New York Commercial Chronicle. FRIDAY, March 8, 1889 .-- The movement of the crop, as indicated by our telegrams from the South tonight, is given below. For the week ending this evening (March 8), the total receipts have reached 81,638 bales, against 96,593 bales last week. 96,350 bales the previous week: making the total receipts since the 1st of September, 1888, 5,010,955 bales, against 4,974,928 bales for the same period of 1887-8, showing a in-

36.037 bales. The exports for the week ending this evening reach a total of 148,058 bales, of which 91,823 were to Great Britain11,573 to France and 43,657 to the rest of the Continent.

crease since September 1, 1888, of

To-day a sharp decline at Liverpool caused a weak opening at this market, but there was a quick rally on indications of a reduced crop movement at the ports, and at many interior towns as well. Some of the best prices of the day were paid in the last hour, and the close was firm. Cotton on the spot met with a pretty fair demand for home consumption, at about steady prices, there being no quotable change; but to-day there was a largely increased business for export.

The total sales for forward delivery for the week are 321,700 bales.

Mrs. Carlyle's Prophecy. Springfield Republican.

The prediction as to the ultimate fate of Pigott, which appears in the diary of Mrs. Jane Welsh Carlyle under the date of April 27, 1845, is remarkable enough to quote in full:-As for young Mr. Pigott, I will here, in the spirit of prophecy, inherited from my great great ancestor, John Welsh, the covenanter, make a small prediction. If there vantages arising from the construcbe, in his time, an insurrection in Ireland, as these gentlemen (referring to her husband's Irish visitors) confidently anticipate, Mr. Pigott will rise to be a Robespierre of some sort; will cause many heads to be removed from the shoulders they belong to, and will eventually have his own head removed from his own shoulders. Nature has written on that handsome but fatal-looking countenance, quite legibly to my prophetic eye, "Go and get thyself beheaded, but not before having lent a hand toward the great work of im-

The Wilmington STAR is not only able, it is pregressive also. Very of ten we have admired the strength and beauty of its editorials, and the elegance and symmetry of its arrangement, and now we are delighted with its "Short Stops."

Nothing is better in journalism than a stop in the right place. The man who can throw into a paragraph the strong points of a subject of gen eral interest has achieved no ordinary triumph. An editor of great ability once closed an article of unusual length with, "Pardon the length of this, as we haven't time to make it shorter."

LA Postal Card Well Filled,

Lewistown (Me.) Journal. When some antiquarian of the future reports that a citizen of Belfast wrote on a postal card the whole of one of the annual messages of President Cleveland, the inference will be that President Cleveland was a man of few words, but the inference will be wrong. The message contained 15,000 words, yet Mr. Pila Kittredge got it all on the card with a steel pen and ink, each letter, as seen through a microscope, being beautifully formed. Moreover, a border three eighths of an inch wide is placed around the card, representing a string of beads, 52 in number, each three sixteenths of an inch in diameter, and most of them contain ing the Lord's Prayer; 4,000 words are put into this border. Macon Telegraph. One of the keenest things ever said on the bench is attributed to Judge Walton, of Georgia. While holding a term of the Supreme Court at Augusta he sentenced a man to seven years in prison for a grave crime. The prisoner's counsel asked for a mitigation of the sentence on the ground that the prisoner's health was very poor. "Your Honor," said he, "I am satisfied that my client cannot live out half that term, and I beg of you to change the sentence." "Well, under those circumstances," said the Judge, "I will change the sentence. I will make it for life instead of seven years." The prisoner chose to abide by the original sentence, which the Judge permitted him to elect.

Where a part of the crop is divided the landlord allowing the tenant to take his share thereof, such division is an assent to the removal by the tenant of his share and a recognition of his right thereto.

Knowles vs. Norfolk Southern. The Supreme Court will dismiss an action where the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action; but where, by a fair construction of language, a cause of action is sufficiently stated, the motion will be denied.

All that is required of the plaintiff is a plain and concise statement of facts. Where the complaint charges actual violence and rudeness by a conductor in ejecting one from a train for want of a ticket, punitive damages may be awarded.

Where the complaint states a cause of action on which actual damages are recoverable, though doubtful whether enough is charged to entitle plaintiff to punitive damages, but in the answer the allegations of complaint are construed to charge rudeness and they are therefore denied the doctrine of aider applies, and if the rudeness be proved, punitive damages are recoverable.

State vs. Bryant. To constitute forcible entry it must be charged and proved that the person whose possession was disturbed was in actual possession of the premises, and an indictment which does not so allege is fatally defective and should be quashed. An allegation of seisin is not sufficient. The possession required is not necessarily continuous presence but an active exercise of authority and control as by cultivation or use for some purpose by one's family or servant.

Hairship vs. W. & W. R. R. A railroad company condemning land for its use as a roadway is liable for the damage to the growing crop on and outside of the right of way actually sustained incidentally to the construction of the road. In estimating the damages the value of the entire width condemned is to be considered and not merely the width occupied by the road-bed. In estimating the benefit to the owner of the land, the jury is not to consider the ad-

Harrell vs. Goodwin. Section 1275, requiring all conditional sales of personal property to be reduced to writing and registered 18 not retrospective in its operation, but applies only to contracts made after the enactment, November 1st. 1888. Conditional contracts could prior to that date be made verbally; and full effect is to be given to them now, if they were operative before the passage of the act.

Hester vs. Lawrence. The notice to creditors required by sections 1451 and 1452 of the Code in a special proceeding to compel an administrator to an account of his administration and to pay creditors must be duly made in strict conformity with the statute, otherwise the judgment rendered in the cause will be without authority.

An administrator, even if guilty of a devastavit, may except if the proper notice has not been given, as he has the right to be protected by the judgment against suits of other creditors and other creditors are not bound unless legally notified.

Allen vs. W. & W. R. R. Co. A deed conveying to a railroad company a right of way over any part of the grantor's land whereon the company may select its route may be set aside if procured through the false and fraudulent representations of the company's agent.

Defences to an action must be taken in apt time. The provisions of the statute providing for an ascertainment of the value of a right of way must be pursued, and in an action to set aside a deed conveying a right of way, damages for the value of the right of way are not recoverable. While the deed continued in force and was acquiesced to, the statutory action by petition could not be resorted to, and damages are not recoverable for the entry by the corporation on the premises. There may be joined in the same action relief against a void deed conveying a right of way, and a claim for damages for not erecting proper cattle guards and crossings. Edgerton vs. Jones. Where there is a judgment lien upon the homestead exemption of an unmarried man who conveys the same by a fee simple deed, and then marries, has children and dies, the exemption determines at his death and the lien becomes at once enforceable. In order to convert a deed absolute on its face into a mortgage, it must be alleged and proved that the clause of redemption was omitted by reason of ignorance, mistake,

Mr. Walker Blaine says that the Department of State utterly discredits the story and is free from apprehension upon the subject. It now appears that the U. S. naval officer, who was stationed at Auckland, the nearest cable point to Samos, rejoined the Nipsic some time ago. Nevertheless the Navy Department holds that it would have been speedily informed of the reported engagement through the U. S. Consul at Auckland, had any such thing happened.

Particulars Concerning the Murder of Capt. Dawson - The Merderer's Statement-The People Greatly Excited-Attempt to Hide the Crime by Burying the Body-Fings of the City al Half-mast—The Funeral, etc. By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

lice After the murder was committed McDow's wife, with whom he had had a serious quarrel on the day of the tragedy, fled from the house, taking her baby with CHARLESTON, S. C., March 18.—The murder of Capt. Dawson was the most brutal land atrocious ever committed in Charlesten. The popular indignation is Dow's illicit connection with Capt. Daw's son's maid. He and she were traced by a

Charleston. The popular indignation is intense. All classes in the community stand against at the assassination, and would lynch the murderer if they could get him out of jail. The circumstances attending the murder are as follows:

Capt. Dawson left the News and Courier office at half-past three o'clock. Sometime ago it had been brought to his attention that one of his domestics, a stranger in America, and one for whose conduct, being employed in an educational and fiduciary capacity, he was responsible, was conducting herself in a manner that demanded his immediate attention, as will appear elsewhere. Captain Dawson had manded his immediate attention, as will appear elsewhere. Captain Dawson had the best of reasons for calling upon Dr. McDow, which he did at probably about twenty minutes to four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Capt. Dawson, on reaching the office of Dr. McDow, alighted from a street or and entered He never a street car and entered. He never returned alive. The whole truth of the history of what really occurred in that office, and in the few fateful moments of the tragedy, will lie buried in the grave of Capt. Dawson. Revelations, only par-tially made last night, indicate that the death of Capt. Dawson was not only compassed in a brutally murderous mauner, but that a futile effort had been made to bury the body of the victim, as a secret

and murderer, was called upon last night in jail and asked to explain the circumstances of the tragedy. He at first declined to make any statement, but eventually said: "Here it is in a nut-shell, Capt, Dawson entered my office, used abusive language and knocked me down with his cane. got up and he was about to strike me again. on to say that Capt. Dawson was not killed instantly; that he remained alive for a half to three-quarters of an hour, during which time he (Dr. McDow). remained in the room with the man whose life was fast ebbing away, making up his mind what to do, but there is the strongest and most convincing proof that Washington, March 12.—Rear Admiraj McDow remained in the room at least an hour after the death of Capt. Dawson, planning how he might dispose of the body. At the distance of a few feet from the back door of the office, at the end of a passage way, is a half door opening into a re-cess under the stairway which leads to the second story. As was natural, and to be expected from the coroner and his jury, a thorough examination of the premises was made, with a view to the fullest investigation. Lieut. Fordham made'a startling discovery, while this examination was in progress. On the half door above referred to there were noticed some spots of fresh blood. This was, of course, an incentive to further inquiry, and the exami-nation was extended to all parts of the closet. Drops of blood were found on the floor up to the space where the flooring terminated, and the earth of the foundation was exposed. Here another horrible and startling revelation was made. The mould was noticed to be freshly turned up, and to a depth which was only limited by a quantity of bricks and other impassible material to the spade or whatever instrument was used in the attempt to dig a grave. Such certainly is the conviction of all those who saw the up-turned earth and the bloody spots on the floor and the door. This closet door was found nailed up last night, although it had evidently been formerly laid up against the opening into the closet. It is therefore almost absolutely certain that the assassin endeavored, during his long occu-> is, however, that Dr. McDow, after floding his efforts futile on account of the soil just noted, determined to set up the plea of self-defence, and went out and delivered him-self to private Gordon. It was stated that before being taken to the Central station he was permitted to visit one or two lawyers. Dr. McDow said that he was standing up when he fired the fatal shot, and Capt. Dawson was about to strike him a second time with his cane. Three things are therefore quite remarkaole—one, that Capt. Dawson could have been shot in the spot where the bullet been knocked down he can exhibit no marks of such implied violence; and, thirdly, if it were self defence, why the tell tale afternoon. All of the civic and social bodies with which Capt. Dawson was connected will attend. Bishop Northrop will conduct the funeral services. Dr. McDow, when seen last night in fail, bore all evidences of a man affrighted by the consciousness of crime without an excuse. He was ashen pale, trembled visibly and perspiration was thick upon his fore-head and face. Among other things he desired it stated that he had killed Captain

Dawson in self defence.

Captain Golden, chief of police, said to a reporter for the News and Courter last night, that the first information that he received of the murder of Captain Dawson was about 6.30 p. m. Being asked if he knew anything that might account for the murder, Captain Golden said that he doubted whether it would be correct to publish in advance of the inquest what he knew about the matter, but finally made the following statement: "On Friday of last week," said he, "Captain Dawson asked me to come to his office, saying that he desired to ask my advice and assistance. I went to see him and he then told me that he had French or Swiss maid servant, and that ne heard that she had been detected in disreputable company. He asked me to detail a man to shadow her and and out if the reports were true or false saying that he did not desire a servant about his household who was not honest and upright. I accordingly detailed Ser-geat Dunn, who under my instructions went out yesterday (Monday) morning. Ergeant Dunn reported in writing that the maid had taken an uptown car at Rutledge street, and that he had followed her; that Dr. McDow had also boarded the car, and had ridden with her to the upper terminus; that the two had got out of the car there, and had strolled around unfrequented streets in the northwestern section of the city. All the details were submitted by me to Capt. Dawson this morning. I also told Dow's reputation was not of the best, and that it would be perhaps as well to take no notice of him. This is all I know of the case.

"This afternoon, about 3 o'clock, or little after, while I was riding the rounds, a policeman on duty in the west end of the city told me that somebody had heard the report of a pistol shot in Rutledge street near Bull street. It occurred to me that near Bull street. It occurred to me that perhaps something was wrong, and I rode around and rang the bell of Dr. McDow's residence, and asked if anything was the matter. I was told that there was nothing the matter and then went off. Thinking that there was something wrong, I rode down to the office of the News and Courier to see Capt. Dawson. There I found that he had left for home shortly after 8 p. m. I asked one of the clerks to telephone to his residence and ask if he had reached home. The answer was that Capt. Dawson had not yet come home. This rendered mestill more suspicious, and I immediately went up town again.— Arrived at the station house, I found that the report had been sent in that there was trouble in Rutledge atreet. I at once communicated with the Mayor, telling him that I suspected foul play, and received orders to enter Dr. McDow's office and ascertain the truth of the matter. In the meantime, about 6 30 p. m., Dr. McDow had come to the station house and surrendered himself, saying that he he had shot Capt. Dawson."

The Gunboat Desselines Reported

Sunk-Another Battle-The Town of

Grandeslines Burned. By Telegraph to the Morning Star. NEW YORK, March 18 .- The steame William Coulmann arrived from Gonaives Hayti, to day. She reports that on February 23d the gunboat Desselines, of Legitime's navy, arrived off the port and opened fire on both of the forts at the entrance of the part. The cannonade was continued for two hours, but no particular damage was done. The forts returned the, fire and in a short time the Dessellnes put out to sea. The supposition is that three well-directed shots from the fort struck the steamer. The general belief is that the Desselines has sunk with all on board. The Desselines foundered, it is said, off

On the 26th an order was received by a messenger from the Minister of War at St. Marc's to send out three hundred troops to Marc's to send out three nundred troops to join a similar number which left St. Maries to attack the Southern people. Sixty of Legitime's forces tried to cut off connecction between these two bodies, but they were driven back to the Grandest lines. A number of prisoners were taken, and some arms, mostly rifles were canand some arms, mostly rifles, were cap-

On the evening of the 29th, at 5:80 olclock, a great fire was seen from the town. It was southward, and turned out to be Grandealines in flames. The fire was started by the Bouthern people, who at once abandoned the place. It appears that on the Southern army getting possession of Grandealines they treated the people very badly, particularly women and children.

Strike Situation at Fall River. By Telegraph to the Morning Star. FALL RIVER, March 18.—The third day of the big strike of weavers of this city shows the situation practically unchanged, and there are no indications of yielding on either side. About 1,000 looms, the same number as were in operation yesterday, are running, and many of the factories have abandoned all attempts to work their weav-ing departments. The loom-fixers, who began to go out yesterday, have all left their places to day and joined the strikers. They refused to weave, and many of them were discharged in consequence. The State Board of Arbitration has arrived and is inquiring into the situation. The same quiet order which has characterized the strike all along prevails this morning, and no special police are detailed for duty.

Merit Wine. We desire to say to our citizens that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnics Salve, and Electric Bitters, and have never han-dled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. ROB'T R. BELLAMY'S Wholesale and Re-

OUR LITTLE SON.

Four years old, afflicted with a painful disease. Six doctors tried to cure him; all falled. Got worse and worse. Completely cuied by one set of Cuti-cura Remedies, costing $1.75.

Our little son will be four years of age on the 35th inst. In May, 1855, he was attacked with a very painful breaking out of the 8kin. We called in a physician, who treated him for about four weeks. The child received little or no good from the physician, as the breaking out, supposed to be hives in an aggravated form, became larger in blotches, and more and more distressing. We were frequently obliged to get up in the night and rub him with soda in water, strong liniments, etc. Pinally, we called other physicians, until no less than six hat attempted to cure him, all alike failing, and the child steadily getting worse and worse, until about the 30th of last July, when we began to give him CUTICURA RISCLYENT internally, and the CUTICURA, and CUTICURA FOAP externally, and by the last of August he was so nearly well that we gave him only one done of the Erson-verst about every second day for about ten days longer, and he has never been troubled since with the horrible malady. In all we used less than one half of a bottle of CUTICURA, and only one cake of CUTICURA SOAP. one cake of CUTICURA SOAP.

Scrofalous Humors.

Last spring I was very sick, being covered with some kind of scrofula. The doctors could not help me. I was advised to try the Cutricura Resolvent. I did so, and in a day I grew better and better, until I am as well as ever. I thank you for it very much, and would like to have it told to the public.
