ople tear monuments to their leaders in the late war as they pass over the river, and it is well. Here in the South shall be erected a memorial of its everlasting love for Jefferson Davis It will be built by the mite of the widow whose son sleeps by the banks of the Rapidan, by the gift o the maimed soldier who carried the Confederate flag to renown smidst the tangled thickets of The Wilderness, by the contributions of all alike who admire moral and persousl beroism as exemplified by its greates exposent, and upon that monument should be written these words: "Go, stranger, tell the world I ob-yed the summons of my people, and I am here."

At the conclusion of Maj. Stedman's address, the choir sang, "Art Thou Weary; Art Thou Languid."

Rev. T. H. Pritchard, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist Church, then addressed the audience, as follows: Solomon said "Wast shall the man do who cometh after the king?" I have the misfortune to-day to follow several kings in the realm of oratory. Permit me to say in this connection, that, in my judgment the good people of Wilmington are to be congratulated that, we have in the special orstor of this occasion one who was not only intimately associated with Mr. J. ffer s n Davis in times which tried men, but a gentleman who by reason of his own toble elements of character is better prepared to appreciate the rare excellencies of our dead chiefiain than perhaps any other m n in this fair Southland of ours A gendeman whom we venerate as the most distinguished of the living sons of our good old State, Mr. George Davis. After the splendid eulogies we have h and from the distinguished men who have preceded me I shall not indulge in I spekyric, but speak a few simple words about the religious character of our dead

The last time I saw Mr. Davis was in church. It was a dark time in the history of the Confederacy. The Peace Commissioners had returned from their fruitless ton to Fortress Monroe. The eloquent Dr. James A. Duncan was in the pulpit of the Broad street Methodist church of Richmond. I remember his text (Psm cxx: 7) -"I am for peace, but when I speak they are for war." Mr. Davis and his lovely wife sat only a few feet from me, and as watched the play of his features as the discourse proceeded I became impressed with the strong religious character of the man, and this impression has remained with me ever since. To all the writings of this great man there is a reverence of touch, a gravity and even solemnity of language when he has occasion to refer to the Deity that seems to have been born of the deep devotionfor his nature and his unfaltering trust in God and the truth of His Gospel.

It will be remembered that he was in church, lifting up his heart in prayer to G of for his country when the intelligence reached him that Lee's lines were broken and the Confederacy rufned, I have been told that his piety grew with his years and experience, and I do not question but that to the mysterious services of heavenly help, we are to look for that am zing strength and complete serenity which have made him for these twentyfive years an example of moral sublimity with which the history of the world scarce furnished a parallel. For many years Mr Davis had been to

Mr President - It seems like presumption for me to attempt to add even a word to wast has been so well and so eloquently President. But at the request of the com mittee, and wi h a heart full of love for my sunny Southand and all of the pure an good that she loves or has loved, I come to lay a little flower on his grave and drop a tear with the thousands who weep over all this land to-day.

It is a rich heritage for any country of say age to be permitted to call such a man as Jefferson Davis their own. In prosper its he was a guiding star. In adversity and defeat he was a hero to stand in the breach and willingly, patiently to suffer that, possible, he might shield and protect his people, for whom he had laid everything upon his country's altar. That he was grea and good is seen in the fact that though rounds upon the grave of the ' Lost Cause yet the hearts of the sons and daughters of he South beat bigh with admiration and deepest love when the name of one who was willing to lay his all at his country's feet and take the chances in a cause which he felt and believed to be right. That he was a great man is further seen in the fact that smid the trials to which he has been subjected, through these long dark years, and though his great heart has often been wrung by his surroundings, like a hero he It is not a sure test of a man's heroic and sacrificial spirit when he goes forward with hope of success and distinction, but when hope plumes her wings and flies away, and darkn as and gloom settles like a pall round about him yet he stands as a willing sufferer for his people, it is then the true man is seen and his real worth can be somewhat suprux mated. Such a man was J. fferson Davis, the subject of these memorial services. The diamond has been pressed to the polishing stone of years of suffering and disappointment, and though it sparkled with peculiar bulliancy when first it touched the polishing wheel, it now shines as a star of the first magnitude throughout the South, and has become to South ern hearts and Southern homes thing of besuty which will be joy forever." That he was great and good is farther seen in that he vielded willingly submissively to the will of Providence Many men whose hopes and expectations are crushed and broken, forget God and charge Him with unkindness Not so with bur Davis. THE DEAD CHIEFTAIN.

Funeral Obsequies in New Orleans-The City? Draped in Mourning-Handreds of Thousands of People in Attendance - Simple but Beautifu Religious Ceremonies, Etc.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star. NEW ORLEANS, December 11 .- The day, notwithstanding the threatening and oppressive character of the weather during the past several days, could not have been more propitious or beautiful. The portentous. pregnant-looking clouds of the night previous, and the great banks of heavy fog that prevailed during the early part of this morning, had wholly disappeared by 7 o'clock, as the sun burst forth, and a beautiful Southern summer day dawned for the obsequies of the Southern Chieftain.

The city is crowded with thousands of people representing the prominence, wealth and chivelry of the Southern States. Six or seven Governors are here, attended by their staffs, and bringing with them great delegations of people.

The military parade will be a marked one. Many companies from Georgia, Texas. Mississippi and Alabama are here, and the Louisiana State National Guards, and the volunteer militia of New Orleans will par-The crush on the street promises to

Across in Lafayette Square, just opposite the City Hall, a dense multitude has gathered, and Canal, Camp and St. Charles streets are crowded with people from all over the country. The floral decarations were added to this norning. They came from every State and city in the South, and are superb in their design and beanty. The town is draped from one end to the other with the most elaborate showings of black. The business fronts and residences that were barren of mourning emblems yesterday fare covered this morning, and every bit of bunting there is in the city flies on staffs at half mast.

At an early hour this morning the streets were thronged with soldiers and firemen in uniform, members of the various civic organizations, and representatives of every profession, avocation and association all en route to their respective meeting stations, whence a few hours later they are to concentrate in Lafayette Square. As soon as the doors of the City Hall were opened a stream of citizens began to pour into the death chamber, to take a farewell view of the remains of the famous Confederate leader. The crowd of visitors was even greater than that of yesterday, there being thousands of people from abroad whose visit to this city had been telayed until to day.

It was not until 11 30 o'clock that the lid of the casket was closed down forever upon the features of the dead. The remains were then conveyed to the front portico of the City Half building, where the simple Church were performed. Lafayette Square, in front of the City

Hall, the banqueties and the streets were densely packed with people, and balconies and every available space from which the pageant could be viewed were crowded in the extreme

At the conclusion of the religious services the casket was borne by a detachment of soldiers to a handsomely decorated caisson, which had been especially prepared for its reception, and on which it was to be conveyed to the cemetery From the caisson arises a catafalque, consisting of a unique and beautifully designed canopy, measuring eight feet in length and four in width, and supported by six bronze cannon, braced with muskets. Neck. The following resolutions, passed at a meeting of the merchants of Scotland Neck, Halifax county, last Friday night, called to consider the condition of the farmers of that county, who are suffering from failure of crops, we publish with pleasure and heartily commend:

WHEREAS, Owing to the almost total failure of crops there prevails at this time in this section of the State and in this community a feeling of depression and uneasiness and this being an agricultural community many or the people are uncertain as to how they will be enabled to carry forward their farming operations the coming year; therefore we, the merchants of Scot land Neck, in convention assembled, believing that it is the duty of all men to unite for the common good of their section, and believing that each community will have to flad the remedy for the present distress feeling of depression and uneasiness, and to give our assurance of aid. Resolved, 1. That whilst the condition f this section is without a parallel in its history, and the burdens upon us all are heavy, there is no cause for alarm and uncertainty and loss of hope.

2. That the situation demands the strict et economy and the exercise of prudence and wisdom upon the part of all, and absolute candor and fair dealing between debtor and creditor.

8 That we can and will aid all of on sustomers and patrons the coming year, as we have in the past, and we promise that we will make sacrifices for them, knowing that hey will measure their demands upon us by their necessities. 4 That we desire all our friends, both farmers and laborers, to feel that there is no cause for alarm, and that there will be plenty of work for willing hands to do. 5 That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Wilmington STAR, News and Obser er, Messenger, Chronicle Roanoke News, Progressive Farmer and The Democrat, with he request that they be published D EDMONDSON, Chairman, E. the Tariff but Other Condition that Affect Them. Henry George in N. Y. Standard. Wages are higher here than in England. Workingmen do live better here as a rule than they do in England. But it is not protection that makes the difference. There may be as much logic in attributing the difference to protection as there would be in attributing it to our comparatively large negro population or to the long twilights of England; but there is no more. If protection makes the difference, wages in all the protection countries ought to be better than they are in England. But they are not. The working classes, badly off as they are in England, are better off than in any country in Europe; tery of death, the common heritage of us and yet tariff protection is lower in all the meaning of which all must know England than in any other European | ere long, may soften and hallow our hearts country. Two things unite to make the golden text uttered by the most conour wages higher than wages in Eug- | spicuous man of the century, in whom tenland. One is the greater amount of cheap land which enables workmen of some means to get out of the class that must find an employer or go without work, and the other is the greater production of American labor. A workingman here is expected to produce more in a given time than a workingman in England, and he does it. He gets a smaller proportion of his product than an English workman, and, therefore, economically, his wages are less; but as his product is greater his wages are actually more than English wages. But just as the closing in of the land goes on and its price rises, so does the proportion of his product that goes in wages to the laborer decline; and the proportion is helped, not hindered, by protection. Land monop oly, by obstructing production, bears down upon labor, and protection, by obstructing trade, does the same thing, Liberty to produce and liberty to trade are the conditions of high wages, and the restriction in either will sooner or later bring wages

WHO IS MRS. WINSLOW!—As this question a frequently asked, we will simply say that she is a lady who for upwards of thirty years has untiringly devoted her time and talents as a female Physician and nurse, principally among children. She has especially studied the constitution and wants of this numerous class, and, as a result of this effort, and practical knowledge, obtained in a lifetime spent as a nurse and physician, she has compounded a Soothing Syrup for children teething. It operates like magic—giving rest and health, and is, moreover, sure to regulate the bowels. In consequence of this article Mrs. Winslow is becoming world-renowned as a benefactor of her race; children certainly do asse up and bless her; especially is this the case in this city. Vast quantities of the Soothing Syrup are namy sold and used here. We thisk Mrs. Winslow has immortalized her name by this invaluable article, and we sincerely believe thousands of children have been saved from an early grave by its timely use, and that millions yet unborn will share its benefit, and unite in calling her blessed. No Morner has discharged her duty to her suffering little one, in our opinion, until she has given it the benefit of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup Try it, moth reserver now.—Ladies' Visitor, New York in y Sill druggista. Cured by Culicura.

Our oldest child, now six years of age, when an infact six menths old, was attached with a virulent, malignant skin disease. All ordinary rame is staiting, we called our family physician, who attempted o care it; but it spread with almost incredible ratifity, until the lower parties of the light fellow's person, from the middle of his back down to bisk sees, was one solid rash, ugly, painful, blotched and malicious. We had no rest at night, no peace by day. Finally, we ware advised to try the Curicura kernedies. The effect was simply marveilous. In three or four weeks a complete cure was wrought, leaving the little fellow's person as white and healthy as though he had never, been attacked. In my opinion, your valuable remedies saved his iff. and to-day he is a strong, healthy child, perfectly well, no repetition of the disease having ever occured.
