer rain; To hush the lips of song were better far Than bursting into symphonies of pain.

THE PRESIDENT'S VIEWS.

Atlanta Constitution, Cleveland Paper. The statement of President Cleveland's views, printed in yesterday's Constitution, from the St. Louis Globe Democrat, should be taken with several grains of salt. Still, if the report is an accurate one, there are a great many elements of hope in it. It shows, for one thing, that Mr. Cleveland has begun to put on his thinking cap, and it shows, for another, that he is arousing himself to the necessity of harmonizing the party so that its full strength may be utilized in the next national campaign. The South feels that, while Mr. Cleveland was elected as the President of the whole country, it is not by any means his duty to administer affairs in the interest of the Republican party. He was elected by Democrats as a Democrat, and, as this must be a Government of parties, it is a duty he owes to his own convictions, as well as to the whole country, to administer the Government from a strictly Democratic standpoint. As to the civil service humbug the Constitution can say to him that no reasonable Democrat holds him responsible for that law. The Democratic party is responsible for it, and as long as it remains on the statute-book its provisions must be carried out. The Democrats of the South are not, as a general thing, standing around hunting for offices, but if they were, and failed to receive them, they would not on that account desire to destroy the Democratic party. There is no doubt, however, that some of the departments, under Mr. Cleveland's administration, call loudly for reform.

The Democracy and the Independents. Shelbyville (Ind.) Demograt.

The little squad of 3,000 or 4,000 "Independents" under the command of Hon. George W. Curtis in 1884 will not frighten the next Democratic National Convention into the nomination of a Mugwump. It has not so soon been forgotten that the Curtis movement at that time drove no less than 40,000 Democrats in New York to support Blaine and Butler. The next National Convention should take steps to get that deciding vote to support the Democratic nominee. Those 40,000 Democrats are anxious to support the Democratic party in 1888. Their mighty voices will be heard in that Convention pleading for a Democrat who will unite the party, and the "Independents" will do well if they get even a cold po-

Turn the Rascals Out. N. Y. Star, Ad. Organ.

There is not a Democratic Senator who does not recognize the utter impossibility of reform in the departments so long as the old set of Republican workers keep the places they have had for so many years. The frank spoilsman, Senator Plumb, said he'd vote cheerfully to turn every Republican out of office, while that eminent civil service reformer, Senator Teller, was sure that the Pension Office was strictly non-partisan, and that appointments were made indiscriminately from Democrats and Republican soldiers. The most trustworthy figures, however, show a clerical force of about 1,472 Republicans and about 28 Democrats when Gen. Black was appointed commissioner, and there are not many more Democrats now.

War Between France and Germany Regarded as Inevitable - The Attitude of Russia.

By Cable to the Morning Star. VIENNA, Feb. 18 - A semi official letter from St. Petersburg represents that Russia is waiting for the Franco-German conflict. which she considers inevitable, to realize her own Balkan projects. While making no compact with France, Russia would consider it to be to her own interest not to allow Germany to be victorious in a strug gle between those countries. It is suppose that this intention on the part of Russia ex plains the dallying in the negotiations for a settlement of the Bulgarian question, now being carried on at Constantinople

ST. PETERSBURG Feb. 18 -The con viction is gaining ground that war between France and Germany is inevitable. In addition to this, it is said that, as a fresh defeat of France might involve disastrous results to Russia, the Czar's government will in the event of war preserve entire liberty of action It will not support France as an ally, but may, by a firm resolved attitude, prevent Germany from sending the whole of her army west of the Rhine, and even if France should be defeated, attenuate as much as possible the effects of the disaster for thes: reas ins It is declared that Russia will await the cutcome of dif ferent phases of the Bulgarian crisis with the greatest calmness, and act in such a way as to avoid being involved with Austria or England at the moment when France and Germany commence hostilities ADVERTISERS . The contract as to the bonda was that the merchants' tax was to go into the interest fund, and up to this time the drummers' tax had gone into that fund. He said the fund that he wished to show how the deficit in the interest fund could be met. There had been purchased by the Treasurer $270.000 of 4 per cent. bonds, which are now in the treasury, and it had been provided that any deficit in the interest fund could be met by selling such part of these bonds as might be necessary. THE REVENUE BILL. At 11 a. m. the House took up the Rev enue bill again, going into Committee of the Whole thereon, Mr. Doughton in the chair. It resumed consideration of the bill at the 24th section, where it left of yesterday.

When the section in regard to drummers' tax was reached, Mr. Leazar offered an amendment that it be put into the general fund instead of in the interest fund. It would make a difference of between 4 and cents in the taxes.

Mr. Worth said that this tax on drummers was pledged to the interest fund.

Mr. Leazar said that the question was whether the drummer was a merchant.

The contract as to the bonda was that the terest fund by selling the necessary amount of bonds. He said there would be a deficit, of course. This was his plan of reducing the taxes—a pet measure of his.

Pritchard said he favored the sale of all

Pritchard said he favored the sale of all the $270,000 of 4 per cent. bonds, and make the tax levy for the next two years 15 cents instead of 28 cents, as proposed

Worth said it would be dangerous, fatally so, to sell these bonds. They were put just where they should be. These drummers, license taxes had been wisely construed as coming under the head of merchants taxes. If the bonds were sold to relieve what

If the bonds were sold to relieve what might appear to be a present pressure, it would ultimately lead to an increase of taxation. The use of the fund in a certain way was prescribed by law.

Parsons said that any attempt to tamper with the fund set aside sacredly for the purpose of meeting the interest on the State's debt would have a fatal result on the State's credit. He was unalterably opposed to the propositions of both Leazar and Pritchard. They would have the worst offect. He said that the United States now held $190,000 worth of six per cent. construction bonds, for which they would not take 4 per cents in exchange, but demanded payment in cash. The bonds in the treasury, or so much thereof as may be necessary, must be sold to meet this obligation. He said that any plans to reduce taxation as those proposed by Leazar and Pritchard must in the nature of things be temporary, and that it was always the case emporary, and that it was always the case that after taxes had been reduced temporarily the people cried out more loudly when they were again raised to the normal point. It was robbing Peter to pay Paul.

His idea of the way to reduce taxes was to Holt spoke strongly against the amendment; thinking it a dangerous attack upon the credit of the State. Speaking of the $190,000 due the U.S. Department of the Interior for the Indian fund, he said that is payment was demanded by the Government, and that the amount would under the law be deducted from any appropriation set spart for North Carolina Worth said if the amendment was adopted it would be known in New York in two hours and would at once affect, most injuriously, the credit of the State, Pritchard said that the Legislature was here to reduce the taxes in the interest of the tax payers, and not to look after the in-terests of outside bondholders. He said the Legislature was not here to legislate in the interest of Wall Street, but in the interest of the people of North Carolina. He declared that the Democrats did not dare to vote against his amendment and then go before the people.

Sutton said the matter hinged upon the definition of a "drummer." Is a drummer a "merchant." The Supreme Court had decided that he was not; in the case from Charlotte, State vs. Miller. The Attorney General held the opinion that a drummer was a merchant, but that did not make it

Mr. Leazar said that his only fear was as to the $190,000 due the government, Speaking of the general fund he said that in every revenue act it was made liable to be drawn upon to meet any deficiency in the interest fund. Considering the question of the debt to the United States he withdrew his amendment until the third reading. The section was then adopted as it stood. This bill was taken up, on motion of Mr. Leazar, chairman of the Committee or Education, and on it the House went into Committee of the Whole, Holt in the chair. The bill was considered by section Leazar said the bill had been unani nously agreed upon by the committee. The bill fixes the opening of the fiscal school year July 1, and the ending the 30th day of June succeeding. The terms of office of county boards of education is to expire June 30, 1887, and thereafter the regular term of office for these boards shall begin July 1 and be two years.

To the latter section Gray offered an amendment abolishing

education and placing their duties upon the county commissioners. Williamson opposed it. It was shown that the system opposed it. It was shown that the system of having such boards had effected a great saving. Brogden attacked the system. He said be wanted short terms for them. He was a Jeffersonian in this matter, he said. York said the boards ought to be abolished. Leazar said he knew that in some sections of the State there was opposition to the county boards of education. But these boards were a vital necessity, just as much as the selection of good, competent teachers. The boards cost about $6,000, or about one per cent. of the whole school fund. These boards looked after the schools and the fund and they had increased the fund $90,000 more in 1886 than it was in 1884. The amendment was put to a vote and lost, 50 to 37. Brogden offered an amendment to make the term of office one year instead of two. This was also lost. A shower of A torpid liver deranges the whole sys-tem, and produces

I at last succeeded in breaking the fever, but it cost me over $100.00, and then my system was prostrated and saturated with malarial poison and I became almost helpless. I finally came here, my mouth so filled with sores that I could scarely eat, and my tongue raw and filled with little knot. Various remedies were resorted to without effect. I bought two bottles of B. B. B. and it has cured and strengthened me. All sores of my mouth are healed and my tongue entirely clear of knots and soreness, and I feel like a new man.
